

Wounded, Battle Fatigued Marines Face Cold, Guns

By TOM STONE

Koto, Korea, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Little Koto was a darkened tent city tonight of courageous U. S. Marines and soldiers whose fate rests with providence.

They are surrounded by overwhelming forces of a determined enemy. They are burdened with crippled tanks, vehicles and guns. They are half frozen from bitterly cold winds that sweep in from the frigid plateau.

They are wounded and bleeding from battle. But they are not defeated and they certainly are not disheartened.

They are confident they can and will fight their way out in the best American tradition. Between them and survival is a narrow, frozen mountain road that leads to safety. But in the snow-covered hills on either side are the enemy—lying in wait for the day for freedom they know must come.

"We will suffer heavy losses. The enemy greatly outnumbering us. They have blown the bridges and blocked the roads. Our vehicles may not get through, but we will make it somehow." Thus spoke Col Lewis Puller, the tough little commanding officer of the First Marine Regiment which now appears to hopelessly trapped here.

Seven miles north of here lies the mountain hamlet of Hagaru. It is on the south end of the great Chosin (Changjin) reservoir that spreads over the land like a giant mirror.

And at Hagaru is the same situation—an American force surrounded by overpowering enemy forces. Less than one week ago Marines and soldiers were driving towards Manchuria along both sides of the reservoir.

They were racing through a beaten enemy—The Red army of North Korea. It was a matter of running to the border and calling a halt.

But suddenly, seemingly out of nowhere, came thousands of Chinese. Their surprising entrance stunned the Democratic world. They overpowered the U. N. forces by sheer weight, the tide turned.

Yesterday along the countryside the evidence tells the story. American dead lie in fields and ditches. On the roads sprawl the wrecked and burned hulls of American vehicles and guns.

Instead of an offensive operation this is a desperate defensive fight for survival.

The hills immediately surrounding Koto and Hagaru are dotted with red, yellow, blue, green and white parachutes, used to drop food and supplies to the cut-off troops.

And there is plenty. Supply is not a problem. The only problem is how to crash through an overwhelming force.

(Editor's Note: We think you have come up with the best solution to our "War Hymn" problem. Though we did not talk with him ourselves, we were told that "Pinky" Wilson asked that the same thing be done when he was on the campus for a class reunion the weekend of the Rice game. He was somewhat surprised that present day students did not know that the verse quoted above was the original first verse to the song and that it was sung by Aggies for many years.

This first verse would easily clear up any confusion caused by the verse sung now. And the present one could be reversed specifically for competition with the University.)

Publication of Tax List Was 'ill-advised'

Editor, The Battalion: The recent publication of the delinquent tax list (including 30 cent and 50 cent debts) by the city of College Station was very ill-advised and a backward step in a supposedly progressive community.

The confidence and support of many not included on the list has been weakened.

Robert H. Fletcher

(Editor's Note: The delinquent tax list was published in The Battalion as an advertisement paid for at regular rates by the city of College Station.)

Girl Scout Group Sponsors Bicycle Safety Campaign

A bicycle safety campaign sponsored by the College Station Girl Scout Brownie Troop 5 got under way this week with the distribution of Bicycle Safety League Membership cards to elementary students at A&M Consolidated School. The Membership cards have printed on them 12 laws for safe bicycle riding from the State Department of Public Safety. On the reverse side of the card is a diagram of a bicycle showing points that require attention in order to keep a bicycle in a safe condition.

Co-operating with the local scout group is College Station police officer Curtis Bullock who is helping the students become familiar with the laws.

Bullock reported few violations of the 12 rules for bicycle safety as the campaign progressed with much success, said Mrs. F. W. Gould, leader of Troop 5.

The twelve rules included on the card were as follows:

- Obey all traffic laws, signs, and signals.
 - Display a white head lamp and a red tail light when riding between one-half hour after sunset and one-half hour before sunrise.
 - Be alert for traffic from all directions.
 - Give both pedestrians and motor vehicles the right-of-way.
 - Before leaving a driveway or crossing a street or highway, look both ways and wait for approaching traffic.
 - Do not ride on streets where there is considerable traffic.
 - Do not ride alongside other cyclists. Ride in single file.
 - Do not ride double nor do trick riding on streets or highways.
 - Do not hitch rides on motor vehicles or street cars.
 - Do not play riding games in the streets or highways.
 - Always keep your bicycle in good condition.
 - Ride near the right hand pavement edge.
- In a few weeks all those students who have had no violations of the safe bicycle riding rules will receive Safe Rider stickers to be attached to their bike fenders, Mrs. Gould said.

Truman-Attlee Talk Korea Battle Effects

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Dec. 6.—(AP)—President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee were reported today to be studying intensively the impact of Korean reverses on their military and political positions throughout the world and their policies toward Communist China.

The extent to which they should go in the United Nations in branding the Chinese Red regime as an aggressor and advocating action against it was understood to have been among the subjects which may have developed real differences in the American and British viewpoints.

Qualified informants said the two leaders had agreed on the immediate course they would follow in the United Nations in respect to Red China. But this apparently meant only that the two had reaffirmed their governments' support of a pending resolution demanding that the Chinese Communists pull their troops out of Korea.

The issue of branding Red China as an aggressor goes far beyond that. It raises a question of what the United Nations would be prepared to do about an aggression charge. Among American officials there has been some talk of trying to get a U. N. blockade of the China coast or to call for political and economic sanctions.

The British, whose basic Far Eastern policy is described as being to avoid any further involvements in conflict with the Chinese, are understood to regard such ideas unfavorably. Britain recognizes Red China, the United States does not.

Prime Minister Attlee may throw some light on the closed door talks in a luncheon speech he is scheduled to deliver at the National Press Club here today (about 12:30 p.m. EST), following his third talk with the President, beginning at 11:30 a.m. EST. Aides expected he would stress the British view that U. N. moves in the Far East should not be permitted to weaken plans for the build-up of anti-Communist defenses in Europe.

In this connection it was reported that Attlee believes the immediate appointment of a supreme commander for the projected Allied army in Western Europe would prove a great boost to European morale and do much to offset the effect of the reverses which the U. N. forces have suffered in Korea. He is prepared to urge this view on Mr. Truman, if in fact he has not already done so.

Mascot Campaign

Our campaign for a mascot for TSCW is progressing. Of course you've heard about it. We see no reason why we shouldn't have one. Everything has been suggested from an Aggie to a white rat. We promise their being named together is purely coincidental.

We're thinking of a gazelle or a duck or a professor. Maybe the Aggies have some original suggestion off to us in the form of a letter to the editor of the Daily Lass-O. Just omit suggesting a cat, please.

Now that we've all had our holidays, I suppose the profs will expect us to do some work. As a matter of fact, I'm quite sure they will, and are, doing just that. Life is so unfair. But, we must all preserve the "A" averages, so here's lighting the midnight lamp.
