Staff Members Given Positions

Three graduating members of the The Battalion staff accepted job offers and will report for their new assignments immediately after graduation, Rolang Bing, manager of Student Publications, said today.

Bill Billingsley, co-editor, has accepted a position with the San Angelo Standard Times, one of the leading newspapers in West Texas, Bing said.

Charles Kirkham has accepted a sales position with the Gulf Publishing Company of Houston. Kirkham has been chief editorial writer for The Battalion.

Hardy Ross, head of The Battalion engraving plant, has accepted a position with the E. I. DuPont Corp. as Chemical Engineer. Ross will be located at the DuPont plant in Orange, Texas.

All graduating Battalion staff members, who wanted employment, have had an average of three or more job offers, Bing said.

Several graduating staff members have not decided what type of work they wish to do but all who sought employment have a wide range of potential employers to choose from.

Two graduating staff members, Charles Cabaniss, sports editor and Otto Kunze, news editor, have indicated that they plan to do graduate work.

Charlton has been named 1950-51 co-editor of The Commentator. Presently assistant feature editor of The Battalion, he is a junior journalism major of a Flight Air Force.

Steve Woznick Is Race Choice

Galveston, Tex., May 3—(AP)—Steve Wozniak of Buffalo, N. Y., a truck driver who made $10,000 swimming in 1949, will be a strong favorite in Galveston's five-mile Splash Day race Sunday.

The husky five-foot, six-inch strong boy who holds world's titles for distance up to 15 miles, arrived here Monday.

Wozniak stopped at Fort Worth to meet his friend, Roy Sutter of Fort Worth, with whom he swam the ten-mile Toronto championship grind in 1948. Wozniak won the race in the record time of four hours and 28 minutes.

Two other men who raced against him in Toronto, M. Sgt. Fred Cass of Clarksville, Tenn., and Eddie Ondras of Galveston, will match strokes with him here Sunday.

If the Gulf turns calm, Joe Demmer of Tyler, former University of Texas tank star, will give Wozniak a run for his money. In 1949 Demmer shattered the old Gulf record for five miles by turning in a time of one hour and 20 minutes.

Merton M. Cory To Address Tau Beta Pi

Merton M. Cory, national president of Tau Beta Pi, will be on the campus to address the Texas Delta Chapter at a meeting to be held Monday evening, Donald Jarvis, local president, announced today.

Cory, a professor of electrical engineering at Michigan State College in East Lansing, Michigan, received his Bachelor of Science degree from the University of New Hampshire in 1908, and his Master of Science degree from the University of Michigan in 1933. He was elected to the position of National President of Tau Beta Pi on December 4, 1947. Cory has been with the department of Electrical Engineering at Michigan State College since 1912.

Before the president's address, the Texas Delta Chapter will elect officers for next year. The Tau Beta Pi picnic, which is to be held on Monday, May 15, will also be discussed, Jarvis stated.

Other business will include the selection of a delegate to the national convention of Tau Beta Pi, Jarvis concluded.

All Tau Beta Pi members are requested to set Monday evening aside so that they will be able to attend the meeting, Howard W. Barlow, dean of the School of Engineering, said.

U.N. Secretary Plans Mission To Red Capital

Paris, May 4—(AP)—Secretary-General Trygve Lie announced today he is going to carry his "save the U. N." mission to Moscow May 10 and—he hopes—directly to Prime Minister Stalin.

He hopes to achieve a world conference—a meeting of the United Nations Security Council with heads of states and representatives of all U. N. members—to end the cold war and head a split he said is threatening to lead "sooner or later to a third world war."

"The most critical situation since 1945 has developed this year not only for the United Nations but for the future of the world itself," the U. N. official said in a statement to a news conference. "We are at the cross roads."

"A new and great effort must be made, I believe, and it must be begun this year to bring the cold war to an end."

BARRICADE

as was found. Dane Clark and Ruth Roman take the parts played by John and Ida, Raymond Massey is the ruthless dictator, not of a ship, but a gold mine, and Robert Douglas is the cultured chap, not a writer like Knox, but a lawyer. Instead of a besotted doctor, there is a judge who has drunk himself to degradation. And the unscrupulous cook is around, too. Roman is in a stage-coach wreck; Roman and Clark escape into the desert, only to find their water salted, etc.

By furnishing the story a western locale, the scripter has enabled himself to insert the thrilling runaway stagecoach incident, and the slam-bang fist-fight in which each participant, although kicked in the head, groin, and belly, belted with fists, rocks, and sticks, still manages to stay in there and pitch.

Dane Clark grits his teeth, Raymond Massey orles, and Ruth Roman appears on the verge of nausea throughout the film. Judging from his direction, Peter Godfrey must have sensed what the score was and decided to get even.

Allison Named Tennis' Leader of Half Century

Dallas, May 3 —(AP)—Wilmer Allison wanted to be a professional baseball player and could have signed a contract in the Texas League. But his father didn't want him in professional sports.

So Allison became a tennis player and reached the heights. He was national champion in 1935 and was on nine Davis Cup teams. He was the man Bill Tilden, the greatest tennis player of all time, said had absolutely no future in the game.

But Allison had other ideas. He made Tilden look bad with what he did. Allison won the National Collegiate championship while at the University of Texas. He recalls an amusing incident on that occasion—that is, amusing to the crowd.

So anxious was Allison to show his sportsmanship that as soon as the match ended he ran to jump the net so he might congratulate his opponent. It had rained and the court was muddy. Allison caught his foot in the net and fell flat on his face.

His first tour wasn't very promising. He played in nine tournaments and lost in the first round of each. He ended up with only his train fare home plus a nickel. He bought a candy bar and that was all the food he had returning home.

Allison, now an Austin business man, was picked almost unanimously by Texas sports writers as the greatest tennis player in this state for the 50 years—1900 to 1950.

Wilmer, who admits he sometimes was embarrassed by having his name carried as "Wilma," scored 81 points in the Texas poll to establish the greatest athletes and events of the state in the half-century.

The only other players receiving votes were Bruce Barnes and Louis Thalheimer, who also starred in tennis at the University of Texas. Barnes became a national figure in the game. Thalheimer teamed with L. N. White in 1923 and 1924 to win the National Intercollegiate doubles championships.

Squibb Gives $2,275 Grant for Research

E. R. Squibb and Sons, New York, has made available $2,275 to the Agricultural Experiment Station.

The money is to be used "for the therapeutic testing of trifloryl in the treatment of anaplasmosis in cattle," Dr. R. D. Lewis, director of the station says.

"This work is to be conducted as supplementary to our regular research project on this disease of cattle," Lewis says.
