

Young Politicians Relate Experiences

Fourteen students of A&M Consolidated High School were guests of the College Station Kiwanis Club at the club's weekly luncheon in the MSC yesterday.

The group related their activities and experiences in running the city for a day. The students, elected by their classmates, served as College Station city officials Monday in observance of Kiwanis International "Kids' Day."

George Johnston, student mayor, was in charge of the program. Johnston was introduced by E. E. Ivy, chairman of Kids' Day activities.

Ergle Brings Smiles
Martha Ergle, who served as councilman for Ward III (Junior class), brought a smile to everyone's face when she related some of the things she had learned. Explaining the home rule plan of government which College Station is planning to adopt, she said the character commission is composed of 16 members, but only three actually write the charter.

Becoming embarrassed because of the laughter, Miss Ergle hastily added "that was what the mayor said." Mayor Langford spent the greater part of Monday afternoon explaining the functioning of the city government. It was from his talk that many of the students on the program drew their material.

Landiss Explains

Carolyn Landiss, Ward III (Sophomore Class), explained the difference between the home-rule and general law cities. Clifton Bates, Ward I (Freshman Class) told how copies of the charter would be distributed to every qualified voter in the city, and an election held 30 days later, authorizing the adoption of the charter.

The duties of the mayor and councilmen were explained by Barbara Van Tassel, Ward III (Junior Class). Gayle Klipple, student city manager, related his interview with City Manager Raymond Rogers. Klipple explained the duties of the city manager.

Four other students explained the duties of their appointive positions. They were Sara Puddy, city secretary; Fred Anderson, chief of police; Tom Barlow, city attorney; and Joe Mothermal, Jr., utility superintendent.

Kiwanis Call For Auditions

First call for volunteers to play in "Kiwanis Kapers" has brought out several promising acts, according to C. K. Esten, director of the Kiwanis Club sponsored home talent show scheduled for October 15.

"One girl is really a beauty," said Esten, "I think maybe she can also sing. Then there is a Kiwanian who offers to sing, play the piano or even strum a guitar, but I haven't heard him yet. Within the next few days I expect to audition a wide variety of acts."

Rumors are current that a disgruntled Kiwanian will do a solo act entitled "It's Later Than You Think," but exact nature of the stunt is a carefully guarded secret. Director Esten and Club President A. C. Magee are emphasizing the community nature of the show and the open invitation to anyone interested to come in for an audition.

Social Diseases Prevalent in Area

The number of social diseases reported in the Bryan-College Station area by the Brazos County Health Unit for the week ending Sept. 22 exceeded the total number of sick cases from any other source.

Four cases of gonorrhea were discovered in Bryan, and two cases were reported in College Station. Add to that number the three cases of syphilis reported in Bryan, and the total is brought to nine.

Eight cases of diarrhea is the second largest group of diseases. Five cases were reported in Bryan, and three in College Station.

College Station's health record for the week compared with that of Bryan shows six sick cases against 24 in the city of Bryan. One case of whooping cough brought College Station up to six.

Other diseases reported in Bryan were dysentery, two cases; mumps, two; pneumonia, one; septic sore throat, four; tuberculosis, one; and whooping cough, two.

Variety of Organizations Under Student Activities

The Office of Student Activities, 2nd floor, Goodwin Hall, was a beehive of activity during the summer "slack" season, in preparation for the busy 1951-52 school year just started.

Books were audited, accounts totaled and brought up to date, stencils were cut, and mimeographed sheets were run off by the thousands for intramural athletics.

Lists of incoming students, students wives surveys, directory listings, and publications advertising and subscriptions were compiled.

Office furnishings were rearranged to accommodate the new staff, and preparations were made in order that the fall semester could commence with everything "caught up."

Now, after the summer period of "rest," the staff is "really getting busy." C. G. "Spike" White, assistant to the dean for Student Activities, is head of this office, with Pete Hardesty as his assistant.

Under the head "Student Activities," is found Student Publications, with Roland Bing as head, and Joseph Arnett his assistant; Intramural Athletics, headed by Barney Welch; Music Activities, under the direction of Bill Turner; and the Golf Course, with Joe Fagan as manager.

In addition, student concessions, including the record albums, "Songs of Texas A&M," candy and gum for vending machines, and tickets for Town Hall, and water carnivals, dances, and other entertainments, are handled by the Office of Student Activities.
