Dove Hunting Has Reward

Dove Hunters who kill doves with bands on their legs this season may receive valuable prizes. The Texas Cooperative Wildlife Unit announced today.

The unit, through the courtesy of Oshman's Outdoor Store, Houston, is offering prizes of sporting goods merchandise valued at $10 each.

From among bands placed on doves throughout the state by unit personnel and cooperators, several numbers have been designated lucky ones. Prizes will be given hunters turning in bands bearing the lucky numbers.

The prizes are being offered as an inducement to hunters to report banded doves. From the band information may be obtained migration routes, nesting success, average length of life and other facts essential for a sound management program for the dove.

To qualify for one of the prizes, hunters should keep the bands they get from doves and send a postcard to the Texas Cooperative Wildlife Unit, Box 254 F. E., Texas A&M College, College Station. The card should give their name and address, where and when the dove was killed, and the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service number on the band.

Hunters then will be informed when and where the dove was banded, and if the band number was a lucky one, they will be requested to send it to the unit in order to collect the prize.

College Station Boasts Large And Varied Club Organization

College Station boasts of a greater number and larger variety of clubs than most cities its size. As in most cities the College Station Chamber of Commerce is one of the leading civic organizations. Marshall Burgess is the president of the organization. The immediate project of the association is to construct a sidewalk along Jersey Street for the A&M Consolidated school children. The Social Club for the women of the College is one of the oldest groups on the campus. The first object of this club is "to promote acquaintance and friendship among the women of the College."

The club is divided into interest groups which the members may join. These groups are the swimming group, neighborhood book groups, art group, foods group, handicraft group, and the newcomers group.

Officers

Mrs. Howard Barlow is the incoming president of the organization. Other officers are: Mrs. H. L. Heanton, general chairman; Mrs. Leonard Walker, secretary; Mrs. L. S. O'Bannon, vice-president and in charge of the interest groups; Mrs. Frank Anderson, treasurer; Mrs. Ross Sherwood, parliamentarian, and Mrs. James E. Poore, reporter.

The organization will have its first meeting on September 27 at the Union Building. The first meeting will be a tea in honor of the new members. All women connected with the college are eligible to become members.

The A&M Garden Club is another of the clubs which was one of the first to be established on the campus. Mrs. O. K. Smith is the president. Other officers are: Mrs. R. E. Snuggs, first vice president and program chairman; Mrs. Edward Madley is the second vice-president and flower show chairman; Mrs. D. W. Fleming, third vice-president; Mrs. Spencer Buchanan, secretary; Mrs. R. B. Hickerson, treasurer; Mrs. Marion Pugh, reporter.

Other Officers

Decorations and horticulture exhibit chairman is Mrs. D. W. Fleming; pilgrimage chairman is Mrs. George E. Potter; cemetery beautification is Mrs. D. W. Williams; horticulture fact finding, Mrs. C. B. Campbell; permanent garden calendar, Mrs. Jocko Roberts; plant exchange, Mrs. E. B. Middleton; library chairman, Mrs. Carl Landiss.

The theme for the club for the coming year will be: "Know, Grow, and Show."

The Dames Club is a club for the wives of students. Mrs. Stephen Pearce is the president of the club. Other officers are: Mrs. Walter Matzen, vice-president; Mrs. R. W. Manzel, secretary; Mrs. Arthur C. Tillotson, treasurer; Mrs. Tom Prickett, reporter.

The first meeting will be in October.

The LaVita Chapter of the Daughters of the Revolution is planning to get started early on their scrap books this year.

Their first meeting will be on September 14 at the home of Mrs. L. S. Paine. The program will be on Constitution Week and Louise Jones will be in charge.

Mrs. L. S. Paine is the president; Mrs. R. E. Patterson, vice-president; Mrs. L. L. Foracre, recording secretary; Mrs. F. B. Brown, corresponding secretary; Mrs. R. E. Callendar, registrar; Mrs. J. M. Nance, treasurer; and Mrs. John W. Mitchell, chaplain.

The club will stress the correct use of the flag.

Church Council

College Station Council of Churches has been sponsoring a series of broadcasts during the summer featuring various guest speakers.

The council will elect officers at their meeting on November 3. The present officers are Mrs. O. F. Allen, president; Mrs. T. W. Lehm, vice-president; Mrs. E. Hertz, second vice-president; Mrs. E. T. Middleton, recording secretary; Mrs. A. G. Edmonds, treasurer; Mrs. T. G. Burdock, reporter; Mrs. G. S. Fraps, historian; Mrs. R. R. Lancaster, parliamentarian.

The program for their November 3 meeting will concern World Community Day.

The College Station-Bryan Rotary Club has in its membership many of the College faculty. Joe Vincent is president of the club.

George W. "Skipper" Schlesselman, vice-president; Gene Humbert, secretary-treasurer; Dutch Dillingham, sergeant at arms; Russ Hillier, editor of the Merry-go-Round.

The board of directors consists of O. W. Kelley, S. A. Lynch, H. W. Barlow, Tad Moses, Marion Pugh, W. H. Ritchey, A. H. Waldrop, W. E. Street, Joe E. Vincent, Gene Humbert, G. W. Schlesselman, and George E. Potter.

The American Association of Universities is an active organization on the campus. Mrs. A. W. Melloh is president of the local chapter.

Campus Study Club

The Campus Study is another well established club which has many of the faculty wives within its membership. Mrs. Lynn Gee

Caudill's Architecture Featured in Colliers

The work of William W. Caudill, research architect of the Texas Engineering Experiment Station—a film entitled "Building for Learning"—provided guidance to the citizens of Blackwell in determining their needs.

Touching on Caudill's earlier efforts with school building planning after he began as an instructor in the A&M College Architecture Department, it makes special mention of the Engineering Experiment Station's bulletin "Space for Teaching," in which he advanced his case for good schools.

how a document of the Texas Engineering Experiment Station—a film entitled "Building for Learning"—provided guidance to the citizens of Blackwell in determining their needs.

Touching on Caudill's earlier efforts with school building planning after he began as an instructor in the A&M College Architecture Department, it makes special mention of the Engineering Experiment Station's bulletin "Space for Teaching," in which he advanced his case for good schools.

The bulletin advised school boards to insist on big windows to give school children lots of natural light, to put long overhangs over the windows to keep out the glare of direct sunlight.

It showed how to build schools to take advantage of prevailing breezes, but protect play areas from winter winds. Pointing out that teaching methods had changed from stiff, regimented recitations to more relaxed group activities, it showed how the classroom also could be made more flexible and homelike.

Caudill now is pushing school building research harder than ever, the magazine points out; he wants to build schools that are even better.

Woods Gets Masters

Robert Porter Wood of College Station, received his advanced degree, master of science in accounting, at A&M's August 25 graduation.
