

Students Set CHS Bonfire Yell Practice

A bonfire is being built on the A&M Consolidated School Campus. It will be lit during a pre-game yell practice Thursday at 6 p. m., Principal L. E. Boze said today.

People wishing to attend the Junior High game in Madisonville may do so, and also attend the bonfire and yell practice at Consolidated before leaving, he added.

A truck was used yesterday to haul material to the spot in front of the gym where the bonfire is being constructed.

Efforts to have the yell-practice broadcast over KORA are being made.

A poster contest similar to the ones held at A&M is being run in conjunction with the pre-game activities. Posters must be four by four feet or larger in order to qualify, and the winning poster-designer will receive a prize. If the winner is a boy he will be given the choice of a fishing rod or a tennis racket, and if a girl, she may choose between the tennis racket, or an album of records, Boze added.

A five character skit entitled "Tiger Spirit" was presented this morning during a special yell-practice. The yell-practice was led by the senior yell-leaders at ten o'clock.

Three chartered buses will be to Bastrop for the game. The buses will stop on the way so those going may eat supper, Boze said.

Final ID Photos Slated Wednesday

All students who do not have a student identification card should report to the Photographic and Visual Aids Laboratory between 1 p. m. and 5:30 p. m. Wednesday Oct. 25 to get photo and signature made.

The Athletic Department states that it will not sell tickets to the Baylor game without identification cards. Identification cards will also be required to get in the stands at Baylor Saturday.

Students will not be admitted to future contests on Kyle Field without ID cards, Bones Irvin, athletic director said.

Cards which are made Wednesday may be picked up in 100 Goodwin Hall Friday afternoon. Wednesday will be the last chance for a student to have a card made.

Mrs. Ash ---

Mrs. Ash discussed table settings she had seen in her travels. Some of the places she saw unusually attractive table settings were the home of the Countess Montgomery outside of Paris; the Geoffrey Keith-Rose home in London; and the Netherlands Embassy in Washington.

Europeans are more sensible in their table settings than Americans because they are, as a rule, more practical in that they use materials in their table settings that can be used again or eaten Mrs. Ash said.

After her lecture, Mrs. Ash showed five floral arrangements that she had designed. They included a study in color, a stylized design which uses the color as mass and form without regard to the way the plant grows; a horizontal design, a Japanese line design which symbolizes heaven, man, and earth through the use of three lines, and what Mrs. Ash called an "everything left over" design.

The meeting of the Garden Club executives adjourns this afternoon.

Cushman will head the general session, while Williams will follow Thomason's speech with a group discussion of employee education.

Civilian defense was described at the convention yesterday as "the missing link in the nation's preparedness program."

William L. McGill of Austin, state coordinator of civil defense and disaster relief, told the group:

"Most current and insistent problems facing municipalities in this country today is the protection of our people and the maintenance
