College Station Residents Favor Home Mail Service

By FRANK DAVIS
Battalion Staff Writer

College Station residents appear to be in favor of home-to-house mail delivery.

At least, 20 out of 22 persons asked that question yesterday were in favor of the measure which may provide "free" mail delivery to all houses within the corporate city limits.

Two carriers, if the program is authorized, will make daily deliveries except on Sundays and holidays to all College Station homes, according to N. C. Holland, superintendent of mails.

"There are crowded traffic conditions and a lack of parking space at the North Gate Post Office. People who live in College Hills and South College Park sometimes have trouble getting mail." These were some of the arguments in favor of home-to-house mail delivery.

"The situation in College Station does not justify increased government expenditure said the only opponent of the measure." One person refused to comment, and another said the free delivery was something people of College Station were entitled to and should have.

In a recent survey conducted by the Chamber of Commerce, local residents favored the program four to one. Opinions were obtained from 46 per cent of the population, according to J. H. Sorrels, president of the Chamber of Commerce. Cards were sent to all persons paying for utilities in College Station, Sorrels said. This means that someone at every house was asked to express an opinion, he added.

"Since a lot of people obtain my address from the telephone directory, house delivery would help me," said Harry L. Boyer, chief of housing at A&M.

"As for me, I'm 100 per cent for it," was the response received from J. C. Culpepper. He added that driving across the campus to get mail, endangering the lives of pedestrians, would be eliminated.

"Since my husband is with the extension service and is frequently out of town with the car, I sometimes have trouble getting the mail," commented Mrs. C. H. Bates.

The idea of delivery only once a day and none on Sunday caused two people concern. Mrs. J. B. Baty mentioned the lack of a Sunday delivery. Les Richardson, superintendent of College Station Consolidated Schools, said a disadvantage was the fact that mail would be delivered only once a day.

R. B. Halpin suggested that the program was sound. He reasoned that the traffic at North Gate was dense, and that husbands go out of town, leaving the wives at home without mail.

Dr. A. A. Price stated this was a service the community needs.

K. A. Marming introduced the idea of benefiting people who live some distance from the Post Office.

College Station Lion's Hear Librarian Talk

Mike Krenitsky, assistant librarian of Cushing Memorial Library, was guest speaker yesterday at the weekly noon luncheon of the College Station Lion's Club.

Talking on "Library Facilities in College Station as a Community," Krenitsky pointed out the library services available to the people of College Station.

Bryan Public Library, A&M Consolidated High School Library, and Cushing Memorial Library at A&M are the three places which residents of this community may obtain books and other types of literature, the speaker said.

"Real money needs to be spent on children's books for the local schools," the librarian commented, "and already the Educational Committee of the Chamber of Commerce and the Campus Study Club have gone a long way to help meet some of the monetary demands of purchasing new books."

The AAUW plans to make a survey soon to decide where and how much money needs to be spent to bring the Consolidated library up to date, he added.

Plate Association Places New Order

Another 300 dozen Regular Edition of Texas A&M commemorative plates have been ordered, and delivery is assured within six months, P. L. "Pinky" Downs, Jr., 706, president of the Commemorative Plate Association, has announced.

The plates are being made by Josiah Wedgwood and Sons, Ltd., of Etruria, England.

Each one-dozen order of the plates, toned in maroon and white from hand engravings on copper and facsimiled on ivory Queenware, contains a picture of 12 different early campus buildings. Borders of the plates were designed by the Architecture and Landscape Arts Departments, and depict each military branch of the college.

Building views included in each set of 12 plates are Cathright Hall, Civil Engineering Building, S-Bis Hall, Academic Building, Guion Hall, Agriculture Building, Kyle Field Stadium, Cushing Memorial Library, Walton Hall, Administration Building, Veterinary Hospital, and the Chemistry Building.

The commemorative plates may be ordered immediately from Downs at Box 4784, College Station, Texas.

Intramurals

In the longest contest of the afternoon, A Vets edged past L AF, 2-1. The contest went six innings.

The Vets tallied their first run in the first frame on three successive singles by Simpson, Reyes, and Trawick. The Vets winning run was scored in the fifth stanza by Trawick who banged out a homer.

The L AF hitters tried valiantly in the final inning to get back into the game but could muster only one run on two hits off the Vet pitcher, Reyes.

C Cavalry Wins, 10-5

C Cavalry ran roughshod over B Infantry, 10-5.

