

Corps Trip Plans For Fort Worth Journey Mapped

Plans for the bi-annual TCU Corps Trip were mapped out yesterday by a six-man delegation from A&M that met with Fort Worth city officials in the City Hall at Fort Worth.

Route of march for the parade which precedes the A&M-TCU football game, as well as arrangements for parking and traffic problems were discussed with the officials.

Making the trip to Fort Worth were Lt. Col. M. P. Bowden, assistant commandant; Eric Carlson, cadet colonel of the corps; Buddy Burch, commander of the consolidated band; Bill Turner, corps operations officer; Dale Walston, public information officer; and Joel Austin, Battalion managing editor.

The Corps Trip, which will be Oct. 19-21, will be held in conjunction with the TSCW annual trip to an Aggie football game. The "sister school" at Denton will dismiss classes Saturday as will A&M so all students can be present for the parade.

Reviewing stand for the parade will be set up in front of the Texas Hotel on Main Street. The parade will form on the circle lot east of Main Street underpass of the T&P Railroad reservation. The assembly area is adjacent to the Pittsburgh Glass Company.

The parade will proceed up Main Street (north), past the reviewing stand at the Texas Hotel, and then turn west one block and back again north on Houston Street to the Court House. The line of march will then go in front of the Court House and down that street until the dismissal area at Grove Street is reached.

Fort Worth city officials meeting with the A&M group were Traffic Engineer T. R. Buckman, Traffic Lt. J. E. Wood, City Manager W. O. Jones, and Fort Worth Former Students Association president S. J. Baker.

The A&M group met with the Fort Worth A&M Club for dinner at the Cattleman's Club after the meeting and then returned to College Station late Tuesday afternoon.

Says Churchill

US-British Relations Threatened

London, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Winston Churchill said last night the anti-Americanism of British left-wingers will threaten American-British cooperation if the labor party wins the Oct. 25 parliamentary election.

A conservative government, on the other hand, would "be able to rebuild those relations of cordial and intimate comradeship and understanding with America which played so important a part in the war," he declared.

The conservative leader and wartime prime minister spoke at suburban Woodford, his constituency. He accused the left-wing laborite followers of former Health Minister Aneurin Bevan of prejudice against the United States.

Prime Minister Attlee carried the labor party's campaign into rural East Anglia. For the last six years, Attlee said, the socialistic labor government has undergone incessant partisan hammering from Churchill's conservatives.

Recalling that Churchill has been urging an end to party strife, Attlee said: "You would think that Mr. Churchill never takes part in political strife at all."

At Kings Lynn, Attlee was greeted with shouts of "the working man's friend."

Attlee for the most part limited himself to discussing farming problems.

Meeting Re-Set

The meeting of students interested in selling football programs for the Trinity game in San Antonio will not be held today at 5 p.m.

The meeting will, instead, be held tomorrow, Thursday, at 5 p.m. room 211 Goodwin Hall.

Britain's Good Will Needed To Settle Dispute

United Nations, N. Y., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Iran's deputy premier said last night only Britain's good will can bring about a settlement of the British-Iran oil disputes.

Hossein Fatemi, appearing at the first news conference since Iran's Premier Mohammed Mossadegh and his party arrived in New York Monday, again disputed the right of the United Nations Security Council to consider the case or make any recommendations.

Britain is trying to get the Security Council to adopt a resolution calling on Iran to obey an international court of justice order to halt nationalization of its oil property until the whole question can be gone over again.

Mossadegh is recovering from exhaustion at the New York hospital.

Fatemi said the Security Council has no business discussing the dispute and that Iran would not pay any attention to any neutral arbiter that the council might suggest.

The deputy premier said that Mossadegh party came here "to answer the accusations and statements of the British representatives, Sir Gladwyn Jebb, and make it clear to the whole world what the Iranian government is doing in based on justice for the sake of preserving peace."

Thursday Drill For Corps Cancelled

Regular scheduled Thursday afternoon drill for students in the Cadet Corps has been cancelled this week, according to the Commandant's office.

The cancellation was made because of the review held this afternoon in honor of delegates attending the meeting of Association of Governing Boards of State Universities and Allied Institutions.

Deadline for Rhodes Scholarships Is Nov. 3

Deadline of turning in applications for Rhodes Scholarships in District VI is Nov. 3, Dr. T. F. Mayo, head of the English department announced today.

