

Bryan Lions Open Curtains Tonight On 1951 Minstrel

The Bryan Lion's Club tonight unveils what promises to be the wackiest, most laugh-packed annual minstrel shows ever staged by the mirth-minded organization.

Two performances are scheduled for 8 p. m. tonight and Friday, but pre-curtain activities will start at 7:30. "And brother, anything can happen then," said Director C. N. "Newt" Hielscher.

Two Hour Spectacle

The two hour spectacle stars 49 costumed blackface Lions who will put on the show without the aid of a script.

Included in the program are 18 specialty numbers put on partly by persons who are not Lions. One of the specialty acts includes Charles Murray, a repeat performer, who participated in last year's minstrel.

Free tickets for the show may be obtained by guessing the secret number of a card being carried by Lions. So far, 30 tickets have been given away.

Free Tickets Available

Persons who submit and have jokes accepted will also be awarded free tickets. The deadline for jokes is Thursday night.

The spectator to attend the show and make the closest estimate of the number of people attending will receive $10. To be eligible, that person must first unscramble the names of Lions which are jumbled and scattered through the printed programs.

Hielscher and Marshall Bullock are end men for the show. Feature comedians will be Harold Dreyfus, Leon W. Gibbs, Bob Butler, W. C. Davis, C. E. Gray and John Coffin.

Feature Performers

Feature performers include Jim Easterwood, Jack Ingram, David Dale, Grant Saltzman, Sylvia Kelly, Sandra Kelly, Norma Lois Taylor, Thel Silseth, Wanda Daisa, Nancy Naylor, Alice Jean Butler, Pat Young, Earl Kirk, Bill Turner and Cotton Slovacsek.

In the chorus will be A. C. Flory, B. F. Dewey, Jr., Edmund Slovacsek, H. P. Pittman, Eugene Hart, James W. Knox, Jack Lester, Aubrey Vick, Walter Holmes, Floyd McDonald, Jack Streetman, S. J. Enloe, J. Coulter Smith, Sankey

Baptist Group Sets Meeting Tonight at 7:15

Entertainment, food, and a short business meeting will be the program for a meeting of all Baptist A&M students at the Baptist Student Center tonight at 7:15.

Next year's leaders for the Baptist religious activities will be elected at the meeting as the top item on the agenda of the business session.

Antics of Joe Lyles, Baylor University comedian, and musical numbers by local Baptist young ladies will fill the evening's entertainment list.

At the end of the business session and the entertainment program, a color film taken at Ridgecrest, a Baptist summer camp in South Carolina, will be shown.

Harold Bass, director of the Baptist Student Union here, urged all BSU members to attend the meeting in order to have a voice in choosing the officers to head the group for the 1951-52 year.

For those students who are in doubt of their BSU membership, Bass said, the group is composed of all Aggies who have joined Baylor or College Station Baptist Churches. The organization is recognized as a voice of all Baptists on the campus.

A course on BSU methods will be held on Saturday afternoon and will also be held in the BSU, the director announced. He said facilities are available for fifty students and all interested Aggies are invited to attend.

Old Missouri Capitol

This old home in Marshall, Texas was once the capitol of Missouri. This was during the Civil War, the summer of 1861, when the Missouri Governor Claiborne Jackson and Lt. Gov. Thomas C. Reynolds fled to Marshall ahead of advancing Federal troops. It was not until after General Robert E. Lee surrendered that Missouri got their capitol back. The present owner, Lew Bates, said he would tear it down in the near future unless he could sell it soon.

Inspector Gives Suggestions Concerning Mail Deliveries

By ALLEN PENGELLY
Battalion Assistant City Editor

Suggestions for securing residential mail delivery service for College Station were offered to Dr. T. O. Walton, postmaster, by the postal inspector who recently conducted a survey to determine if the city is eligible for home delivery.

This report, prior to being sent to the Postal Department in Washington, suggested that fallen street markers be replaced, that a survey be taken throughout the areas to receive the home deliveries to determine whether or not the citizens wanted to have the service, and that a new entrance to the post office at the North Gate be constructed or the old one be kept open at all times.

Rapid Reply Requested

The College Station Chamber of Commerce has mailed out questionnaires to the residents to determine how many would be in favor of home delivery service. An early count of cards returned showed that out of 70 people, only 16 were against the delivery to the home.

President of the Chamber of Commerce Joe Sorrels issued a plea for all residents to return their questionnaire as soon as possible so the report may be turned in to Postmaster Walton.

"Should the city receive the home delivery service, the following areas would be entitled to this aid: North Gate, College View, College Hills, Oakwood, and Southside," said Walton.

To put the proposed service into action, the post office would need to hire two substitute carriers and one reserve carrier. These men will be selected from a register containing the names of qualified personnel.

One Daily Delivery

There would be one residential mail delivery per day beginning at 8 a. m. with an additional delivery made to the business sections of the city in the afternoon. Because the mailmen are required by law to carry only 25 pounds of mail at one time, collection boxes would be placed in strategic sections of the city to facilitate speedier pick-up service.

The postmen would carry out the full duties of a regular rural carrier in that they would sell stamps and carry postal money order applications. Residents would complete the forms and return them to the postman along with the money and will receive their receipts the following day.

"Residents will have to comply with postal regulations before they will be allowed to have the delivery service," said Walton. Further, "Regulations require that each house must be properly numbered and that regulation mail boxes must be erected in the front of each residence to receive delivery," he continued.

City Manager Raymond Rogers reports that several sections of the city have been re-numbered and that residents have been notified of the change. "If citizens do not know their present address, they may find out by contacting the College Station City Hall," added Rogers.

"The city is making an effort to replace all missing street markers and is presently constructing new cement markers to replace older temporary street signs," he finished.

"It is not known definitely whether or not the city will receive residential mail delivery service but if it should, the Postal Department will set the date when the service will begin," concluded Walton.
