

Consolidated Elects Officers Next Week

By HANK BUNJES

School-wide elections at A&M Consolidated are slated to be held next week to fill seven high school offices and similar vacancies in the junior high school and grammar division.

As yet only a few names have been entered in the races. Spring elections are held at the Consolidated school system the second week in May of each year and the preceding week is set aside for nominations and student campaigning.

To qualify for student offices a nominee must have a "C" average in his combined list of courses. Another qualification as stated by the school constitution calls for a petition to be signed by twenty students and approved by the administration and sent to the class president to be placed on the ballot.

Officers to be filled next week in the elections are those of the president of the respective classes, editor of the high school annual, four editors of the school paper, two senior yell leaders, two junior yell leaders, a senior business manager of the annual, and a junior business manager.

The presidents and editor of the annual must have grade averages of at least 85. The business manager nominees must have at least an 80 grade average.

All offices are filled by a plurality vote system of the student body. The election will be held by the student council and supervised by the school faculties.

Consolidated FHA Votes New Officers

Celeste Curran was elected president of the Consolidated Chapter of the Future Homemakers of America at the chapter meeting held this week.

Liz Miller was elected second vice-president for the College Station area and Louise Street was selected to the FHA camp as the Consolidated chapter nominee for district office.

Graduation Plans Made for May 26

Baccalaureate and commencement exercises are scheduled this month for the 21 A&M Consolidated High School graduates, according to Lloyd Boze, high school principal.

Reverend James Moody of the A&M Christian Church will deliver the baccalaureate address at the services to be held in the First Baptist Church in College Station, May 21 at 8 p. m.

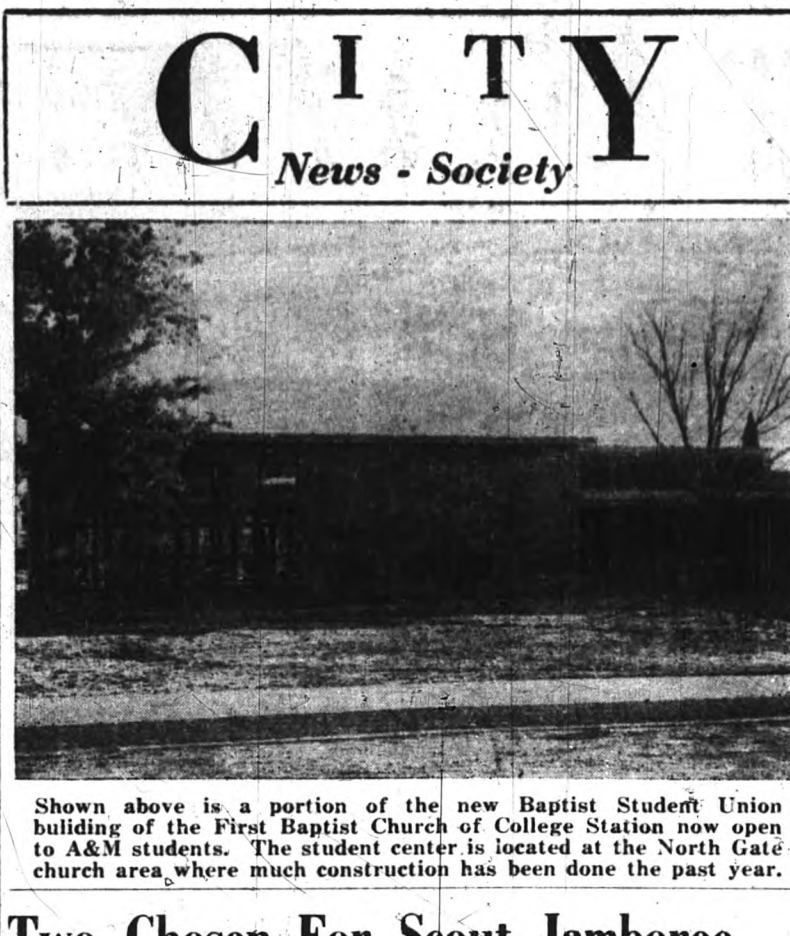

Graduation exercises are to be held in Guion Hall May 26 at 8 p. m. Dean Charles N. Shepardson of the school of agriculture will give the commencement address.

Lloyd Gay is president of the Consolidated class of 1950.

Band and Orchestra Guests at Dance Party

The members of the A&M Consolidated band and orchestra will be entertained tomorrow night at 7 on the dance slab with a skating party.

The Band Mothers Club is sponsoring the skating and dancing party. Mrs. Norman Anderson is chairman of arrangements.

Shown above is a portion of the new Baptist Student Union building of the First Baptist Church of College Station now open to A&M students. The student center is located at the North Gate church area where much construction has been done the past year.

1034 Scholastics Listed in Census

A&M Consolidated Independent District presently shows a 10.47 per cent increase in scholastics in the white schools and a three per cent increase in negro schools, according to Les Richardson, superintendent of schools.

The figures were compiled in the 1950 school census and is compared with 1949 figures. A scholastic is classified as a person of school age and eligible for schooling.

The total number of scholastics to date is 1,034. This is the first time the district has enumerated over 1,000, Richardson said. The 1940 school census listed only 704 scholastics.

Bradley and Hoffman Differ on Cold War

By J. M. ROBERTS JR.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Paul Hoffman, leader of America's economic effort in the cold war, and Gen. Omar Bradley, charged with responsibility for the nation's military safety, apparently do not see eye to eye on the world situation.

Hoffman's optimism over the prospects that Russia's postwar empire will crack under the weight of its own excesses is not shared in the State Department, either.

portunity, is generally accepted. But what will provide that opportunity?

There are plenty of anti-communists. But their opportunities for organization are limited. There is the Catholic Church, which also becomes more and more limited. The Communists well know how the purge and the police can handle such situations. They learned in Russia.

Situation Worse

"On the other hand, secretary Acheson, while not exactly endorsing General Bradley's statement that the situation is worse than it was a few months ago, did say that it was no better.

Hoffman told the U. S. Chamber of Commerce that Russia's satellites would break away from their thralldom "within the foreseeable future." Walter Lippmann told the chamber the crackup already had begun, referring to Yugoslavia. Lippmann said two years ago that the cold war was then over, and that Russia knew she had lost it.

Titoism is of course important, but Russia's losses since the war are infinitesimal compared with her gains.

Bradley told the House Armed Services Committee Tuesday, on the other hand, that the outlook in the cold war has worsened recently; that he saw no letup in Russia's "aggressive extension of Communism toward the goal of world domination."

Recognition Problem

In all talk of peace with Russia one of the great problems is whether America's traditional attitude would permit her to recognize Russian conquest of Eastern Europe as permanent, abandoning countries like Czechoslovakia and Poland to a regime which is believed fundamentally repulsive to them. That these countries would break away, given the op-

Bill Swoger, son of Col. and Mrs. Frank R. Swoger, and Philip Buchanan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Buchanan, have been chosen to represent Troop 411, College Station at the national Boy Scout Jamboree in Valley Forge next month.

These boys were selected on the basis of troop competition under way since March. Many factors were considered, including activity, attendance at meetings, advancement, attitude, service. The selection was approved by the troop members and by the troop committee.

These boys, together with boys from other troops chosen to go to the Jamboree, will meet at a "shake down" camp at the Bryan Fair grounds Friday. At that time special Jamboree camp equipment will be issued and plans for the trip discussed.

Swoger and Buchanan will be part of a group of 38 boys from Bryan, College Station, and Burleson and Robertson counties. They will have a special car all the way from Houston on June 25 across the country to Valley Forge, Washington and back through Niagara Falls and Chicago.