From District VI which contains students from accredited colleges and universities in Texas, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Oklahoma, and Arkansas, four students will be given Rhodes Scholarships which are valued at $500 per year.

Single Students Eligible

Unmarried students who are citizens of the United States, between the ages of 19 and 25, and have completed at least the sophomore year of college is eligible to apply for a scholarship, Dr. Mayo added.

In the past, two Aggies have won the scholarships to Oxford University which is composed of 28 different colleges.

C. W. Thomas of La Grange won a scholarship in 1922 after having graduated from A&M with a degree in chemical engineering. While at Oxford, he studied English and received a masters in the same course at Yale. Today, he is the English department head of a New York university.

The other A&M graduate to have won a Rhodes two year scholarship is Jack Brooks. He graduated in 1946 with an electrical engineering degree. While abroad, he studied mathematical physics and is now teaching at a New York college.

Selection Base

Basis of selection for a Rhodes Scholar is as defined in the late Rhodes will where he said the student must have:

- Literary and scholastic ability attainments.
- Qualities of manhood, truth, courage, devotion to duty, sympathy, kindness, unselfishness, and fellowship.
- Exhibition of moral force of character and of instincts to lead and to take an interest in his schoolmates.
- Physical vigour, as shown by interest in outdoor sports or in other ways.

Dr. Mayo, who was a Rhodes scholar, said that grades were of the greatest importance in applying for the award.

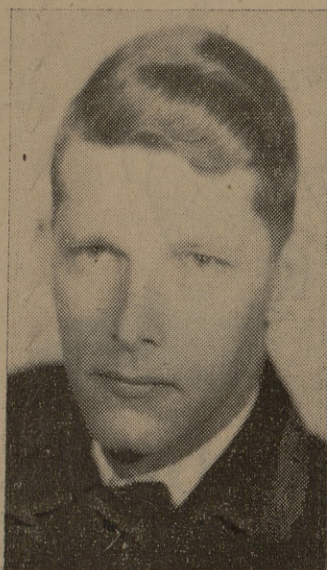

All students interested in applying for the award should start planning and do so now, Dr. Mayo urged.

Convention Speakers

Dr. George W. Frasier

Dr. Frasier, president-emeritus of Colorado State College of Education will speak Thursday before the Association of Governing Boards of State Universities and Allied Institutions. He will speak on "Preserve Selection and Training of College Teachers."

Dr. Gale W. McGee

Dr. McGee will deliver an address Friday to the Association of Governing Boards of State Universities and Allied Institutions. He is chairman of the Institute of International Affairs at the University of Wyoming.

Facilities Are Wonderful

Educators Praise A&M In Pre-Convention Talk

By HARRY BAKER and NORMAN CAMPBELL

Tuesday afternoon, the MSC was bustling with activity as delegates and guests for the annual meeting of the Association of Governing Boards of State Universities and Allied Institutions registered for the five day conference which began this morning.

Many visitors were renewing old friendships and making new acquaintances. Others were busy discussing plans for what will probably be the biggest education conference of the year.

Although these delegates have had little opportunity to inspect the campus, many have already formed opinions of A&M, its student body, and its faculty.

Some of the things which a few of these delegates found most impressive about A&M were the friendliness of the student body, the facilities of the MSC, and the military training program.

Dean Charles E. McAllister, of Washington State College, Spokane, Wash., called the northwest and southwest "the two most similar areas in the United States."

"We're both still in the pioneer stage, so to speak," he said.

"I think A&M's work in Texas is doing a lot for land grant institutions," Dean McAllister said.

He was also glad to find A&M was a non-coed school and believes there should be more of them.

Mrs. Wilward L. Simpson from Coty, Wyoming, wife of the president of the association, thought "education is the biggest sport in the nation." Although she is not a voting member of the organization, Mrs. Simpson said she enjoys attending the conventions.

A member of the executive board of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Vernon G. Eberwine, said the 150 members of the association should be able to solve many of the common problems of the nation's state supported institutions while attending the meeting at A&M.

Both Eberwine and Mrs. Simpson praised the friendly attitude shown by Aggies toward visitors and each other.

H. F. Dennis, a court reporter

From Denver, Colo., is the stenographer for the meetings. His job is to keep a word-for-word account of the proceedings of the convention. He is "overwhelmed" by the physical plant and by the MSC.

