

MSC Rooms Filled For Home Games

All rooms in the Memorial Student Center have been reserved for home football game weekends this fall. W. A. Hill, assistant manager in charge of hotel operation, has announced.

There are a few rooms left in the Aggeland Inn, which is to be taken over by the MSC September 1, Hill said.

As yet, there has not been a capacity registration, although it is expected, for November 9, when Dr. Harrington will be inaugurated as President of the College, he added.

Among the guests already registered for this occasion are Jesse Jones, of Houston; Dr. John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State College; and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, president of Columbia University.

All rooms are air conditioned, have private bath, and room service.

Jeweler McCarty Has Only Local 'Master Diamond' Set

By FRANK DAVIS

It has been said that "one diamond can't be told from another." To show how wrong one can be, R. L. McCarty, owner and manager of K. L. McCarty, Jeweler, Watch Repairing at North Gate in College Station, will produce a set of master diamonds.

With attention focused on the master set, which he says is the only one in this area, McCarty will point out the different colors diamonds display.

With color being one of the three factors in diamond purchasing, the set of master diamonds is one of the guides which McCarty has available in his store for the selection of diamonds. Other factors to be considered in buying a diamond are the make and cut, he says.

McCarty, as the title of his store might suggest, is a watchmaker by profession, having finished at Bradley University, Peoria, Ill. in 1945. Bradley University is one of the oldest watchmaking institutions in the United States.

After finishing at Bradley, McCarty was employed in a jewelry store in Peoria, before coming to College Station in May of 1947.

One of the first things that catches the attention of anyone entering McCarty's store is a wrist watch dangling in a fish bowl located on the back counter. But before being carried away with such startling evidence, it should be remembered that McCarty's is primarily a jewelry store—not an aquarium.

He carries a complete line of lady's and men's jewelry, Hamilton and Elgin watches, Swiss watches—the latest in shockproof and waterproof, and a complete stock of loose diamonds.

An important aspect of the store is the watch repairing department. Consisting of all modern equipment which has been placed in the last three years, the department has the means wherein to repair any make of American or Swiss watch.

Strange-Looking Medicine

Anyone looking over the repair department can hardly help letting their wandering eyes come to rest on a strange looking machine which McCarty explains is used for testing watches in all of five positions.

The uninitiate can only nod and move on to the next apparatus which is used for cleaning watch parts. When the trays are removed from the machine they reveal many minute parts.

Next step will be a cabinet where parts for all makes of Swiss and American watches are kept. If you are innocent enough to ask what they all are, the outcome will probably be a hasty retreat back to the fish bowl. Here you will discover that the watch isn't intended to amuse the goldfish, but is placed there to prove the qualities of the Wyley waterproof, shockproof wrist watch.

Machine and Hand Engraving

Both machine and hand engraving are carried on at McCarty's. Mrs. McCarty, who helps her husband in the store, does the machine engraving which can put letters on anything that can be placed in the machine—watches, compacts, fountain pens, and cigarette lighters—to name a few.

After a tour through McCarty's jewelry store you can't help but feel, upon leaving the air conditioned store, that you will be back—maybe not for diamonds—but at least for a watch that needs repairing.

Franke to Discuss German Farming

The comeback of German agriculture, will be one of the subjects discussed at the Texas Writers' Conference to be held at A&M October 13-14.

Louis T. Franke, who has just returned from a two-month tour of Germany where he inspected the agricultural problem and progress in that country, will be the speaker. Franke is editor of the Extension Service at A&M.

Thompsons Vacating

John G. Thompson, associate professor of Mechanical Engineering, and family are now vacationing in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts. They are visiting Mr. Thompson's father and Mrs. Thompson's relatives.

R. L. McCarty, a watchmaker by profession, focuses his attention on another repair job as his wife looks on. McCarty's Jewelry store also carries a complete line of ladies' and men's jewelry and a complete stock of loose diamonds. Mrs. McCarty, who helps her husband in the store, does the machine engraving which can put letters on most anything.

Southern Koreans Fight Private War

By STAN SWINTON

With South Korean Marines on the Southwest front, Aug. 24—(AP)—South Korea's year-old Marine Corps is kicking the Communists around in a private war of its own in this forgotten front.

They forgot to tell the high command they were starting it, but that's all fixed up now. They fixed it up by killing so many North Koreans the high command took notice.

Inspired by the fame of U. S. Leathernecks, the cocky South Korean youngsters trained by running up and down mountains armed with bamboo spears.

The South Korean Marines fought two mainland battles and then with a raggle-taggle bunch of U. S., Japanese and captured Russian arms, they clambered into little coastal launches.

Hit Tongyong Peninsula
Four days ago they assaulted the Tongyong peninsula to the south of the American's southwest flank in an area swarming with Communists who had infiltrated behind the lines.

The next day hardboiled, 27-year-old Capt. Kim Sung Un broke the news of his assault with a message. The message: His Marines had killed 350 Communists, almost wiping out the first battalion of the 33rd Regiment of the North Korean Seventh Division. The Red regimental commander had to dress up as a farmer and ignominiously flee to escape capture.

The infant Marine Corps also took 44 prisoners of war, including two officers. Captured material included: a 122 mm cannon, two howitzers, 12 trucks and Russian-made jeeps, 15 light machineguns, 19 heavy machineguns, 29 tommy guns, 1,300 grenades, 103 rifles and two pistols.

Set up New Front
In fact, Captain Kim reported they had so much equipment now they decided they might just as well set up a new front. So the South Korean Marines held the narrow neck of the peninsula against enemy reinforcements rushing south from Kosong.

The South Koreans have two rules:
1. Fight with bayonets when you can.
2. Never shout at anyone until you can see his face.

Yesterday the North Koreans threw a counterattack against them. The Marines acted like American Leathernecks—they went in and dug the Reds out.
Look at them and its hard to tell how they fight. Each rifle seems to take a different type of ammunition. They have no artillery.

They haven't even got radios and other much needed aids. But they kill Reds. So far they have had the incredibly small casualty toll of two killed and seven wounded.
