Miss Richter, John Winder Married Here

In a candle light service Miss Luella Richter became the bride of John Winder recently in the YMCA Chapel at College Station, the Rev. Fred Megebroff, officiating.

For the double ring ceremony the altar of the chapel was adorned with groupings of ferns and palms and lighted with a myriad of white tapers in floor candelabras.

Miss Richter is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Richter of College Station. Winder is the son of Mrs. Molly T. Winder of Henderson.

The couple honeymooned in Houston and Louisiana. They returned to College Station and their home in College View.

A graduate of the Stephen F. Austin High School, the bride also studied at McKenzie-Baldwin Business College and was working in the office of the superintendent of A&M Consolidated High School. Mrs. Winder will hold her position at the high school until Winder finishes his degree at A&M.

Dr. Youngblood Retires After 21 Years with College

Former Aggie, agricultural economist, soldier, rancher, and agricultural experiment station pioneer, Dr. Bonney Youngblood, recently retired from his duties as Principal Economist in the Office of Experiment Stations in the USDA.

Dr. Youngblood served as Director of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station from 1911 until 1923. The story of his life work was featured at the national meeting of the Rural Sociological Society held last week at Estes Park, Colorado, where, on September 3, Dr. Youngblood delivered his valedictory as sponsor for the organization.

A&M Graduate

Dr. Youngblood was born on July 31, 1881, on a stock farm near Milano, in Milam County, Texas. He received his B. S. in 1902 and his M. S. in 1907 from A&M and his Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin in 1921. He came to the A&M campus a war veteran, having served in the First Texas Volunteer Infantry in the Spanish-American War.

Upon his graduation from A&M in 1902, he became manager of the Smith Ranch, near Sherman, Texas. He was a school head at Henderson and at Mineola, Texas, and at Paul's Valley, Oklahoma, at which places he introduced, for the first time in either of these states, the teaching of agriculture in the public schools. From 1907 to 1911 he was in charge of farm management investigations in the United States Department of Agriculture.

From 1911 to 1926 Dr. Youngblood was Director of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at College Station. During his administration the total state and federal appropriations for the TAES grew from $29,000 in 1910 to $670,000 in 1928, and the work of the Station grew to include the Ranch Experiment Station near Sonora, the first of its kind to be established by a state government institution; the inauguration of soil and water conservation research at the station at Spur; the development of the Rio Grande Valley Citrus Experiment Station at Weslaco, and the Irrigation Experiment Station near Wichita Falls. In his efforts to make the Ranch Station at Sonora the research and social center of the Edwards Plateau region—to bring science and the spirit of youth to bear upon the technical, economic, and social problems of the area—he helped organize the Texas Sheep and Goat Breeders Association and established an annual meeting of the ranch people called the Ranchmen's Roundup at the Ranch Experiment Station.

Farm Management Research

Early in his administration Dr. Youngblood proposed and obtained funds for farm management research which gradually evolved into the Department of Farm and Ranch Economics research. Before biochemists were available, he employed mathematicians to improve the planning of research undertakings and the interpretation

District Governor Hugh M. Sandlin will be the presiding officer at the convention. Sandlin is a Holdenville, Okla. attorney. During the process of the meeting of officers will be elected, committees will hold conferences and plans for the coming year will be discussed, Motherall said.
