

Fourth Army Head Is Ranking Guest

By B. F. ROLAND

One of the world's outstanding experts in the field of military supply and logistics will be the ranking guest of the Corps of Cadets tomorrow.

Lt. Gen. LeRoy Lutes, commander of the Fourth Army, has been cited by both his own and the British governments for his work in planning and directing the supply services of the Allied armed forces during the war.

The Fourth Army commander saw combat service in every theater of operations during World War II. He was instrumental in establishing the first joint Army-Navy Logistical Board in the South Pacific area.

Early in the war he initiated plans to assure adequate supply support for American forces in England. Prior to the European invasion he was called to General Eisenhower's headquarters to investigate and advise on plans for supply and logistical support of the cross-channel assault.

During the years 1944 and 1945,

General Lutes was again called to serve with the Headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary Forces to assist in the logistical operations at the front.

From 1943 to 1946, he served first as acting chief of staff, chief of staff, and finally commanding general of the Army Service Forces.

He saw service in the Pacific Theater in 1942 and 1943. In 1943 and 1944 he took part in the Cairo Conference, the Burma-India, North African and European campaigns.

He was instrumental in coordinating supply and logistic operations in support of Army and Navy advances in the Pacific.

In March, 1946, Gen. Lutes accompanied the Under Secretary of War on a world circling inspection trip to examine the worldwide army surplus property situation in overseas theaters.

The Fourth Army commander was instrumental in formulating plans and policies for demobilization of the armed forces at the conclusion of the war.

Gen. Lutes first entered military service at the age of 16 when he joined the original coast artillery regiment of the Washington National Guard in 1906. An honor graduate of Wentworth Military Academy in 1908, Gen. Lutes served in the Illinois National Guard until 1917 when he accepted a regular army commission.

He is a graduate of the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and the Army War College.

His post as Fourth Army commander is not his first tour of duty in Texas. In 1940 he served with the Third Army Headquarters in San Antonio. In October of 1940 he was in charge of supply planning and operations for the large Louisiana maneuvers in 1941.

In November, 1941 he established the brigade in defense of the West Coast airplane factories. At the outbreak of the war he was transferred to Washington, D. C. for duty on the War Department General Staff.

At the present time, in addition to his Fourth Army command, Gen. Lutes is detailed to the office of the Secretary of Defense as director of the staff of the Munitions Board. This agency has among its other duties coordination of procurement for all three military departments.

Gen. Lutes has been awarded six decorations. In January, 1945, he was awarded the Bronze Star in Europe and in September of the same year he was awarded the Legion of Merit. He was presented with the Distinguished Service Medal in October 1945 and in July, 1946 he was awarded an Oak Leaf Cluster in lieu of a second DSM.

In August, 1946 the King of England awarded Gen. Lutes the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, degree of Honorary Commander.

On April, 1947, he was presented the American Typhus Commission medal for his work in every theater of operations toward combating typhus.

Lt. Gen. LeRoy Lutes

Gen. Lutes, commanding general of the Fourth Army, will review the Corps of Cadets tomorrow afternoon at 4 on the Main Drill Field. Gen. Lutes, as ranking officer, will head a large list of military officials from Texas and Washington, D. C. The guests from the national capital will arrive on the campus tonight.

Weekend Features Ellington, Concert, Annual Military Ball

By C. C. MUNROE

The biggest show of the year for the Corps of Cadets will be staged tomorrow afternoon on the Main Drill Field.

The entire ROTC Unit, this year boasting the greatest strength it has known since the war, will march past a reviewing stand filled with military and civilian dignitaries.

Following the review, the honor guests, college officials, and their guests will have dinner with the corps in Duncan Hall at 6 p. m. The guests will be seated with the various units of the corps.

A concert by Duke Ellington and his orchestra will begin at 6:30 p. m. in Guion Hall to mark the start of the social events of the weekend.

At 9 p. m., Sbia Hall will be opened and the second annual Military Ball will begin. Fourteen hundred invitations to the ball have been made available to cadets. Elaborate decorations have been prepared. During the intermission Miss Jeanine Holland and the Aggie Sweetheart nominees from TSCW will be introduced.

Spirit of Aggieldand

A unique ending to the ball has been planned by the program committee. It will feature a special transcription of The Spirit of Aggieldand made this week by the Aggie Band.