Seven runs crossed the plate for the armored men in the first inning of play. After the first inning the infantry was never in the game.

The infantrymen sent three runs across the plate in the first and two more in the second.

Consolidated Junior Class Slates Plays

Two one-act plays will be presented by the Junior Class of A&M Consolidated High School Tuesday night, May 1, at 8 p. m.

The first play, under the direction of High School Principal L. E. Boze, is entitled "Whar's My Pants," and includes a cast composed of Maxie Wilson, Billy Blakely, Wanda Goodwin, Bobby Smith, Jimmy Templin, and Louise Street.

This production, in a black face comedy lasting approximately 45 minutes.

The other play, "Drums in the Night," is directed by Mrs. Louise Glenn and will have in the cast Celeste Curran, Jerry Leighton, Sara Puddy, Glenda Brown, Barbara Sims, George Johnston, and Judy Oden. A mystery act, the play will also last an estimated 45 minutes.

Between performances of the two plays, members of the junior class will furnish entertainment.

Admission to the plays is 50 cents per person for adults and 35 cents for students attending the show.

Ag Award Winner

Walter Tanamachi, president of the Agronomy Society and president of the Ag Honor Society which recently became a member of the National Chapter of Alpha Zeta, receives an award from Dean of Agriculture C. N. Shepardson as one of the outstanding students of the School of Agriculture. Awards were made on the basis of scholarships, elective positions, journalistic or literary activities, achievement awards, social and religious activities, military service record and the amount of self support the student had to supply.

Garden Club Holds Final Spring Meet

At their final meeting of the year on Thursday, members of the A&M Garden Club heard committee reports for the year, planned their annual Spring pilgrimage and named their duchess to the Cotton Ball and Pageant.

The meeting was presided over by President Mrs. O. K. Smith. Mrs. Spencer Buchanan read the minutes of the previous meeting and committee chairman read their reports.

For their annual flower pilgrimage, the club will visit the Day Lily Farm. Exact date for this tour will be announced later.

Miss Ann Hickerson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Hickerson, will represent the club as duchess to the Cotton Ball.

Mrs. John Hill and Mrs. Al Nelson displayed floral arrangements in Victorian containers. Mrs. C. C. Doak announced that all dues for next year must be paid by July 1.

Mrs. Armstrong Price, speaker for the afternoon, was introduced by Mrs. R. E. Snuggs.

Mrs. Price demonstrated new trends in floral arrangements and answered questions as she made her displays.

Among the demonstrated pieces was a formal arrangement of yellow gladioli in a vertical line with a purple and yellow pansy garland arrangement. These were shown in an antique metal pitcher.

Among Mrs. Price's most interesting arrangements was one of undeveloped palm, dried and varnished, with tulip leaves and hybrid amaryllis. This arrangement was done without water. Mrs. Price explained that bulbs with hollow stems will stay fresh for several days without water.

Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Dell Bauer, Mrs. R. R. Lyle, and Mrs. George Summey, Jr.

Second Graders Give Play on Texas History

A program prepared by the second grade pupils of A&M Consolidated School entitled "Something About Texas" was presented this morning in the school gym.

The introduction to the program was given by Mark Luther and the first act was read by Hal Delaplaine. Called the "Early Settlers," this act was composed of readings and folk dances to the tune of "Skip To My Lou" and "Jolly is the Miller."

Next, on the program Marcus Curd told of the early Texans "Fight for Freedom." This was followed by an act, "The Republic of Texas." In this act were Jack Armistead, John Richard Ballentine, Bob Baird, Joan Loveless, John Parker, Billy Whit Eakin, and Bob White.

"Texas Today" was presented by Wade Fry, Jimmy Winn, Henry Allen, and Jim Fowler. After the reading, the group sang an original song entitled "The Cowboy."

A dance, "Texas Star" was given by Ronnie Shoup, Alex Quisenberry, Dedy Terry, and Andy Adams.

The program was completed when the group sang two original songs named "Bluebonnet Sues" and "I'm Glad I'm a Texan."

Taking part in the play and its production also were Britt Bell, Ira Brewer, Cyril Burke, P. G. Gandy, Kenneth Greer, Woody Hedrick, Tommy Letbetter, George Outlaw, James Riggs Larry Thurman, David Walker, Jerry Lewis, Dorothy Berry and Sondra Covey.
