General Gailey To Take Part In Commissioning

Brig. Gen. Charles K. Gailey, assistant commander, 2nd Armored Division, Fort Hood, who will present reserve commissions to 243 Army ROTC students in Guion Hall tomorrow, is a native of Conyers, Ga.

After graduating from West Point in 1920, General Gailey entered the army as a second lieutenant and attended the Infantry School at Fort Benning, Ga.

A three-year tour of duty in Panama, 1924-27, was followed by duty with the 17th Heavy Tank Battalion at the Tank School, Fort Meade, Md.

He was assistant executive officer of the Experimental Mechanized Force during the summer of 1928. Assignment to the 16th Light Tank Battalion followed his graduation from the Tank School. He returned to the Tank School as an instructor after completing a nine-months course at Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1929.

Tours of duty followed with the War Department General Staff and the Army War College, respectively, in Washington, D.C.

General Gailey served as aide-de-camp to Maj. Gen. George S. Simonds from 1932 to 1935.

After a course at the Command and General Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, he served with Fourth Army Headquarters at Presidio, San Francisco, Cal. Then he served 19 months as a company commander in the 27th Infantry, Hawaii.

He was transferred to Washington in 1940 for duty with the operations division, War Department General Staff, and in 1945 he was assigned as assistant division commander, 104th Infantry Division, in California.

After a three-year assignment as Chief of Staff, Headquarters, Office of Military Government in the European Theater, General Gailey was transferred to Fort Hood in October, 1950.

Divisions Smaller—

sian division is smaller than the U.S. division. And the Russians designate as divisions a lot of units which in this country are not organized along division lines.

The average U.S. infantry division at war strength contains 18,000 men, compared to the present Russian average of 8,800. Our forces are backed up in the combat zone, moreover, by fighting men who are even more numerous than the men in the divisions—combat troops in the artillery, armored forces, reconnaissance, engineers, signal communications, etc.

In many small theaters of war no divisions are used—just regimental combat teams or special purpose forces.

One high-ranking Army expert on personnel says the Army has about 65,000 men for one division of 18,000 men. To explain where the extra 47,000 men are stationed he sets up the idea of a division "slice" of the Army. To picture the division "slice" he assumes the division is in combat 1,500 miles from U.S. shores.

Many of the men in the "slice" have nothing to do with a division. The "slice" is just an account of the number of men who are assigned to various duties when a division is in combat 1,500 miles from U.S. shores.

First are the 18,000 men in the division. There are 23,000 more who would be combat troops in artillery, armor, signals etc., not assigned to any division. That means 64 per cent of the total "slice" would be in combat.

Not in combat would be 7,150 troops in communication work or 11 per cent of the total "slice". They man port facilities on the foreign shore, store and deliver supplies over there, keep highway transport and railroads going, run hospitals, maintain telegraph, telephone, radio, etc.

In the United States would be the remaining 25 per cent of the "slice"—16,250 men. Of these, 13,000 or 20 per cent would be in training, including transients—men shipping out and coming back. Sick and wounded in hospitals would number about 1,950, or 3 per cent. And 1,300, or 2 per cent would be engaged in administrative work, research, supply, home port facilities, etc.

Two Latin words, rich in sentiment! To some they awaken memories of ivy-covered halls. But to many more they recall happy days in the old country schoolhouse.

Literally, they mean fostering mother. And that's what a school becomes, a third parent, preparing her children for life.

But all of us need to realize still another "fostering" parent, The Church—the earthly tutor who reveals to men the love of the Heavenly Father.

We never graduate from the Church! Sometimes we play hooky for a while. But sooner or later most of us discover that there is no substitute for the spiritual "upbringing" the Church provides.

And that discovery is the most thrilling commencement in life, for with it begins man's achievement of the highest goals in living.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy, nor civilization, can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.
