Truman Presents Plan For Civilian Defense

Washington, Sept. 19.—(AP)—President Truman laid before Congress the blueprint for a vast civil defense program to rally the nation from an atomic attack and enable it to strike back swiftly and destroy the aggressor.

The program outlines a mutual air system reaching into every American home and calling for hundreds of thousands of paid and unpaid workers.

Mr. Truman called it a "sound and workable" plan for coping with "the potential damage of devastating modern weapons."

He asked Congress to set up a civil defense administration and pass legislation needed to get the program started.

The President will create a temporary civil defense administration to serve until Congress acts. He also urged state and local officials "move ahead rapidly" with their own planning in line with the national program.

Officials said the program would cost millions, perhaps billions. It will take about two years to get the program into high gear.

As to the need for such a program: "For the first time since the war of 1812, said National Security Chairman W. Stuart Symington, 'an enemy has the power to attack our cities, and for the first time in history that attack may come suddenly, with little or no warning.'"

"Granted a few minutes' warning," said the report, "casualties could be reduced by over 50 per cent through proper organization and training."

No Sure Defense

"Since there can be no absolute military defense, an effective civil defense is vital to the future security of the United States because it might provide the means where-

ASCE Slates Dinner Honoring Its President

Ernest E. Howard, president of the American Society of Civil Engineers, and other officers of the organization will be honored at a dinner at A&M Sept. 26.

Hosts for the dinner in the new Memorial Student Center will be the Brazos County branch and the J. T. L. McNew student chapter of the ASCE.

To be present besides Howard are Fred C. Scoby of Berkeley, Calif., vice president of the Western zone; C. Glenn Cappel of New Orleans, director of the Texas-Louisiana-New Mexico district, and Lowber D. Snow, of Houston, president of the Texas section of the society.

Howard, who has served the ASCE as director and vice president as well as president, will be principal speaker at the dinner meeting.

$209 Paid City In Traffic Fines

Citizens of College Station paid $209 for 43 traffic violations during the month of August reported Raymond L. Rogers, College Station city manager.

Leading violation was speeding which accounted for 16 fines. Illegal parking was next with 15, followed by seven failures to stop for stop signs and three cases of drivers operating without a license.

Said Curtis E. Bullock, patrolman, "The speed limit within the city limits is 30 miles per hour with the exception of school zones where a 20 mile limit prevails."

Residents of College Station can reach police either at 4-7004 or 4-1228.

Youngsters to Run City Hall for Day

College Station youngsters will have a chance to take their try at city government when they move into City Hall Sept. 22.

They'll be running the whole show that particular day under the sponsorship of the Kiwanis Club. The plan is part of an observance of National Children's Day.

Students of A&M Consolidated will elect the various civic officials soon. After their short tour of duty, the kids will give a personal account of their activities while in office. The reports are planned for Sept. 25 at the Kiwanis Club's first session in the new Memorial Student Center.

by this country, if suddenly attacked heavily and without warning, could get up off the floor to fight back."

The NSRB's master plan calls for civil defense eventually to take over from the Air Force the present air raid warning system. Then it parcels out to government bodies the responsibility for all the things to be done in case of attack—from rescue of the wounded to shelter of the homeless.

Local Job

Basically, it's a job for local authorities with the states providing leadership and supervision and the federal government making national policy and training key personnel.

But today's report said with heavy emphasis that states and communities must be ready to help each other quickly and efficiently with mobile, ready-to-travel emergency equipment.
