

Beware of Busted Buttons..

PARDON our pride, please—we intend to do some button-bustin' over the week-end.

And why shouldn't we? It's seldom that we get a chance to enjoy the dual pleasure of showing Aggeland to the family and showing the family to Aggeland.

Besides, this year is something special around these parts. It's our birthday.

And when we show Dad and Mom and Sis and that special girl around the campus tomorrow, we'll have the 75 year's of accomplishment to boast about.

This year we'll be pointing with particular pride to the Memorial Student Center, a building that has no equal on any campus in Texas.

But the real object of our pride will hold the spotlight Sunday morning. And that spotlight will be on Mom—the lady behind every accomplishment of every Aggie since A&M opened its doors.

Aggeland is yours for the week-end, folks. We know you won't regret having come.

Departmental Shows, Tours Varied Exhibits For Open House Day

By B. F. ROLAND
Batt Staff Reporter

Parents and friends of the college will have their annual chance to inspect the facilities of the four schools and their departments tomorrow during Open House Day.

Most of the departments have planned exhibits and displays depicting the type of instruction being given students in their major field of study.

Arts and Sciences

In the school of Arts and Sciences, departmental members and students will be on hand throughout the afternoon to explain various aspects of their courses to the visitors.

The Chemistry Department will have several exhibits and demonstration in the Chemistry Building.

Work done in the Department of Economics will be shown all afternoon on the third floor of the Academic Building.

The exhibits prepared by the Department of English will be shown on the third floor of the Academic Building.

Room 118 of the Chemistry Building will be the location of the work prepared by the Geography Department. History Department

Langford Advises On Brownsville Job

Ernest Langford, head of the Architecture Department has been named professional adviser to select an architect to supervise and construct the Fort Brown Memorial Center at Brownsville.

The selection will be made by a jury of award on June 21.

The center will commemorate the century mark of Brownsville, and its design throughout will reflect the progress of the border city. Just across the river is Matamoros, Mexico.

The building will be erected on the old Fort Brown parade grounds.

ment exhibits can be examined on the second floor of the Academic Building.

The journalists' work will be on exhibition in the Journalism Building, while mathematicians will have exhibits on the second floor of the Academic Building.

The exhibits prepared by the Oceanography Department will be shown in Room 10 of the Old Science Hall.

Two exhibitions, one in the Gymnasium and another in the P. L. Downs Natatorium will demonstrate the work being done by the Department of Physical Education.

Physics students will be on hand in the Physics Building to explain various phases of that subject.

Samples of the work being done by the students of business administration will be shown in rooms 153 and 253 of the Business Administration Annex Francis Hall.

School of Agriculture

Exhibits portraying the value of agriculture and its related fields have been prepared by the various departments in the school of Agriculture.

The Departments of Agricultural Economics and Sociology will present exhibits in the lobby of the Library.

Work being done by the Departments of Agricultural Education and Agricultural Engineering will be shown in the Agricultural Engineering Building.

Agronomists will have demonstrations and exhibits in two locations—the soils physics laboratory in the basement of the Old Experiment Station and the basement of the Agriculture Building.

The Animal Husbandry program will be highlighted by a freshman and sophomore judging contest in the Aggie Rodeo Arena, while the first floor of the Animal Industry

Building will contain demonstrations and exhibits of the Biochemistry and Nutrition Department.

Dairy Husbandry work will be demonstrated in the Dairy Barns and also in the College Creamery. Exhibits prepared by the Departments of Range and Forestry and Wildlife Management will be shown in the Agricultural Engineering Building.

Horticulture exhibits will be set up in Room 107 Agriculture Building, the Horticulture Nursery, and the Horticulture Greenhouse.

Poultry Husbandry displays will be shown in the tent adjacent to Foster Hall, while exhibits prepared by the Genetics Department will be shown on the third floor of the Animal Industries Building.

The Floriculture Greenhouse and lecture room will be the scene of the Floriculture Department's exhibits.

The engineering students in the various departments of the School of Engineering have also prepared numerous exhibits and demonstrations for the visiting parents and friends.

The Aeronautical Engineering Department has planned hourly tours to Easternwood Airport, a tour of the power plant laboratory and several other exhibits.

Displays designed by students of architecture will be on exhibit on the fourth floor of the Academic Building, while chemical engineers will demonstrate phases of that subject in the Petroleum Engineering Building.

Students of civil and electrical engineering will demonstrate their work in prepared exhibits which will be on display in the respective buildings.

Displays arranged by the Petroleum Engineering and Geology Departments will be exhibited in the Petroleum Building, while the Mechanical Engineering Building will house samples of the work being done by students of management and mechanical engineering.

The mechanical engineering shops will house the work of the Industrial Education Department, while displays of engineering drawing will be set up in Anchor Hall, School Of Veterinary Medicine.

Tours will be conducted through the veterinary hospital every half hour during the afternoon for guests desiring to see samples of the work being done by students of veterinary medicine.

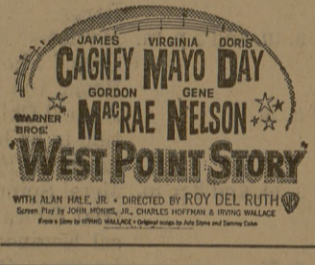

Various other exhibits prepared by students in the departments of the school will be set up in Francis Hall.