Eight general officers of the Army and Air Force will top the list of honor guests who came to A&M for the Military Ball weekend. Two military attaches representing France and Italy will also be among the guests.

Both the foreign officers will be honored at the Saturday afternoon review by the Aggie Band. The French National Anthem will be played in honor of Brig. Gen. Jacques de La Boisse. The new Italian National Anthem will be played in honor of Colonel Umberto de Martino. So far as can be determined, Saturday afternoon will be the first time the new Italian National Anthem has been played in the United States.

Acheson Tells How Reds May Prove Peaceful

Berkeley, Calif., March 17. (AP)—There are seven ways Russia can show she wants peace and less world tension, Secretary of State Acheson declared last night.

Completing his second day of foreign policy addresses, Acheson listed differences which he said must be reconciled between Russia and the non-Communist world "if the two systems are to live together, if not in mutual respect, at least in reasonable security."

He held out little hope the Russians would comply, but listed these things Russia could do:

1. Work with the West on peace treaties for Germany, Japan, and Austria which won't turn them into Soviet satellites.
2. Stop using force or its threat on existing satellites. Let them be countries in their own right.
3. Stop obstructing the United Nations and let it become, in Prime Minister Stalin's words, a serious instrument for building international peace and security.
4. Join in seeking "realistic and effective" controls for atomic weapons and general arms limitations. "We believe," Acheson said, "that an authority could be established which would not be controlled or subject to control by either ourselves or the Soviet Union."
5. Stop trying to undermine other countries through Communism.
6. Quit treating diplomats as "sinister" and "criminals."
7. Let the Russian people know what goes on outside Russia.

These are the things, Acheson said, "which, while leaving much yet to do, would give the world new confidence in the possibility of peaceful change."

Dr. Charles E. Kellogg, Chief of the division of soil survey in the United States department of Agriculture will address the Great Issues Class Monday at 8 p. m. in the Chemistry Lecture Room.

His topic will be "The National and World Food Production Potentials." A question and answer session with the Great Issues class will be held the next morning at 11 a. m. Dr. Kellogg will be on the campus for several days for conferences with authorities on agriculture and to lecture to the State Production and Marketing Administration and the A&M Sigma Xi, and to the Graduate School.

He will deliver a Graduate Lecture in the Physics Lecture Room at 8 p. m. Wednesday on the subject, "Tropical Soils Are Different." Kodachrome slides will be used as illustrations.

Dr. Kellogg's duties include planning, developing, and directing a program of soil surveys and land utilization throughout the United States. He is a consultant to the TVA in connection with problems related to agriculture in that area.

For 15 years he has studied soil conditions throughout the world in 18 different countries. In 1949 he spent eight weeks in Australia and New Zealand when he attended the Seventh Pacific Congress held in New Zealand and made a study of soils in both New Zealand and Australia.

Prior to joining the department of agriculture in 1934, Dr. Kellogg taught soil science and did research in soils at Michigan State College, the University of Wisconsin, and the North Dakota Agricultural College.

He received his B. S. degree and Ph. D. Degrees from Michigan State College. From 1936 to 1942 he served as head soil scientist for the Bureau of Plant Industry.

From 1944 to 1946 he served as Messenger lecturer for Cornell University and in 1947 as a national lecturer for Sigma Xi.

Italian Attache Will Attend Military Ball

Col. Umberto de Martino, flying here tomorrow from Washington, D. C., to attend the Military Ball, does not count his position as Military Attache to the Italian Embassy as his only distinction.

The 45-year-old officer is an expert fencer, twice Champion of Italy in that sport and present holder of the U. S. National Sabre Crown. He became the first foreign national to win that award last June while participating as a member of the Washington, D. C., Fencing Club in the National Fencing Championships.

Receiving his commission as a second lieutenant in 1924, Martino served several years as a unit commander and as a physical training instructor. In 1942 he became an instructor at the Italian War College and distinguished himself in battle the following year as a member of the partisan troops in Italy.

In 1944, he became Assistant Commander of the "Legnano" Regiment and later Chief of Staff of the "Folgore" Combat group, both Italian units under Allied command.

