Anti-Inflation Step .

AT LONG last, a major blow has been struck against inflation. The new price measure is aimed primarily at manufacturers who have raised prices above and beyond the point called for by increased labor and material costs. A secondary objective is to put the brakes on various "automatic escalator" deals that keep prices spiralling up-price boom that followed the Korean war. About 75,000 manufacturing plants will be concerned in "re-pricing" based on pre-Korea levels plus increased costs of labor and materials only.

The effect on the consumer will be delayed by the normal time for the trip from the manufacturer to the merchandiser. May 28 is the deadline for the new system that will cover about $70 billion (annual gross) worth of merchandise.

This is welcome news, even though the 100-cent dollar still appears to be as far away as ever. Renewed confidence in the Price Director Michael V. DiSalle expects stability of the dollar might induce people the "factory ceiling" to stop the runaway to hang on to money rather than drop it like a hot potato.

> This, in turn, will aid in stemming the mad buying sprees that we have seen in the past.

Brown receives $100 award for students majoring in business; Onxley and Mebane each receive $50 awards for students in accounting. The awards were presented by T. W. Mohle, a Houston accountant and a graduate of A&M. The Mohle Awards are given annually to outstanding business and accounting students selected by the members of the teaching staff of the department of Business Administration and Accounting. The final presentation of the awards will be made at the annual Awards Day ceremonies.

Brown, a general business major, is a cadet Lt. Colonel, a member of the Student Senate, Memorial Student Center Council, YMCA Council, Freshman Council, Corps Staff, Dallas Club, and the Ross Volunteers

He Is Also . . .

He is also a distinguished military student and winner of the Al-bert Banta Senior Award and Na-tional Defense Transportation As-sociation Award, and recently

To the Student Body:

The entire student body is to be ommended for its contribution to the inspiring ceremonies connected with the dedication of the Memo-rial Student Center and the Aggie Muster on April 21, 1951. All the visitors on the campus, especially our Gold Star guests, especially our Gold Star guests, were unanimous in their gratitude and apreciation for the sincere hospitality and consideration which were shown to them by the students and the College community. They were never allowed to feel lost or alone while on the campus, and everyone returned to their homes feeling much better for having participated in the dedication of the Memorial Student Center and the Aggie Muster.

You are always fine hosts, and you were especially kind and thoughtful during the past weekend.
