A&M baseball aspirations took a sharp nosedive Saturday when mighty Texas slammed out a 14-to-10 victory over the Cadets in Austin.

In a game that lasted two hours and fifty-five minutes, a capacity crowd of 4,500 saw 25 basehits rapped out and 10 errors committed in one of the most wild and wooly baseball affairs yet seen in the Southwest Conference.

The Longhorns, who are trying to return to the NCAA playoffs where they will be defending champions (Texas playoffs where they will be has won the collegiate crown the last two years.), mustered 15 hits to A&M's 10 and brought almost every man across the plate.

While seven pitchers were running back and forth to the mound, the lead was changing four times in the SWC's feature game of the week. The loop-leading Longhorns (7 wins, no losses) surged ahead for good in the fifth inning.

The Aggie batters made a strong bid for victory in the big fifth by pounding across four runs on two hits in a melee of wild fielding by Texas.

Texas jumped back with four matching runs in their half of the inning and the Cadet work went for naught.

As the Ags went down in defeat to a powerful Longhorn team, 5-1, DeBerry and Tate offered the only consolation by their winning the No. 1 doubles, 6-2, 3-6, and 6.4
