Babies, Beauties Highlight Week

By VIVIAN CASTLEBERRY
Battalion Women's Editor

IF WE sound terribly unintelligible today, please spell in the waiting room of the maternity ward of a local hospital. As babies have a way of doing, this one announced its imminent arrival at the forsaken hour of 4 a. m. this morning, at which time neighbor Roger Coslett awakened us with an I-think-this-is-it tone to his voice. We packed the Mrs.' bag and whisked her off to the hospital where at 9:38 a 6 lb. 15 1/2-ounce daughter joined the Coslett household. Mother is doing beautifully; Baby shows her boredom with the whole affair by yawning in the faces of her visitors through the nursery window, and Father will doubtless pull through. He is in the business of passing out numerous cigars.

Aside from the baby business, we've been going to lectures, club meetings, doctors, visiting and many other things. Last Friday we had the pleasure of meeting Dr. Lillian Gilbreth, who besides being a successful business woman and mother, is one of the most charming people we've had the good fortune to know. Dr. Gilbreth's address on "Scientific Management in Everyday Living," contained many new and thought-provoking ideas. We were quite in agreement with one Aggie who came away from the lecture with his notepad blank. "If I'd taken a single note," he said, "I would have missed something important. She packs a lot into a few words."

CALLING ALL WOMEN GOLFERS! Student wives who are interested in playing golf are invited to contact Mary Houston at 4-5331. Mary, a native of Warspite, Canada, is the wife of Doug Houston, aeronautical engineering major here. She thinks that surely a number of student wives besides herself are interested in golfing.

Six lucky guys are going to have six extra-special beauties in tow when they attend the Military Ball Saturday night. They are the sponsors—and escorts—of the Vanity Fair winners. Fairest of the fair ones are Bettie Joy Bledsoe, blue-eyed blonde from Austin, date of Frank Thurmond; Robbie Watson, tall hazel-eyed blonde from Dallas, date of Dudley Hughes; Wanda Lou Sisk, many-times beauty winner from Houston, date of Bill Blackhear; Ann Marie Malcolm, hazel-eyed brunette from Abilene, date of J. D. Hinton; Helen Woodard, blue-eyed brunette of Houston, date of Russell Hagens, and Pat Hooten—Mrs. Don Hooten, blue-eyed brunette and the mother of a three-year-old son, who will be the date of her husband.

Seniors are busily engaged in applying for jobs these Spring days—and hoping that Uncle Sam can iron out his difficulties so that they will be able to take jobs in civilian ranks. Not a day passes now that some senior isn't seen with his uniform pressed to its best, or "suited" out talking to potential employers, or off to the big-or-little cities with a job in mind.

The Kum Duhl Class of the A&M Methodist Church treated itself to a spaghetti supper Sunday night at the church. In attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Blecher and their children, class sponsors, and the Rev. and Mrs. James Jackson and their young ones. Also enjoying the feast were 28 adults and 12 children. The party was planned by Jeanne and Charles McCullough, recreation chairman. They were assisted by Reba Cozart and Fern Reed. Everything went along nicely until one of the tables, heavily laden with food, gave way. This did not dampen the diners' spirits for longer than it took to sweep aside the debris!

Aggie exes again make wedding news. During the past week several grads have trod the petaled path with girl of their dreams. In Dallas Saturday William B. Pumphrey was wed to Ann Slaughter. Pumphrey is a '50 business graduate and his bride is a graduate of SMU. . . Mr. and Mrs. John H. Bradley, Jr., are honeymooning in Mexico this week. He is a geology graduate with the class of '45. His wife is the former Miss Mary Sue Ashton. . . Sarah Lou and Paul Ravesses, '46 in Petroleum engineering, were married last week in Houston. Newly engaged Aggie-exes include Rex E. Chiewood, B. S., '44 and Miss Kathryn Abernathy and Pvt. Joe B. Cobler and Miss Celia Baird.

ANOTHER NOTICE TO SENIORS. IF you plan to graduate in June, and if you plan to invite people to see you take this big-step-in-your-life, better go by the Student Activities office and sign up for your invitations. They're available in three styles, AND MUST BE ORDERED BEFORE MARCH 13!

Cooking School Given in MSC

For the last seven years she has been a field representative of the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

Campus Study Club Hears Dr. Gepper

Dr. Joseph W. Geppert spoke to Study Club members Tuesday afternoon on "Better Health for Everyday Living." His talk was continuing in the year's planned program of Keys to Happiness.

Dr. Geppert opened his talk with a warning. "Happiness," he said, "is a spiritual quality and good health does not always guarantee it. On the other hand, many people who are genuinely ill are cheerful."

Architect's Wives Hear Color Expert

Howard Nelson of Sherwin-Williams Company spoke to Architectural Wives at a meeting Thursday evening on "Color Styling in the Home." The speaker was introduced by program chairman, Dorothy Thomas after a business session presided over by club president, Mary Lou Gaudlen.

"As wives of future architects, the program was of especial interest to us," Mrs. Thomas said. Nelson's talk was illustrated by a series of color combinations and color schemes. He also discussed the effects of lighting on color.

Mrs. Nelson, wife of the speaker, and several faculty wives were guests of the club for the evening. Mrs. Joy Bellamy, refreshment chairman, served cake, punch, nuts and mints following the program.

The next scheduled meeting of the Architectural Wives Club is March 14 when Hal Mosley of the Architecture Department is scheduled to speak.

Superstitious, the doctor said, a not just relics of the past. Many are still continued in practice of day in supposedly highly civilized and educated circles.

Other advances in medicine that have brought better health to the masses are the use of anesthesia and the sterilization of milk, the doctor said.

Dr. Geppert hopes for a future free of the common cold. He said that another great help to health in everyday living would be a blood test for cancer for everybody an immediate medical treatment (cancer where it is detected).

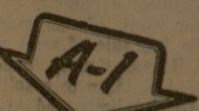

Dr. Geppert said that he also hopes for a future where surgery will be used only as a last resort. Surgery, he maintains, should be used only when all other medical facilities have been used to their full extent.

"Mental health," the doctor said "is our big question mark of the future. Not nearly enough has been done to solve the mental health program."
