"District School", of Blueberry Corner, a comedy relating the experiences of a country school teacher, is to be presented at the A&M Consolidated School on Friday night, March 17.

Letting their hair down to become actors for the night will be some personalities as English professor, C. K. Eaten, who is to portray the unfortunate school teacher; and John Hillman, who will be having spelling difficulties that night. Adding to the hilarity will be Eleanor Barlow's giggles, and Principal L. E. Boze's troubles as the school's bad boy.

To make the entertainment complete, Howard "Bud" Barlow and his Boys will be making with the red hot hoe downs, as College Station Square Dance maestros call for an "honor your partner."

A&M Consolidated Has Dental Exam

The A&M Consolidated schools will have a dental inspection of all students today and Tuesday according to Les Richardson, superintendent.

This state sponsored service is an inspection only and does not involve any dental work, Richardson said. However, in the case of underprivileged children, the state will assume the cost of having a local dentist do what work is necessary.

The underprivileged childrens committee of the Kiwanis club has arranged for 12 women to assist in the inspection which began at 8:30 this morning, according to W. M. Potts, chairman of the committee.

Those women that will assist in the inspection are Mrs. J. B. Baty, Mrs. Ralph Rogers, Mrs. Joe Motherall, Mrs. H. G. Johnston, Mrs. R. E. Leighton, and Mrs. W. M. Potts. On Tuesday, Mrs. R. E. Snuggs, Mrs. O. Berry, Mrs. Ralph Steen, Mrs. Dan Davis, Mrs. W. N. Colson, and Mrs. Otis Miller will offer their help.

The underprivileged childrens committee will also assist in the state eye inspection to be held in the near future, Potts said.

Warners Found Off-Key In 'Young Man With A Horn'

By HERMAN C. GOLLOB

Young Man With A Horn (Warners) starring Kirk Douglas, Doris Day, Hoagy Carmichael (Campus)

There is supposed to be an unwritten law requiring critics and reviewers to be fittingly impartial in their appraisal of what is placed before the public eye as entertainment. Not!

To those who read today's column with the intention of gathering the unbiased and carefully thought-out facts on the worth of "Young Man With A Horn," we say "don't."

So impressed are we with Kirk Douglas' acting, Harry James trumpet playing, and Doris Day's singing that we refuse to call their latest picture an off-key muddle of maudlin excesses and hoary plot complications contrived by scripters who thought they could do a better job with the story than the original author.

We refuse to mention Lauren Bacall's name. If we did, we would have to say that she seems to be picking up a little of hubby Humphrey's capacity for dismal performances. As a sultry, sophisticated neurotic who hasn't found herself yet, Miss Bacall mouths lines, which must have been pilfered from old Greta Garbo pictures, in a way that suggests she is trying hard to imitate Tallulah Bankhead. Perhaps Warners would have done better by letting Miss Bankhead read the lines while Miss Bacall went through the motions.

Radio Patrol Car Reached at 21205

Radio communications with the College Station patrol cars has been established through the Bryan police radio to insure better protection for the city, Raymond Rogers, city manager has announced.

To contact the College Station car, call the Bryan police at 2-1205 who will then relay the report to the city car by radio, Rogers said. This system has been in operation for a considerable time and has proved to be satisfactory.

As added protection, Patrolman Curtis Bullock, fingerprint expert formerly of the Sherman police, now patrols the city at night. Lee Norwood is the daytime officer, Rogers continued.

Ball Invitations Still Available

Invitations to the Military Ball may be secured from all first sergeants, Gene Chase, chairman of the invitation committee, said today. They must be produced by Friday, he said, since all unissued invitations will be collected from the first sergeants on that day.

Only 1,400 invitations will be issued this year, Chase continued, since the 1,700 distributed last year resulted in too large a crowd attending the ball.

Men who completed their military science courses last semester but who wish to attend the ball in uniform may obtain their invitations at Ross Hall, Chase concluded.

Like Parks and Jolson. All that we intend to do is shed more kudos on Kirk Douglas, Doris Day, and Harry James. Douglas proves the old adage that a great actor can rise above poor material. He is as heatedly intense as ever in the role of Richard Martin, the jazz-playing trumpeter who expected the impossible from music. Somebody manages to give artificially penned lines the deceptive sound of power and conviction, and puffs at the trumpet as though he doesn't know that Harry James is doing the actual playing.

In the capable hands of Doris Day and James, the film's music is its most worthwhile feature. Doris pours her peaches and cream voice over old favorites like "The Very Thought of You," "I May Be Wrong," and "With A Song In My Heart," while the invisible James plays an alternately jazz and sweet trumpet with a zest and warmth that have lately been missing from his style.

Photography is appropriately imaginative, particularly when the camera followed a crooked-up Douglas as he roams the New York streets, and when it roots around in smoke-filled cabarets, picking up shirt-sleeved jazz combos which make with the "soul" music.

In supporting roles, Hoagy Carmichael sports a languorous demeanor and Juano Hernandez gets run over by a car.