"If we don't have a good meeting," he said, "it won't be because we haven't got a wonderful place to work." Dennis said, "The Student Center is a marvelous building."

All the delegates expressed similar admiration for the MSC and many of them plan to see if their schools can't build a student center comparable to A&M's.

Col. C. F. Meyers, of The Citadel, Charleston, S. C., compared A&M with his college as a military school. He said both schools had many things in common, although his school is much smaller. The Citadel has about 1500 enrollment.

"I believe," he said "a man from a military school such as A&M or the Citadel makes a better officer than a West Pointer. A West Pointer has to be indoctrinated all over again when he enters the service."

Biggest Education Meeting Of Year Opens Today

By BILL STREICH
BATTALION NEWS EDITOR

The annual meeting of the Association of Governing Boards of State Universities and Allied Institutions officially opened this morning at 9:30 with an address of welcome from Dr. M. T. Harrington, president of the college.

Following Dr. Harrington's speech, Rufus R. Peoples, member of the Board of Directors from Tehuacana, also welcomed the visitors from 44 states, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico.

While this morning's program was the first official action taken by the association, numerous activities Tuesday set the stage for the opening session.

Registration of delegates and guests started Tuesday at 2 p. m. in the Birch Room of the MSC. At 8 p. m. Tuesday, an open house for the visitors was held in the MSC Ballroom.

Following Peoples' talk this morning, the vice-president of the association, Edgar W. Smith, president of the Oregon State Board of Higher Education, responded to the welcoming statements.

Then, Milward L. Simpson, president of the Association and president of the Board of Trustees of the University of Wyoming, delivered the president's address. The annual roll call of members was taken after Simpson's speech.

Report at Luncheon

During the luncheon today, Sarah Van Hoosen Jones, member of the State Board of Agriculture, Michigan State College, made a report on the "National Conference of Women in the Defense Decade." Presiding at the luncheon was Pres. D. M. Wiggins of Texas Tech College.

At 2 p. m. the third official session of the meeting opened. General business was discussed, including the report of the association's secretary-treasurer, Richard H. Plock, member of the Iowa State Board of Education.

The remainder of this session was devoted to committee appointments and introduction of preliminary resolutions. With this session, official business for the first day of the conference ended.

Tour Campus

The delegates and guests will be escorted on a tour of the campus this afternoon, beginning at 3:30. At 5:15 p. m. they are to be honored guests at a review of the Corps of Cadets.

Tonight, the annual banquet will be held in the Ballroom of the MSC. Highlight of this affair will be a speech by State Senator A. M. Aiken, who has been named as special representative for Governor Allen Shivers. Senator Aiken will speak on "State Support of Higher Education in Texas."

Following Senator Aiken's address, Vice-President and Provo Grayson Kirk of Columbia University will speak to the banquet guests on "Education for Citizenship." Dr. Kirk is acting president of Columbia in the absence of General Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Singing Cadets to Perform

A program of musical entertainment will be also given by the Singing Cadets under the direction of Bill Turner.

The Association members will again convene Thursday morning at 9. A panel discussion on "The Improvement of Counseling and Training" will open this session which will be the fifth official gathering of the delegates.

This discussion will be divided into three phases. Dr. E. G. Wilhamson, dean of students at the University of Minnesota, will narrate a discussion on "The Selection and Training of Counselors."

"Preserve Selection and Training of College Teachers" will be discussed by Dr. George W. Frasier, president-emeritus of Colorado State College of Education. The last phase of the general topic will be led by Dr. E. R. Guthrie, executive and officer in charge of academic personnel at the University of Washington. "Evaluation of Counseling and Teaching" will be Dr. Guthrie's subject.

The morning session Thursday will close with a luncheon at noon.

The Association of Governing Boards of State Universities and Allied Institutions is holding its annual meeting on the A&M campus this year as a result of the invitation extended the delegates by Chancellor Gibb Gilchrist and Peoples at the last meeting. This was held at Charleston, S.C.

Flight Trainer Bryan Field Program To Draw Big Crowd

High ranking military leaders, civic officials and thousands of visitors are expected to be on hand at Bryan Air Force Base Sunday when that military air station celebrates its reactivation with ground exhibits, presentations, aerobatics and demonstrations of formation flying.

