Harper Clifford, Newstrom and White, swung a 6-0 win over I AF. Airmen stars were Hanson, Zerano and Bremberry.

A 75-yard sprint by Martinez for a TD, was one of the highlights in B QMC's 12-0 victory over A CAC. The other TD came on a pass from Hink to Bredthour. Maxwell was like a rock in the B QMC line while Lockhard and Edwards were strong for coast artillery men.

A Vets took the measure of D FA by the tune of 13-0. Galla, Simpson and Shultz were instrumental in the Vet win. M. Dacis, Bill Bethea and C. L. Ross fought well for the losers.

A Chem won a forfeit over E Sen.

Basketball

Although his team lost, Fisbeck was the top mural basketballer in points scored. He collected 10 markers while Meinsheimer of the winners got 5. Garver and Jones sank 4 points apiece to aid B Comp edge BTC, 17-16.

C Inf ran over E AF, 25-4. Goffin with 7, and Rollins with 5, were the big guns in this infantry win. H AF hustled out a win over B Inf., 16-7. Taylor scooped 9 and Sexton 5 to lead the scorers for the airmen. Graff collected 4 for the padfeet.

Scoring 7 and 4 points respectively, Moses and Selleck, looked good as A Inf took A FA 15-6. Martin scored 2 for the losers.

B Ath were rolling in their 25-9 slaying of A Comp. Sharp shooters for the Athletics were Joe Eeette-8, Jack Brankley-6, and Jerry Lastersch-6. Francis made two-thirds of his team's total points by meshing 6 markers.

C AF won over D Inf, 13-8. John Sterrie was high for the victors with 4 while Mike Lindner collected 6 for D Inf.

The basketballers of E Inf doubled the A QMC players 18-9. G. B. Rush and Wert Lane, both with 5 markers apiece, lead the sharp shooters of the winning E Inf. Willey-3, and Bruchmiller-2, paced the losers.

F AF won a forfeit over B Cav.

Ford Discovered Stars

Godfathers, "She Wore a Yellow Ribbon" and "Wagonmaster."

His current production, "Rio Grande" is the first Argosy release through Republic Pictures. Ford, incidentally, can take credit for setting up both his proposed co-travelers in their current careers.

Lovely Maureen O'Hara had been acting long before she met Ford, but the starring role in his "How Green Was My Valley" was her final boost to Hollywood stardom. He chose her for the part about a year after she came to this country from England.

Born in Dublin, Ireland, she made her first stage appearance at the age of five and a radio debut as a 12-year-old. At 14 she enrolled in the well-known Abbey Theatre School where her talented acting indirectly won her a first screen appearance in "Jamaica Inn."

Her success in this initial role won her a bid to come to America in 1941 to play the leading role in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." Ford signed her for his film shortly thereafter.

An eight year film career has found her in straight drama, high comedy and fantasy. Her current appearance in "Rio Grande" is as the wife of John Wayne.

The familiar Wayne very directly owes his screen start to director Ford. The six-foot-four man with the slow drawl was, like his discoverer, a prop-man when Ford boosted him to a dramatic career.

Born Marion Michael Morrison at Winterset, Iowa, John landed in Los Angeles at an early age and set about to become a high school football hero and a debating champ. Later, attending the University of Southern California on a scholarship, he became a star Trojan tackle.

It was during summer vacations that he worked as a prop-man at Fox studios and struck up an acquaintance with Ford. Ford induced a friend to cast Wayne as the top role in "The Big Trail," a non-too-successful undertaking. It was a start, though, and led to later lesser pictures and a lead in the Republic "Three Mesquites" series in 1933.

Ford stepped back into the picture in 1939 to borrow the strapping lad for lead in the Academy Award Winner, "Stagecoach." With success thus won, Wayne went on to such notables as "Reap the Wild Wind," "They Were Expendable," "Fort Apache" and "She Wore a Yellow Ribbon."

Last year's "Sands of Iwo Jima" won him a nomination for the Academy Award. In his current "Rio Grande" role Wayne is Col Yorke of the U. S. Cavalry. The picture is set in Texas.

The Military Ball appearance will afford each of the Hollywood trio a first look at Aggeland.

come quite a way this season, but as they turn into the final lap, the picture hasn't seemed to change a bit. Rice looms as another "sleeper"—you know, has Memorial Stadium.

But this is what worries us. When A&M gained Williamson's ninth spot on October 18th we wrote that "The taste of ninth position is sweet but it is also something to worry about."

In weeks past such 'favorites' of PBW as Notre Dame, UCLA, and Will Aggies Slip Again?

Now since then, such other Williamson "favorites" as Washington, Stanford, Vanderbilt, Rice, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Miami, Tennessee and Wisconsin have all slipped from their big ten.

Again A&M is faced with a seemingly inferior team, and again the Maroon and White has reached high pinnacles to become overwhelming favorites against Rice. The situation is shaping up exactly the same way as it was three weeks ago, but there is one distinction this time—Williamson will have to keep A&M among the big boys whether he likes it or not. Like so many great teams the Aggies had to be beaten before they realized the dog wasn't dead, but again like so many great teams, from here out A&M is ready to respect the animal until that last breath is drawn.

A twelve pound ham will be awarded to the holder of the lucky number program during the show.

Three posters were placed on the south side of College Station yesterday afternoon after the judging of a poster contest held in the Elementary School. There were winners in grades one through five.

Winning Posters

The five winning Pet Show posters were drawn by Judy Mills, James Baldauf, and Tamara Lee Richardson, first-grade; Jay Pruitt second-grade; Terry Curran, third-grade; Robert Parsons, fourth-grade; and John Bennett Hamner, fifth-grade.

Hot dogs and cold drinks will be sold at the show. Concession stands will be arranged in and around Tiger Field, said Ray Berry, concessions manager.

Judging of entries will follow the parade scheduled for 6:45 p. m. The judging of large, long-haired pure-bred dogs, over 20 lbs, will start the contest.

Short-Hair Dogs Follow

Rat Eradication Campaign Meet Set Wednesday

Instruction in rodent eradication will be given in a meeting Wednesday morning at 8 a. m. in Room 11 of the Civil Engineering Building, Col. H. L. Boatner, chairman of the Sanitary Board, announced.

Representatives of departments of the College, business establishments, and other interested persons are requested to attend the short meeting.

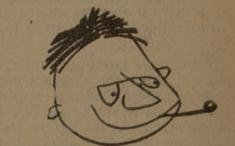

Rat poison has been obtained and will be supplied at no cost. Application of the poison and results will be supervised and checked by L. E. Winder, Sanitary Inspector of the College.

Residents of the City of College Station who need rat bait will be able to obtain it free of charge at the City Office.

A previous campaign last May was very successful, but careful follow-up is necessary for the rat eradication campaign to be effective, Col. Boatner said. The eradication program was originally started because rapid increase in rats was becoming a menace to the health of College Station residents.

The success of the present campaign will be negligible if the rats are exterminated in one area, and allowed to inhabit other areas, and thus return later to their old haunts, Col. Boatner continued.
