The United Nations Club presented a program of music and educational talks at the Friday meeting of the A&M Women's Social Club held in the Ballroom of the MSC.

Gopi Nath Das, plant pathology major from Pakistan, gave a vocal rendition of a song in his native Mongolian language.

Bebe Trevino and Alvaro Perez Travino, dairy husbandry majors from Mexico, contributed guitar music and songs including "Quiérovos," "Vesúsita en Chihuahua," "Adios mi Chaparrita," and "Atonilco."

G. N. Raut, graduate student from India, spoke of the women in India. He told of the deep respect for women and of the marriage customs of his country. "Marriages are arranged by the parents and divorcees are not considered," he said. "Marriages are planned with regard to problems of the caste system economics, anything wrong with family in past generations, and the horoscope," he added.

Mrs. H. L. Heaton, program chairman of the Social Club, introduced the United Nations Club Sponsor, M. L. Cashion, secretary of the YMCA, and the officers and members of the club. Aly Lasheen of Egypt is president and Charles Beagle, United States representative in the club, is secretary.

Members of the United Nations Club were invited to attend this meeting of the Social Club as special guests.

Mrs. Howard W. Barlow, retiring president of the A&M Women's Social Club, presided over the business meeting and after thanking the officers who served with her during the past term, she introduced the officers for the coming year.

Mrs. Heaton announced a benefit to be given at Playland on May 3 for the purpose of raising money for the Consolidated School Band.

Aggies Split Two-Game Series

Lary lashed out the first of two doubles to right field and Wallace came all the way in as Melzer Rose bobbled the ball. Lary came in on Bill McPherson's solid single.

Batted Around

The Aggies batted around in the big four-run third. Wallace singled, Lary popped up, John DeWitt walked and all hands were safe when third baseman King missed an attempted tag of Wallace after fielding McPherson's grounder. Then the roof caved in.

A wild pitch brought in Wallace, two more walks forced in DeWitt, and Hal Ogletree's ringing single drove in the fifth and sixth runs.

In the eighth inning, two walks, two errors and a fielder's choice play that didn't pan out scored the last two runs.

Floyd Asks 'What Does Athletics Hold For Me?'

Burchard-Williams Win VP Awards

By FRED WALKER
Battalion Sports Editor

Jack Burchard and Bobby Williams were given the coveted Most Valuable Player awards in football and basketball Friday night at the Kiwanis sponsored Sixth Annual Banquet and Party honoring A&M Consolidated athletes.

During an evening of athletic recognition, A&M's Head Basketball Coach John Floyd faced the high school athletes with the many-sided question of "What Does Athletics Hold For Me?"

Master-of-Ceremonies John McNeely started the after-dinner program by calling upon CHS yell leaders Liz Miller, Dorothy Spriggs, Mary Francis Bond, Celeste Carran and Louise Street to lead the aggregation of students, parents, teachers and guests in two songs, "Consolidated High School" and "America."

After the invocation, given by Consolidated student, Norman Anderson, the rest of the evening was given over to the main purpose of the banquet—Athletics.

L. E. Boze, principal of A & M Consolidated, presented a review of the athletic achievements during the past year and thanked the Kiwanis Club for their "invaluable" assistance during football season. Boze proudly told the assembly that "90% of Consolidated's students are participating in some sport."

Not Mandatory

Boze emphasized that athletic participation was, however, not mandatory. "It has always been voluntary and some boys are in as many as four or five sports, he said.

After Head Football Coach O. V. Chafin explained that gold foot-

Coach John Floyd

balls would be awarded to men who had lettered more than one year and sweaters would go to all first-year lettermen, he gave a few minutes special recognition to the yell leaders, "who," he said, "had as much to do with athletics as the boys themselves."

Smith & McDowell

The "big moment" then came as Bob Smith and Jewell McDowell made the football and basketball awards.

Roland Jones and Bobby Williams were presented the Co-Captains awards in football by Smith, and Burchard, in addition to the Most Valuable Player Prize, was given a plaque for being the team's Best Blocker.

S. A. Lipscomb and W. N. (Flop) Colson donated the awards.

McDowell awarded the basketball presentations then to Co-Captains Royce Rogers and Billy Blakeley and Valuable Player Williams. These prizes were given by Ed Madeley and John Pruitt, and G. W. Black, respectively.

Floyd then addressed the group and made allusions to athletics and speech-making as he said:

"Play Your Sport"

"Boys, its all right to be nervous, but when they throw the ball up or call 'hike,' start running and stop the foolishness. Play your sport and your game."

Floyd then charged the athletes to "... do in athletics as you do in life's endeavors..." and asked two questions: "What Does Sports Hold For Me?" and "What Is the Difference in Being Great and Just Being Common?"

The first question was answered by Floyd in nine parts: Sportsmanship, Discipline, Leadership, "Following", Respect, Determination, Gracefulness, Courtesy and Work.

One example carried Floyd's second question to its end. The basketball mentor compared a small town lawyer to one from a big city. Both had been exposed to the same training but one gained a better name and position in life.

"What was the difference," Floyd asked? "Work," he said. "It was that little extra effort or extra hour of study that one was willing to put forth, that changed the circumstances."

After Floyd finished, coaches Chafin, "Hoss" Shaeffer and W. M. Dowell were given presents by their athletic students.

The formal program was closed by the yell leaders who led "Tigers Fight", Consolidated's "fight" song, and the rest of the evening was spent in dancing.

These are the boys who lettered last year in Consolidated sports. Fred Anderson and David Bonnen, were the only two to letter in five sports, while four-sport lettermen were Bobby Williams and Roland Jones. Lettering in three sports were: William Benavidez, Pinkney Cooner, Melvin Free, Pete Hickman, Bobby Jackson, George Johnston, Gayle Klipple, Jerry Leighton, Joe Motheral, and Dan Williams.

Lettermen in one sport were: Tom Barlow, Frank Barnes, Dick French, Paul Harris, Eddie Guthrie, Thomas Wade, Douglas Norcross, James Johnson, Billy Richards, and Cody Wells.

John Mantheil and Homer Franks were the managers.

Weary GIs

"Other men may smell better than we do and have freshly scrubbed faces. Their pedigrees may be longer and their families may live in the big houses up on the hills. They may be driving convertibles down paved street while we carry machine guns up Korean mountain sides. But we are better men than they are."

I didn't argue with those eyes.
