Consolidated Band To Drill At VMI Game Tomorrow

By LEON McCLELLAN

A&M Consolidated's maroon and white uniformed band will march onto Kyle Field tomorrow night during the halftime of the game.

This is the first year that the 40-piece band has performed in any marching or other field activities, according to Col. Richard J. Dunn, bandmaster. For the performance in Kyle Field the group will start from the North goalpost and march as far as the 50-yard line to a march entitled "Envoy." The two and one-half minutes time allowed will be taken up with a very simple and short performance, Col. Dunn added.

Because of the smaller members, the cadence of their marches and other songs are fast. There are members in the band from the sixth-grade on up, and the number of boys and girls is almost equal.

So far this year, the Consolidated band has given only one performance, in Waller. They are expected to perform during all of the district games, Col. Dunn said.

While learning, the band first studies the formation from black-board illustrations, and then goes on the field for practice. The group practices each morning, Monday through Friday, for one hour.

This period is called "music period" at Consolidated. There are few other practices for them, and few other drill periods, for the afternoons are taken up by the beginners.

The beginning group at Consolidated is composed of members from the fifth-grade on down, and numbers approximately fifty. They practice in two groups, one on Mondays and Thursdays and the other on Tuesdays and Fridays, Col. Dunn said.

The band received its uniform late this summer, just in time for first performance. Although it has been organized and playing only at school meetings and other functions of this nature for three years, this is the band's first appearance before a large audience.

They are among the six bands selected to perform during the half-time period tomorrow night.

Consolidated School also has a string orchestra of the junior symphony type which numbers eighteen pieces and has given several performances and concerts locally.

The band will not begin its concerts until next spring, after the football games are over, and their schedule of events will then be made up, Col. Dunn added.

Last year the string orchestra gave five concerts, among which were one for the Kiwanis Club at Sbis Hall, and others in the YMCA and Duncan Hall.

Col. Dunn, the music instructor at Consolidated, has been in College Station approximately seventy-five years and is a veteran of the Army for 52 years. He served during the "Mexican Invasion," the "Philippine Insurrection," the Spanish-American War, and World War I. He retired in 1924.

He and Mrs. Dunn claim Arizona as their home, although presently they reside at 119 Highland Street in College Station.

Aggie Senior Speaks To Consolidated Group

Consolidated A&M's student body heard an address by Rafael Casas yesterday morning on life in Venezuela as compared with the American way of doing things.

Casas, an A&M senior dairy husbandry student from Maracaibo, Venezuela, opened his address with a description of his homeland from a geographical viewpoint.

He deplored the fact that people of the United States know so little about South America. People in the United States know a little about Canada and Mexico, but after they get as far South as Mexico they figure that they know all about South America too.

When Casas told about the educational system in South America, he said that it was very different from the one used in this country.

Can't Choose Courses

"In Venezuela, the students have no choice of the courses they would like to take. Every one takes certain prescribed courses," said Casas.

Students there go for three months without exams of any kind and then they are given an exam. Instead of just taking a written exam as it is done here, they are given a written, oral, and practical exam.

The exams are given by four instructors, the instructors in the course and three others.

Families in South America are much larger as a rule than those in the United States, Casas said.

King-Sized Families

"Six to eight children are average for a family there while the average number of children in the United States is two and a half," the South American pointed out. Almost anything that is done by American youths in courtship is just the opposite of what is done in Venezuela.

Courtship in South America is very formal according to Casas. When a boy starts dating a girl he usually calls her "miss" for about three months before he calls her by her first name.

The parlor dates commence with the boy shaking his hands when he arrives and when she sees him to the door after the date they again shake hands. On regular dates some member of the girls family must go along as chaperon, Casas said.

Casas was invited to speak by the F.H.A. girls at Consolidated according to Mrs. W. K. Frey, sponsor.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.
