dark brown hair and laughing black eyes, holds a teacher's certificate in Texas. But rather than be separated from her husband and four-and-a-half-year-old son, Fred, she has worked at an assortment of jobs around College Station.

In 1944 Virginia left her school marm duties in North Dakota and went West. There, during the latter part of '44 she met big (6 ft., 194-lb.) Burl Hendricks, a soft-spoken West Texan.

The little file clerk (at McClellan Air Force Base) and the Air Corps Tech Sergeant were married at Minter Army Air Field Chapel in Bakersfield, California on July 7, 1945.

Burl accuses Virginia of going West because she heard there were lots of sailors there, but Virginia insists "a premonition told me you were waiting for me there." In any event, the union started out with abundant love and has grown through adversity.

Burl made a trip home in '46 to see what the college situation was. "A&M was really crowded," he said, "so I went back to the Air Corps and waited my time."

"College, Here We Are"

In January of '47, five years after he entered the service, Burl Hendricks was discharged. A month later he entered NTAC.

In the meantime, young Fred had joined the Hendricks household, but "trouser fashion," the transplanted Texan and brand-new mother entered college with her husband. At NTAC she took special courses that led to her teacher's certificate.

In February '49 the Hendricks came to A&M—or Burl came. Virginia had, at that time, gone home to North Dakota with her son, back to her old school teaching duties in order to help finance Burl's college education.

"That," agrees Burl and Virginia, "is the only real mistake we ever made. It was the longest nine months of our lives. We saw each other only once—at Christmastime, and right then we swore that we'd stay together from then on even if we had to go on a beans and bread diet to do it."

Worked at Many Jobs

The other jobs that the Hendricks have held to help Burl through school are, for her, housekeeping, nursery school attendant, waitress, and teacher; and for Burl, grocery store clerk, farm hand, and assistant in the Ag Ed Department.

The Hendricks persistence has paid off. In January Burl received his BS degree in Ag Education. He entered graduate school. This June the couple will leave Aggieland for "at least a year of teaching. Then we'll come back to complete 'our' master's degree."

Aside from her work and her house work, Virginia is an enthusiastic bowler and a member of the MSC Bowling League. She attends the First Baptist Church, is an avid reader. She makes sea shell jewelry as a hobby—has sold some of it to add nickels to the family coffers—and "when I can find the time"—crochets.

Other than her husband and her son, those who are especially proud of the honor that has come to Virginia include her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mattheis, twin brothers and a sister back in North Dakota. Among Virginia's gifts from local merchants Friday night was a child's dress. Friends suggested to Virginia that she return it to the donor for an exchange. But the Hendricks have decided to keep the dress.

he found in Austin a month ago where he leaped 6' 9", will be Buddy Davis, the best high jumper in the conference. He tied for third at Drake with 6' 3" and broke the Texas Relays record and the unofficial SWC mark with a 6' 9" jump at the Texas Relays.

Relayers Ready

Also featured in the Austin triangular meet will be A&M's relay teams, both of which placed at Drake. The 440 relay its winning ways after running 41.8 for fifth at Drake.

The "snake bit" mile relay will still be seeking its best combination of four men from Place, Fuston McCarthy, Bob Mays, James Baker and Don Mitchell. Mitchell ran a 47.8 anchor at Drake to bring the team in third. His best open 440 is 48.6 this year.

Band Mothers' UN Club Sponsors 'Y' Movies Tonight

The Band Mother's Club of A & M Consolidated High School will sponsor a benefit at Playland Park on South Highway 6 tonight from 5 to 9 p. m. The club is seeking to raise funds to buy additional band instruments for the rapidly growing Consolidated Band.

Committees for the club have planned a complete evening of food and fun for all children and adults of the Bryan-College Station area. The food committee, headed by Mrs. J. P. CoVan is serving hot dogs, cookies, cupcakes, ice cream bars, candy and nickel sif drinks.

Included in the booths to be set up at the park will be a plant booth, a fortune teller, a book booth, fish ponds, and several others. Mrs. C. W. Landiss and Mrs. J. R. Couch head the booth committee.

A white elephant auction under the direction of Walter Britten, local auctioneer, will be the feature attraction of the evening.

Playland rides, including a new merry-go-round, will be available for the children. Mrs. R. L. Donahue, ticket sales chairman, states that tickets are now on sale by elementary school children.

Tickets may also be purchased at the gate, she said.

Movies on India will be shown in the YMCA Chapel tonight at 7:30. G. N. Raut former president of the United Nations Club, announced this morning. The three movies, sponsored by the UN Club, will be of about 10 minutes duration. Black and white 16 millimeter film, the movies are entitled "Life in Indian Villages," "Musical Instruments of India," and "The Indian Type of University Life." The public is cordially invited to attend the first of a series of Indian films, Raut added.

• OFFICIAL NOTICE •

As a result of the change in Selective Service Regulations, which now permit a registrant to select his branch of service during the last month of the college session and remain in college until the completion of that session, that part of the present college regulation which allows credit to a student voluntarily resigning prior to the completion of the term is revoked, effective May 1, 1951. No change is made in the regulations affecting men called into the service involuntarily.

C. Clement French
Dean of the College

Classes will be suspended at 3 p. m. Thursday, May 3, 1951, to allow time for pre-registration for the first term of summer school 1951.

C. Clement French
Dean of the College

"Several requests have been received to make the Survey of Astronomy, Physics 314 (3-0) available for the first term of the coming summer session. If all interested will kindly advise immediately Professor J. P. Kent, the teacher of this course, or the undersigned, steps will be taken to see if the course can be offered."

Sincerely yours,
J. G. POTTER
Head, Physics Department