The program, which will also include speeches, aviation cadet participation and guided tours of the base, comes approximately one month after the beginning of the training program at the base.

Shooting Stars to Arrive

Two T-33's — Lockheed's two-place version of the famed P-80 Shooting Star—are scheduled to arrive at the base on permanent assignment this week and will put on an aerial demonstration of jet performance. These same planes will later see use in the second phase of aviation cadet flight training at Bryan.

The afternoon's activities will get underway at 2 p. m. with an inspection of the honor guard by Congressman Teague and General Carter, while an Air Force band provides martial music in the background. Chaplain Cornelius H. Henninger, air chaplain of the Flying Training Air Force, will then deliver the invocation.

Presentation of Scroll

A feature of the afternoon program will be the presentation of a scroll outlining the history and mission of Bryan Air Force Base to a chosen aviation cadet of the first class. This scroll will later be presented to the commanding officer at the graduation ceremony of the first class of aviation cadets late in March.

At three o'clock there will be a formation flyover of T-6's, with the T-33's coming immediately after and darting in for a quick landing so that they can be readied, for inspection by the public.

Sweetheart Nominees

By POGO

TRADITION? An Aggie quit his faithful girl last week after she had been visiting her one-and-only on the campus. The story goes, they walked past Sully and he didn't salute.

SPEAKING of Sully, he's shining like a new silver dollar, as is the base of the flagpole which received its first cleaning in 12 years. Squadron 13 seems to have been responsible.

STATION wagon: something a city fellow who moves to the country buys so the country people will know he is from the city.

Masons to Elect At Initial Meeting

The Sul Ross Research Club will have its initial meeting of the year Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. in the CE lecture room, Gordon Smith club president announced today.

Election of new officers and dispatch of business relative to club activities for the coming school year are the main purposes of this meeting, Smith said.

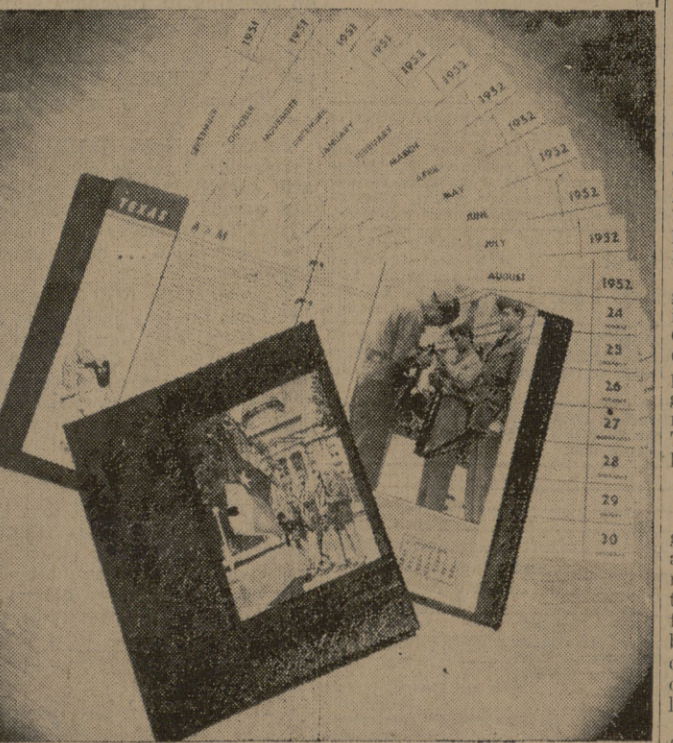

"Since the number of student Masons is rapidly diminishing, all remaining Masons are urged to be at the meeting regardless of their degree," Smith added. "The whole hearted cooperation of all student Masons is going to be necessary in order to carry on the Club's work for the coming school year," he concluded.

Ag Council to Meet Wednesday Night

The Agricultural Council will hold its organizational meeting in the Senate Chamber of the Memorial Student Center, Wednesday at 7:30 p. m., Dean C. N. Shepardson of the School of Agriculture announced yesterday.

Three officers of each club under the agriculture school will form the council, Dean Shepardson concluded.

New Aggie Calendar

It's the new Aggie Calendar being sold by the Senior Class with profits heading toward buying the class of '52's gift to the college. Only 700 copies remain of the original 1,500. Calendar Sales Chairman Van Vandenberg said yesterday.
