

Howard, Eisenberg Speak At Religious Week Forums

Dr. W. F. Howard, secretary of Student Work of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, will conduct forums and discussion groups in dorm 6 during Religious Emphasis Week, Feb. 12-16.

Living in dorm 6, Dr. Howard will be available to students in both 6 and 8, and will take his meals with them. Thirteen men are being brought to A&M this year by the YMCA and the college to lead in R. E. Week activities, and live and counsel with the students.

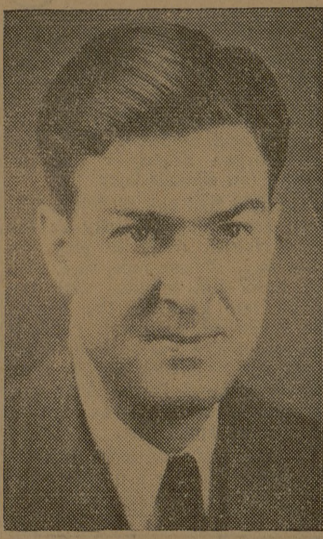

Baylor Grad

Besides having traveled extensively in Europe, Dr. Howard has several college degrees to his credit. A native Texan, he received his A. B. Degree at Baylor University in 1930 in Science and English; his M. A. Degree in 1937, and his Ph. D. in 1939 at Texas University. In 1950, he received an L. L. D. degree from East Texas Baptist College.

Dr. Howard taught public school in Ennis and Waco for eleven years being head of the English department and superintendent of schools. He has also taught at Baylor University and the Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. He was educational director of Seventh and James Baptist Church in Waco before accepting his present position.

Likes Texas

He was offered the position as Secretary of Department of Student with the Southern Baptist Convention Sunday School Board in Nashville, Tenn., but chose to stay in Texas.

Rev. Larry Eisenberg

From 4 to 5:30 each afternoon of R. E. Week, Dr. Howard will conduct forums in the dorm 6 lounge on the following subjects: Monday—"Do Scientific Facts and the Bible Agree?" Tuesday—"What Should a Student Get Out of Four Years of College," Wednesday—"What Makes a Person a Success?" Thursday—"Men and Women Relationships."

His nightly discussions at 9 p. m. in the lounge will be on subjects chosen by the individual groups. The discussions will be operated on a come and go basis so that students without much time may come and leave as they please.

A Recreation Specialist will be one of thirteen men to conduct forums and discussion groups during A&M's Religious Emphasis Week, Feb. 12-16.

He is Rev. Larry Eisenberg of the Methodist Student Board of Education in Nashville, Tenn. Eisenberg has been a specialist in Recreation for the Youth Department of the General Board of Education of the Methodist Church since March, 1945. He is also a member of the Illinois Conference of the Methodist Church.

Eisenberg will live in Dorm 15 and will conduct afternoon forums from 4 to 5:30 and nightly discussions at 9 p. m. in the lounge of Dorm 15. He will be available to the students of both dorms 15 and 16.

Native Tennessean

A native Tennessean, he did his college work at Tennessee Wesleyan College and the University of Chattanooga. He graduated from Garrett Biblical Institute in Evansville, Ind., and has attended both Boston University School of Theology and Yale University Divinity School.

His special job is in the field of leadership training in the field of recreation in the Methodist Church. He and his wife have made three collections of recreational material: a booklet of folk games called "And Promenade All," a collection of dramatic stunts called "The End of Your Stunt Hunt," and a manual on general recreation called "The Pleasure Chest."

Recent leadership responsibilities have included the fellowship singing and recreation leadership at the Methodist Youth Conference in Cleveland, Ohio, the Christian Youth Conference of North America at Grand Rapids, Mich., and the United Student Christian Conference at Lawrence, Kansas.

