

MSC Parking Area Not Restricted--Yet

Parking around the MSC will require more cooperation among students this fall, J. Wayne Stark, director, said this morning.

At present the parking around the center is not restricted, but with the anticipated increase in student and employee automobiles on the campus there is the danger of there becoming a traffic "snarl" around the MSC.

Stark said he had complaints coming into him about students parking their cars around the center while they were in class and occupying one parking spot all day.

"We do not want to have any regulations passed to limit the students and their cars around the center," he said. "Rather we want them to be a little more considerate of the other fellow."

Major parking areas around the center is available for the use of the general public—guests and students.

Employees of the Center are requested to park in one of the four areas set aside for them. They may park in the Unloading Zone, Parking areas at the south entrance to the center, one way streets west of the center and the areas on the side of the Center.

Interest Mounting Over Press Clinic

Enthusiasm seems to be mounting among high schools over the state as the time draws near for the first annual Texas High School Scholastic Press Clinic, to be held Saturday in the MSC.

Indications are that a large crowd of teachers and students from high schools in this section of the state will be on hand for the day-long program, which is being sponsored by the Department of Journalism. So far, delegations from Beaumont, Temple, and Columbus, to mention a few, have sent letters of acceptance.

Featured speaker for the program, which is designed to aid high school newspaper staffs and their sponsors in successfully meeting problems which might be encountered, will be Andy Anderson, columnist and special writer for the Houston Press. Mr. Anderson is widely known in the newspaper field for his interesting and amusing feature stories.

Authorization Required for Solicitations

The three school superintendents of Brazos County have recommended that any or all solicitors of funds in the name of any school of the county be required to present proper authorization for such solicitations.

The purpose of this action by the county superintendents is to protect the business firms of Bryan and College Station.

"It is the general policy of the school authorities to refrain from asking for donations from the business firms unless it is for a just and worthy cause," the superintendents said.

L. S. Richardson is the superintendent for College Station school, W. E. Carmichael for Bryan, and W. D. Bunting for the county schools.

"You can help yourself by checking all people who solicit in the name of any of the schools of Brazos County," the men enjoined local merchants.

Carlson Sees Great Future

Spring. Mother's Day last year, he was awarded the Caldwell Trophy, an honor given the outstanding junior in the Corps.

This year, Carlson sees an even greater future in store for the Corps and the College.

"When I realized it would be my responsibility to lead the Corps I knew it would be a job which would last for nine months, not merely an affair of the moment," Carlson said.

In addition, the new commander of the Corps hopes that A&M will maintain and better its already fine military record.

Although his military work has taken much of his time, Carlson still finds time for studying, as his 2.92 grade point ratio will verify. He is also a distinguished military student.

One of the new Corps commander's main projects this year will be working to help the coaches and the athletic staff.

"I'd like to see every student at A&M work to get athletes to come to college here," Carlson said.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL

GRADUATE STUDENTS BRING ADMISSION LETTER OR COURSE OF STUDY TO REGISTRATION.

In order to avoid difficulty in registration each graduate student who has an officially approved course of study is reminded that he must bring to the registration. Each graduate student who does not yet have an approved course of study must bring his letter of admission to the Graduate School which outlines the work he proposes to undertake and any background or prerequisite work which is required of him.

Each member of the Graduate Faculty who is signing up a graduate student for one of their courses should call for and study these papers. This will help to make sure that the student is properly guided in taking courses in their most logical sequence. It will frequently avoid the trouble which arises when a student fails to take a course this semester which may not be offered again within the next semester or so, thus completely disrupting his program and sequence of training.

It is also pointed out that a study of such material will materially assist the faculty member in determining whether or not a student has the necessary background and prerequisite training for successfully taking a particular graduate course he requests.

The Graduate School asks the cooperation of both graduate and faculty members in passing this request on to other faculty members and graduate students so that they may come to the registration desk properly prepared.
