

Sheep Population To Grow in 1950

The decline in Texas sheep numbers will probably be halted in 1950, with the possibility of some recovery according to a survey recently released by Dr. J. C. Miller, head of the Animal Husbandry Department.

The survey was in the form of a graduate study, "What's Happening to Texas Sheep?" made by John P. Baker, College Station; Jacob T. Dameron, Van Horn; and Archie N. McDaniel, Lordsburg.

"Since drouth is an ever present threat and since there is now widespread realization of the benefits of proper range management practice, it is very unlikely that the sheep population in Texas will ever again reach the 1940-43 level," the report said.

The study shows that sheep population of the state climbed steadily until 1940 and then, due to drouth, uncertain wool prices, and high feed prices coupled with inexperienced labor, the number dropped 31 per cent in 10 years.

Made by a survey through county agents in 1949, the study compares figures with answers to a questionnaire sent to the members of the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association in 1940. The halt in the decline of the sheep numbers, now 25 per cent of the nation's total, is due partly to Texas sheepmen practicing more crossbreeding, pasture improvement by reseed-

Tillie Now Cooks, Sews for Aggies

Tillie's Creamland is now under the management and ownership of Mrs. Tillie Halos, or as she prefers to be called, just Tillie.

February 7 Tillie bought out her partner and started in on her own, with this basic policy "Home cooked food at the lowest possible prices".

In addition to owning the Creamland, Tillie also owns the A&M Alteration shop, which she will continue to manage.

The cafe will seat 67 people at booths and stools, Tillie said. The staff includes two cooks, five waitresses and four students.

She has had previous experience in the cafe business in her home town of Weimer, Texas.

Tillie's Creamland is open 6 a. m. to 11 p. m. daily and on the nights there are dances on the campus they will be open all night.