Topics Named

The afternoon forums to be conducted by Eisenberg will be on specific topics according to the following schedule: Monday—"Do Scientific Facts and the Bible Agree?" Tuesday—"What Should a Student Get Out of Four Years of College?" Wednesday—"What Makes a Person a Success?" Thursday—"Men and Women Relationships."

The nightly discussion groups will be conducted on subjects of the individual groups choosing and will be operated on a come-and-go basis so that students without much time may come and leave when they please.

A full three minutes as the game went to a complete standstill. Partisan fans almost went berserk as the Aggies made no move to retrieve the ball, but with only three minutes to go A&M and its move—too late. Taylor and Swaim each made one of their two free throws and took the ball out on the second one. With 35 seconds remaining McDowell was fouled and narrowed the count to 27-29.

Game Try

With 35 seconds remaining McDowell followed Taylor's second good liberty with one of his own to make it 27-30, but that was the last shot of the game for either side as the Frogs carried the ball the rest of the way. Davis was high point man for both teams with 11 markers while Reynolds led TCU scoring with seven.

Dogs Life Makes Major Jealous While in Korea

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD

Korea —(AP)—"While I freeze out here," said the major, "this fat dog enjoys all the comforts."

Major Marvin C. Venable of Temple, exhibited a snapshot of a black and white zepplin-shaped mongrel to fellow officers seated around a potbelled stove.

"My wife sends another letter telling me how contented Shorty is and even encloses a picture to prove it," grumbled Venable, of the Second Division's medical battalion.

"Pappy Venable is about to deliver another lecture on Shorty," said Capt. Walter E. Puddy of Los Angeles.

"We listen to this every day," hekked Capt. John W. Scarsion, Tamoca, Wash. "He's jealous of that poor dog."

"Poor dog indeed!" Venable snorted. He waved the letter from his wife, Mrs. Mozelle Venable of Temple.

"Shorty sleeps in my easy chair! Back in Texas it's night time and I'll bet that dog is asleep in that chair right now. Don't have any easy chair—I'm lucky to have this bench to sit on."

Lt. Col. Wilbur Dice of Palya Del Rey, Cal., chuckled "You sure are lucky to have it—in this country."

"Maybe Shorty is tired of my chair," Venable went on. "Maybe by now he's sleeping in my bed."

"Pappy would like to bring Shorty over here and make him sleep in a front line foxhole," said Puddy.

He's petted and pampered all day long," Venable said. "When I went back home for a visit during the Christmas holidays in 1949 all he did was bark at me."

"When Major Venable gets up these below zero mornings and starts reaching for his boots he really goes to town about Shorty," said Maj. Herbert R. Elmore, who has been in the battalion 22 years, and is now its executive officer added: "He thinks of Shorty then as toasting his toes in front of a nice warm Texas fire."

"Oh I think Major Venable's bitterness reaches the highest point when he eats canned hash over here and thinks of Shorty back home eating steaks," Captain Scarsion laughed.

"That's probably what he eats," said Venable. "Look at him. I never saw such a fat dog. I wrote Mozelle complaining about him and she sent a card back signed 'Mozelle and Shorty.'"

"I have a dog, too," Colonel Dice said. "He so smart he can pick his own presents off the Christmas tree. Wife named him Whoopee."

"How did she happen to name him that?"

"For some reason," the colonel replied "she had always wanted to be able to go out on the front porch and holler 'whoopee!' She can do it now."

straight up the center of the Korean peninsula.

The South Koreans smashed a massive force of Red Koreans and were still moving 25 miles south of Parallel 38—farther north than Red-held Seoul to the west.

On the east coast a smaller allied force worked in the vicinity of Kangnung where the American Battleship Missouri and an allied naval task force Tuesday battered the area with big guns. Kungnung is just 17 miles south of Parallel 38, the old boundary between North and South Korea.

The British cruiser Belfast and the American heavy cruiser St. Paul and the destroyer Hank poured shells at Reds in the Inchon-Seoul sector.

Late field reports put the nearest allied approach to Seoul at less than six miles.
