

History-Making Graduates—A&M's Generals of World War II

George F. Moore, '08
Major General

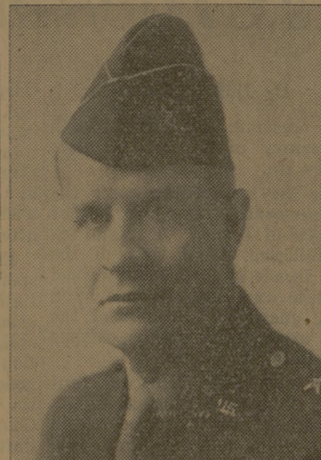

Andrew D. Bruce, '16
Major General

Harry H. Johnson, '17
Major General

Percy W. Clarkson, '15
Major General

Roderick R. Allen, '15
Major General

Bennett Puryear, Jr., '06
Major General

Robert B. Williams, '23
Major General

Howard C. Davidson, '11
Major General

CONGRATULATIONS

President Harrington

and

BEST WISHES

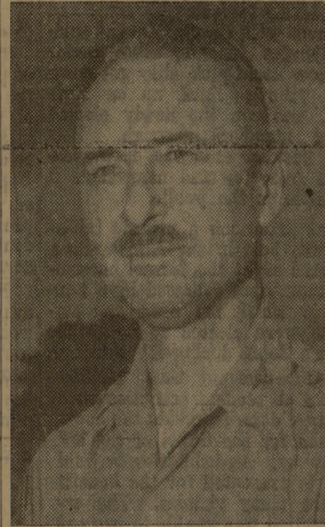

for

YOUR SUCCESS

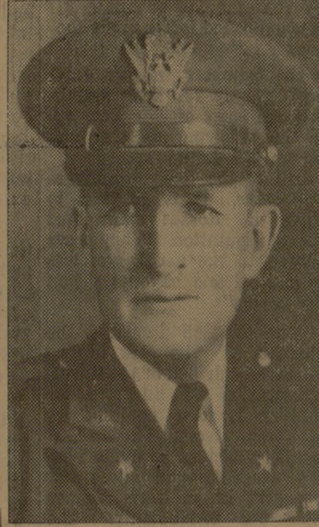

DONAHO BUICK COMPANY

O. B. Donaho

BRYAN, TEJAS

Aubrey Moore, '23
Brigadier General

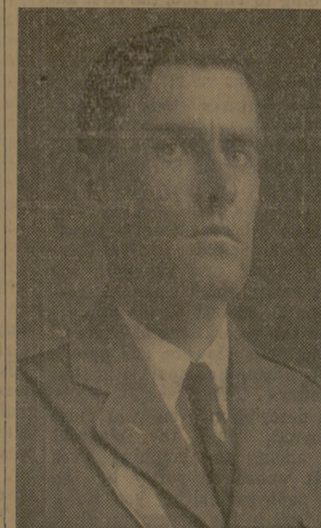

Oscar B. Abbott, '13
Brigadier General

John A. Warden, '08
Brigadier General

William C. Lee, '27
Brigadier General

W. E. Farthing, '14
Brigadier General

Ralph H. Wooten, '16
Brigadier General

South Mourns Ross' Death -

(Continued from Page One
this Section)

before him and that every word he uttered was being treasured up against a day of need; you never heard him speak as you cadet corps and I, their chaplain, have here at the early morning hour of chapel service.

"With some incident from his own boy life, or some treasured memory of his active public service as a text, you young men remember how he would teach, encourage, probe, advise, with all the earnestness of a father, all the sympathy of a friend; it is your loss if his counsels have not gone home and made you truer men to yourselves, your parents, and your God."

On his death, January 4 of 1890, addresses were made throughout the state and letters of condolence from all parts of the South poured into the College. One of these, written by Commanding General J. B. Gordon of the United Confederate Veterans in New Orleans, read: "Taps has again sounded for one of the most conspicuous actors of the drama of 1861-65. . . . Clad as she is today in habiliments of woe and bowed in sorrow and grief, Texas does not mourn alone her favorite son, for at this moment in palatial residences and in humble homes in her sister states of Louisiana, Arkansas, Tennessee, Mississippi, Georgia, Alabama, and wherever his bright blade flashed and the deeds of the brave are sung, his name is reverently spoken and the story of the great Texan told, and the sorrow is deep and profound; for the death of the 'Little Texas Cavalryman,' whose plume was always seen dancing upon the crest of battle. . . ."

Ross' last words are chronicled by his son: "about six o'clock, he suddenly roused up and looked around. He seemed to recognize us all and Dr. Fountain asked, 'Governor, how do you feel?' He glanced at Dr. Fountain and then closing his eyes, he said 'well, I feel like a new man. And I guess I am one.'"

'A&M ROTC Is Most Complete In Nation'

Feb. 28, 1942.—The most complete ROTC school in the nation was the acknowledgement given A&M Friday with the approval of A&M's quartermaster ROTC training by Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson.

Brigadier General Frank E. Lowe, executive for the army's reserve and ROTC units, stated in a letter to President Walton. "This will cause your institution to have the only ROTC unit in the country, at present, at least, where all branches of the ROTC are represented."

This further establishes A&M's position as the largest military school in the nation by giving it a complete military training curricula in the branches of field artillery, infantry, engineers, chemical warfare, coast artillery, cavalry, signal corps, and now, the quartermaster corps.

Harvard University was the only ROTC school which heretofore trained officers for the quartermaster corps. Under the same orders which gave this training to A&M, the University of Alabama, Michigan State, and the University of Washington will also offer this type of training.

A minimum of 50 students must enroll in the course and no more than 100 may be enrolled at one time. All students in the school must have completed two years basic training and must be able to meet the requirements for second lieutenant in the Quartermaster reserve before attaining the age of 30. The training will cover a two year period.

FIXTURES for the Gift Shop and Main Lounge and Fountain Room in the Memorial Student Center Building were manufactured

by

HOUSTON SHOWCASE and MFG. COMPANY

3500 Center Street

Houston, Texas

We Designed The FIRST AGGIE RING!

We own and control dies for Aggie Rings for the years 1900 through 1935. Ex-Students are invited to contact us if their ring has been misplaced or if they wish to purchase a new one.

We sincerely wish Dr. M. T. Harrington a long and successful career as president of A. & M. College.

Caldwell Jewelers

Bryan, Texas

Congratulations, Texas A & M College, on 75 Years of Service to State and Nation

Fisher Construction Co.

GENERAL CONTRACTORS

4711 Greeley - P. O. Box 6127 - JUSTIN 2427

HOUSTON 6, TEXAS

Member, The Associated General Contractors of America

A Million Tributes From Lester's To A&M For 75 Good Years

Your achievements have been manifold. . . . Your progress, beyond the imagination of your founders. Our pride in you is great.

After 16 years of service, Lester's has taken its rightful place as the leader of fashion in this area. To keep the treasured position, we constantly strive toward bettering our service and making sure our merchandise is of the highest quality.

Lester's
Smart Shop
Bryan