Martino holds the Silver Medal for Valor, the second highest combat award in the Italian Army.

He was appointed to his present duties in March of 1948 and also appointed to a similar post for the Italian Embassy in Canada the following year.

By way of honoring the Italian colonel, the Aggie Band will play the new Italian National Anthem during the review tomorrow afternoon. This will be the first time the anthem has ever been played in the continental United States.

A special copy of the musical score was whipped here from Washington and reproduced in the Photographic and Visual Aids Department this week.

The band will also play the French National Anthem honoring Brig. Gen. de La Boisse, Military Attache to the French Embassy, who is accompanying Martino on the trip as another of the special guests.

Oh, For That Little Red Schoolhouse . . .

'District School' Comes Alive With Local Talent

By GEORGE CHARLTON

Dressed in everything from little-lord-fauntleroy suits and wigs to blue jeans and straw hats, members of the cast in "The District School of Blueberry Corners" will troop out on the Consolidated gym stage tonight at 7:30 to present a three act production.

Tonight's affair concerns the goings-on in a typical little red schoolhouse of the old fashioned variety. Country educational institutions in those days consisted usually of one room in which all grades were taught.

Featuring some unexploited local talent, the little show is guaranteed by Mrs. E. B. Reynolds, director, to keep everyone laughing from curtain time until the last scholar is "graduated" about an hour later in the third act. Mrs. Reynolds has also managed, cast, and written in special parts for the affair.

Girls in the skit are: Matilda Billings, age 10, played by Mrs. Manning Smith; Samantha Piper, age 12, played by Mrs. R. R. Lyle; Faithful Snooks, 10, played by Mrs. T. K. Chamberlain; Corinda Geyer, 13, Mrs. C. B. Holzman; Jerusha Dickson, 15, Mrs. C. G. "Spike" White; Ruth Ketchum, 14, Mrs. W. E. Street; Susan Crowfoot, 15, Mrs. H. W. "Bud" Barlow; Sally Brown, 15, Mrs. J. T. L. McNew; Mehtable Jones, 16, Mrs. A. W. Melloh; Dorcas Doolittle, 17, Mrs. A. C. Hughes; and the triplets, Mella, Della, and Bella Hash, played by Mrs. Helen Anderson, Mrs. Marsha Adams, and Mrs. Velma Couch.

Boys enrolled in the school are: Luther Brown, age 4, played by Rev. O. G. Helvey; David Snooks, 9, by D. W. Fleming; Billy Crowfoot, 10, Les Richardson; Obediah Buzzard, 10, John Hillman; Stephen Tucker, 13, Ray Odon; Jeremiah Jenkins, 14, Joe Motherall; Bobby O'Lee, 15, Ray Perryman; Samuel Snooks, 15, E. E. Boze; Sam Dissey, 1, Joe Sorvels.

Visitors to the school are: Mrs. Dipse, played by Mrs. C. K. Esten; Sam Piper, by E. B. Reynolds; Mrs. Snook, by Mrs. G. S. Fraps.

Teacher applicants are: Miss Dasher, played by Mrs. D. W. Fleming; Miss Belinda Sharp, by Mrs. L. K. Tanser; Miss Sally Simple, Mrs. J. E. Roberts; Heseiah Pendergrass, C. K. Esten.

The school committee consists of Uriah Perkins, chairman, played by C. B. Godbey; Jacob Billings, played by W. M. Potts, and John Smith, played by R. R. Shrode.

Scenes during the play will take place in the one-room schoolhouse equipped with such props as benches, blackboards, teacher's table, dunce stool and cap, oaken bucket, and gourd dipper.

All costumes will be authentic to the period of about 60 to 70 years ago. The main character, Heseiah Pendergrass, played by C. K. Esten of the English Department, will be dressed so that any resemblance to the legendary teacher Ichabod Crane, is purely intentional.

H. W. "Bud" Barlow, dean of engineering, will once again lead his "boys" in a concert before curtain time and during intermission. All members of the band will be appropriately dressed for the affair, representing a district school band. After play time, Barlow's band will provide musical background for a good old-fashioned "hoe down".

Profits from the affair, costing 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for school age, will be used in helping raise funds to buy new uniforms for the Consolidated High School band.

Cost of admission will pay for both play and dancing afterward
