Gen. Fellers Addresses Last 'Great Issues'

Gen. Bonner Fellers will make the final Great Issues lecture Monday night, May 8, at 8 p. m. in the Chemistry lecture room, Dr. Gammon, chairman of the course, announced today.

The title of his address is to be "How to Win the Cold War." Gen. Fellers was head of Psychological Warfare with MacArthur's Pacific Campaign. He made one of the most notable contributions to victory by conditioning the minds of the Japanese for defeat and surrender through the use of radio broadcasts, leaflets, airdrop news-sheets, "fifth columns," and other devices.

His concern at present is a plan for winning the "Cold War" without resort to force.

Besides serving with the Philippine Army for two years, he was also on active duty in the African desert campaign.

He spent eleven years in the Orient and crossed Russia twice, once in 1937 and again in 1938.

For two years, Gen. Fellers served as U. S. Observer of Operations with the British Forces in the Middle East. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for his clarity and accuracy of his reports.

General Fellers' lectures are open to the public without charge, Dr. Gammon said.

In the banquet room, regimental flags will be hung around the walls, and red, white, and blue streamers will adorn tables. Senate Names Two To TISA Positions

By DEAN REED

The Student Senate last night elected Allan Eubank and Charles Royalty executive vice-president and executive secretary, respectively, of the Texas Intercollegiate Students Association.

Their duties will be to handle all arrangements for the 1951 meeting of the TISA, which will be held here.

Eubank, a senior geological engineering student from Dallas, defeated Royalty, Bill Parse, and Dan Davis for the vice-presidential seat. Royalty was chosen over Parse and Davis in the second vote.

Tessie Added

A motion by Charles Kirkham to have the TSCW College Government Association name a student there to serve as corresponding secretary for the TISA executive group passed the governing body unanimously.

Three constitutional amendments were presented to the Senate for discussion. The amendments, along with one presented at the last meeting, will be voted upon in a business meeting Tuesday night, May 16. On this night the Senate will hold its end-of-the-year banquet, with the special meeting slated before the banquet.

Banquet Set

The banquet is set for 6:30 p. m., with the place to be announced later. Kirkham and Glenn Dunkle were named to plan the banquet.

First of the three amendments was to place any A&M student who is elected to an office in the TISA on the Senate as a senator-at-large, with the approval of the student body.

It further stated that a five-man committee would be appointed from the Senate to handle A&M's affairs in the TISA, with any officers from A&M in the association becoming committee members. As the situation now exists, this means that Eubank, Royalty, and Joe Fuller, Senate parliamentarian who was elected TISA parliamentarian last month, would become senators-at-large in next fall's Senate, should the amendment pass.

Long and heated discussion followed the presentation of the amendment, with most of the opposition hinging on the legality of the amendment that is, whether or not the Senate had the power to name men to three of the senator-at-large positions.

"That two of the senator-at-large positions be filled by classified juniors"—this was the second amendment. The presentation brought no discussion.

An election commission would be established under the third amendment. Composed of three members of each of the four classes, six senators, and two members of the Student Life Committee, the 20-man group would supervise all campus elections.

The amendment also asked for a secret ballot and expressed methods of vote-collecting which would insure a completely fair and unbiased election.

Chapel Supported

Kirkham made a report from the committee appointed to investigate possibilities of a campus chapel service. He said that support had been obtained from Dean M. T. Harrington, president-elect, on the idea, provided it would not interfere with scheduled church services by College Station and Bryan churches.

Ag School Names Award Winners

Freshman Drill Team Competes In Dallas Event

The Freshman Exhibition Drill Team left today for Dallas to participate in the annual Wozencraft Memorial Competition, a competitive review for all Dallas high school ROTC units established in memory of General A. B. Wozencraft. At this review awards are presented to all outstanding ROTC cadets enrolled in the Dallas high schools.

The Fish drill team, as an added feature, will unofficially compete with exhibition drill teams representing SMU, Arlington State College, and a special platoon composed of students from North Dallas, Highland Park, and Sunset high schools. According to rumors SMU is out to "show up" the Fish drill team because of the excellent showing last year's squad made.

The team, riding in busses provided by the Dallas A&M Club, is scheduled to begin competition at 5:30 in the Dal-Hi stadium. The Dallas A&M Club is also furnishing a dinner for the team, but as yet the time and place is unannounced. Busses will return Friday night after the competition.

Houston Appearance Scheduled

Tuesday, May 9, the drill team has been invited to participate in the annual Houston High School ROTC Final Review to be held at the Houston Public High School Stadium. At this review, similar to the one in Dallas, the Freshman Drill Team will again compete unofficially with the University of Houston Cullen Rifles, precision drill unit from that college.

Also attending the review will be the Fish band who will unofficially compete with the Lamar High School ROTC band, the only ROTC band in the city. The Houston A&M Club will furnish transportation for the band and drill team both to Houston and back to the Annex.

Mother's Day Exhibition

Climaxing this year's activities for the Fish Drill Team will be the annual exhibition before the Mother's Day guests, Sunday May 14, at the Annex. The team has been devising some new precision drills for this event which should make for a good show. Last year's platoon did a breathtaking exhibition for the parents and guests and this year's unit is hoping to put on an even greater exhibition of precision drills.

Edgar is a member of the Pi Theta Sigma honorary fraternity and was a member of the national freshman honor fraternity—Tau Beta Pi.

New Post

The newly created position of non-corps vice-president of the senior class was the most hotly contested election of the evening. Bob Allen, mechanical engineer from Galveston, beat Doyce Aaron out. The final count of votes showed Allen with 164 to Aaron's 135.

This post, created in a recent class meeting, is designed to give the non-corps men on the campus a better representation in class affairs. He does not occupy a seat in the Student Senate and will only vote in matters that directly concern the senior class.

Other Offices

The remainder of the class officers were filled in the election held Tuesday night. Don Joseph and Jim Pianta were elected yell-leaders for next year. Carl Moberg was elected corps representative to the athletic council.

Roy G. Nance was elected Editor of the Aggeland '51 by a unanimous decision at a class meeting last week.

He said it would be placed where "it will be an inspiration to future generations" who wish to follow in Dean Kyle's footsteps.

Announcements Crossed, Pair of Deans Get Lost

Monday night, Annex agriculture and pre-vet majors flocked to the campus theater to hear a talk by the deans of their respective schools. They all took their seats and patiently waited for the program scheduled to follow.

No speakers showed.

Tuesday night, two men walked into the theater expecting to speak to an eager audience of freshman agriculture and pre-vet majors.

No students were there.

The troubles were traced to the announcement which had been juggled. The meeting was supposed to have been held Tuesday, but the announcement was made a day early.

Latest reports from the front office inform us that Thursday night, May 11, at 6:30, Dean C. N. Shephardson and Dean Ivan R. Boughton will be out here again and make another attempt to speak to their subjects at Bryan Field.
