

A&M Consolidated Plays Host To Texas Academy of Science

David Davis, representative from Denton High School, presented a paper on "blood analysis" to the eastern region of the High School Texas Academy of Science convention held Saturday at A&M Consolidated High School.

Eagle Lake High School, Fort Worth High School, and A&M Consolidated High School. Miss Louise Greer gave the winning paper in the social science division of the contest. Receiving the second place award in this section was Jerry Reeves of A&M Consolidated.

was flanked with huge blue letters announcing the "AF Ball." At the East end of the ballroom, blue and gold endings had been arranged.

At the close of the evening, airmen were treated to an added attraction in the form of attractive blond Monte Davis, who played two selections on the piano. She has appeared on TV, radio, and has been featured with the Houston Symphony and the Dallas Symphony. Her date was Walt Robertson.

After it was all over, everyone had decided that the "Air Force should do this more often." It had been done once before in 1928. An Air Corps (not Force, at the time) unit on the campus had existed since 1918 and was disbanded. This was their farewell party.

Actually, the dance proved to be such a success that it became the first of a series of regimental balls that have continued in existence on up into current times.

In recent years, Air Force units have combined with other regiments to give a dance. But this year, due to the expanded amount of Air Force units and cadets, dance planners decided to "go it alone."

"Here sweetheart," says Jack Raley, Air Force Wing Commander to Miss Dacia Schultz the Air Force Sweetheart. Raley presented the sweetheart with a small gift and the big regimental commander's kiss. Other sweetheart finalist, left to right are, Ann Donoghue, escorted by Joel Abell; Bettie Bledsoe, escorted by Frank Thurmond; Evelyn Levine, escorted by Louis Caplan and Dacia. Dacia was escorted by Stan Southworth.

Lary's Single Brings Hubert In Basketball

first on an infield single and second on Candelari's ground out. A&M scored its fourth run in the lucky second after Hubert had walked and was then sacrificed to second by Wallace. Erette struck out but Lary singled to right-center to bring Hubert around the hot corner. This afternoon A&M will seek its third conference win and ninth season victory at the expense of the TCU Horned Frogs. TCU, who has an unimpressive season's record of three wins and eight defeats, stands fifth in the conference race with a one and three post. Last week the Toads were swallowed by SMU 11-9. The week before they had been taken by the Ponies 4-1. TCU played Rice two games and split the series. After dropping the opener 4-2, the Frogs obliterated Rice last Saturday 19-0. Knobby Graves (0-2) or Mike Salim of Beaumont are good guesses to start on the mound for the Frogs. Both are lettermen and Graves was one of the SWC's better hurlers last year. The TCU plate-power will be furnished by leadoff man Harvey King, left fielder Bill Barnes and first baseman Bill Elliott. King isn't a long ball hitter but he usually gets on while Barnes and Elliott are fence-breakers. Coach Beau Bell will send Sid Goodloe to the mound for A&M. The junior right-hander, whose battery mate will be Wilbur Hamilton, has a record of 1 and 0 for the Aggies this year. The game will start at 3 p.m.

A&M Man Elected Secretary Of SW Journalism Congress

Texas A&M and TSCW returned from the Southwest Journalism Congress held at the University of Oklahoma last Friday and Saturday with each school gaining one office apiece in the organization for the coming year. Bill Streich, junior journalism major from Houston was elected secretary of the congress as a representative from A&M, while Miss Pat Powless from the Denton school was elected president for the 1951-52 school year.

by J. Lloyd Jones, editor of the Tulsa Tribune, was the climax of the morning session. "A monopoly paper," Jones pointed out, "can be either good or bad, depending on the attitude of the publisher and the editor." Climax of the first day's meeting of the congress was a banquet at the Biltmore Hotel in Oklahoma City. This affair was jointly sponsored by the Oklahoma Publishing Co. and the Oklahoma City Times. Washington Post Editor The speaker for the affair, Frank L. Dennis, assistant managing editor of the Washington Post, told listeners about the function of reporters in covering government news. "The press, Dennis emphasized, "can do its best job in covering government news in the nation's capitol, because there, any action on the part of a public official is eventually felt by a majority of the nation's citizens."

in Korea." Boyle covered the invasion of North Africa, and the campaigns in Sicily, Italy, France and the Pacific theater. He has recently returned from Korea. "No one can say exactly when we have won the Korean war," the war correspondent said. "This is because our objectives are not clear." At the start of the war in Korea, the United States was far short of men and material necessary to conduct an all out war. However, Boyle said, the Army did, show extreme courage in battle which was not fully recognized at the time.

Monitor Speaker Featured speaker of the morning program was Miss Mary Hornaday, a member of the New York bureau of the Christian Science Monitor who gave her opinions concerning news coverage at the sessions of the United Nations. "In covering a session at Lake Success," Miss Hornaday said, "a reporter must learn to think and act as a world citizen, because the UN stresses human freedom above all else."

Saturday morning, the delegates assembled to hear a talk by H. Deskin Wells, editor of the Wellington, Texas Leader, one of the country's leading weeklies. His talk was on the "Trials and Tribulations of Small Town Journalism." At a luncheon Saturday noon, the guests heard a talk by Hal Boyle, one of the leading war correspondents for the Associated Press, who spoke on "Your Stake

No Surrender In fighting the North Koreans, our Army learned the inadvisability of surrendering to such an enemy. "On one occasion, the speaker said, we arrived at a town a short time after the enemy had pulled out. There we found the slain bodies of some of our soldiers who had surrendered. They had been tied and made to kneel in a hastily dug trench and then shot in the back. The present situation has now approached the point of becoming a stalemate, the correspondent said. Our forces advance and then the Reds take the offensive. The congress closed Saturday afternoon, following a business session at which the officers were elected.

And Binford

Don Binford, an outstanding freshman player at the University of Wichita in 1950, is a lone transfer. Binford was one of the boys on Floyd's high school championship teams in Wellington, Kan., and shows much promise as an Aggie forward.

Creative Writing

Following Miss Hornaday's talk, Prof. Walter S. Campbell of the OU English department gave the listeners a few pointers on creative writing. "A writer," said the speaker, "is like a slow leak in a tire. You have to keep pumping him up, if you want him to keep going." A speech on the monopoly press
