

SWC Predictions --

SMU Power Not Enough, 14-21

Although this is the other game which we said may go either way, we're forced to stick with Ohio State to win over the Mustangs, 21-14. Another thing which we would like to stick our neck out on, Killer Kyle Rote won't be the star of the show, win or lose for the Ponies, and that Bill Forrester will get his first big chance.

TCU Sneaks Past Okie A&M, 14-6

It will be about the same as last week when the Horned Frogs slipped past Kansas to win again, and we pick the Christians, 14-6. The Cowpokes with a 208-pound average line will be just as rough as they were last week against the Poikers, but we're depending on the "Dutch" to fix everything up for us.

Santa Clara Over Rice, 21-6

It's a mean thing to say about a school that is opening up a sparkling new stadium which will seat 70,000, but the Santa Clara Broncos are one of the better teams on the coast and should take the Owls, 21-6.

In 1943 the SMU Ponies thumped the Broncos solid, that is 33-0, but the Mustangs named Fullback Sax-on Wraith to their all-opponent team, and the Californian will

Razorbacks to Click Over NTS, 14-0

The Razorbacks let us down last week when the Oklahoma Aggies, upset the favored Porkers, 12-7, and this week we place Arkansas over North Texas State, 14-0.

Arkansas seems to have the necessary manpower in every department, and a top coach, but they are not yet a team. Practically everything should go right for the Hogs this weekend, although NTS

Baylor Bears to Clip U of H, 20-6

Coach George Sauer will be seeking his first win with the Bruins tomorrow at the new Baylor Stadium, and things should start looking better for the Bears with the return of Halfback Buddy Parker. Parker had been debating the subject of signing a pro baseball contract, and missed almost all of workout season.

After their upset loss last week, either the Bears have less than everyone anticipates or they're awailing. This should give the back with the team again this year.

Although no one from the big city seems to realize it, the fact remains that last year's SWC Champs were built on a solid foundation of seven men, the line. No line, no Rice, we feel that way.

We hope we're wrong, but the Bruins seem to have the necessary power and reserves to go all the way, 21-6.

will be looking for a win after losing last week to mighty Kentucky.

Coach Otis Douglas has undoubtedly been putting the boys through the paces the last few days, and we really look for Arkansas to take the smaller eleven by an even larger score, but we'll just wait and see.

Bears the chance they need and although the University of Houston is claiming a fairly good team we're looking for the Wacoans to defeat the Houstonians, 20-6.

Parkers' return should help the Bruins, but unless the pass defense of the Bruins is improved, we may lose again. Bob Rogers will be the Cougars big gun, and from our sources of information, he can toss the pigskin with unmeasurable accuracy.

Night school classes in Shorthand, Typing and Bookkeeping will begin October 16 at 7 p.m. For further information call 3-6655.

To get the necessary men, Cates said, some were taken from Security Forces at naval bases. Some were veterans of World War II and joined the division sent to Korea without any refresher training.

"The thing that's remarkable is the way that division was assembled," the General said.

"It was thrown together and it made a damn good team."

He put present strength of the Marine corps at 120,000 and said he hoped to reach authorized strength of 160,000 men by the end of this year.

"There is no plan whatsoever for releasing reserves" he said.

"International circumstances do not warrant releasing anyone."

Brush Countrymen Select Officers

James E. Gault, senior ag ed student from Agua Dulce, was elected president of the Brush Country Club at the first meeting of the club for the current school year, Thursday night, Sept. 28.

Frank Prochaska, junior ag ed major from Robstown, was picked as vice-president and Anton Bockholts junior agronomy major from Robstown named secretary. Allen Risinger, senior ag ed major from Danquette was named treasurer.

Bob Hughson, senior business student from Agua Dulce was picked as reporter, and Keith Patton, senior business major from Agua Dulce elected social secretary.

The club consists of students from South Texas.

Reservists Now In Marines Will Have to Stay

Pearl Harbor, Sept. 29—The U.S. Marine Corps, which scrambled men together from as far away as the Mediterranean to meet the Korean emergency, intends to keep all reservists in uniform. Its commander made that clear yesterday.

"Korea has shown us the necessity of having ready forces available to fight anywhere," said Gen. Clifton B. Cates on a stopover enroute to Korea.

The general said the corps' fighting arm, the Fleet Marine Force numbered only about 25,000 when the Reds invaded South Korea June 25.

Experiment Station Gets Grant-in-Aid

A check for $5,700 renewing a grant-in-aid to the Agricultural Experiment Station, has been received. The money will be used for carrying on poultry improvement work, according to Dr. R. D. Lewis, station director, announces.

The fund is from the Texas Poultry Improvement Association of Stephenville. J. K. Williams of Denison is president and T. A. Hensarling is executive secretary of the association.

Social List Boots Vaughan, Other Washington Bigwigs

Washington, Sept. 29—(AP)—"The social list of Washington" came out yesterday with its 20th annual edition.

The press release announcing the book noted that the name of Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, the President's military aide, had been dropped. As usual, no reason for the omission was given.

The book, which sells for $12.50, is published by Carolyn Hagner Shaw.

Vaughan displayed unconcern over the omission of his name.

"I never missed my name," he said, "because I didn't know I ever was in it."

The book also omits the names of some other prominent persons, obviously because they no longer hold official posts and have moved out of town. These include Louis Johnson, former Secretary of Defense; Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, former Undersecretary of Commerce, and Admiral Louis A. Denfeld, former Chief of Naval Operations.

year, new equipment, new strategy, and different playing methods are introduced. In order to better protect the players from injury, new rules are adapted.

Curtis, who began his SWC officiating in 1929, brought out the most important rule changes.

● A line clearly marked around each playing field, which restricts all persons other than players to not cross. This rule was established because many spectators, mostly reporters and photographers, were injured last season.

● An extra point kickoff variation which permits a team fouled while trying for extra point an advantage of from five to fifteen yards on the kickoff. This rule is effective, whether the point is made or not.

● The extra point holder is now protected. A defensive player must not touch the ball holder. This also applies to the punter and passer.

● The free catch has been omitted. A player receiving a punt or kickoff is now subject to immediate tackle if he catches the ball.

● The clipping penalty has been changed, in that a blocker is permitted to contact an opponent from the rear, if it is above the waist.

● Punts received in the end zone may now be run out, without an automatic touchback being called.

● No blocking with the forearm is permitted above the shoulders.

● Pile "times-out" in each half instead of four.

Stiteler explained why so many secret practice sessions behind locked gates were called. "We do this not because we are practicing on a secret play or maneuver.

Reason for Secrecy

"We have full confidence in our student body. If you were out there on the field with one of your best friends watching you, it would be embarrassing to you when we criticized you for not carrying a play out in the right method. That's why we call so many secret sessions."

The crowd was highly receptive to Abb Curtis, who pointed out why football rule changes were made for 1950.

"Many fans have wondered why football changes a lot of its rules annually while, on the other hand, baseball remains the same from year to year," he said.

"Football is a body contact game, and with the passing of every been ranked third in the nation, and their line is ranked with the best.

The audience was both amused and surprised when Stiteler said "Texas only gained 120 yards rushing against Tech, while the Raiders made 235 yards against the Longhorns. Then this means that Tech has the best line in the country," was the coy conclusion.
