

Workshop to Meet Here in Summer

The National Marketing Workshop will be held on the Texas A&M campus July 11-19. The decision to conduct this meeting on the A&M campus was announced by Dr. R. D. Lewis, Director of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. The 10 day session will be devoted to research methodology in the fields of prices, trade, and transportation.

Marketing Act of 1946 gave emphasis to agricultural marketing work, and created a need for a training program. These workshops have been set up for that purpose. Dr. Harry Trelogan and Dr. Bernard Joy of the Agricultural Research Administration in Washington, D. C., were on the campus Monday and Tuesday discussing the details of next summer's Workshop with Dr. Lewis and other members of the Experiment Station Staff.

Cashion, chairman, greeted guests at the door. Mrs. J. H. Bass handled the registry, and Mrs. Gordon Gay presided at the silver service.

Lost Items Found In Security Office

Everything from lost bicycles to class rings have been turned in at the Campus Security Office, says Fred Hickman, chief of Campus Security. Many of the articles turned in have remained unclaimed for several weeks. Each article lost is of value and should be claimed at once, says Hickman.

At Home In College View

Darla Harlin, student wife, and future Aggie Curtis Chester Harlin II relax together in their College View apartments. Mrs. Harlin and her husband completely redecorated the apartment.

Harlins Prove College View Apartments Can be Attractive

Residents of College View have made a "waiting list" for apartment C-14-C, when it is vacated in June. The list is the proof of the enthusiastic rumors about a fabulous apartment in College View which looks like a "room of the Shamrock."

Darla and Curley Harlin, spending more time and energy than money, have turned their barracks apartment into a charming home. The living room, with a bamboo shade at the window and Chinese bric-a-brac on polished birch shelves of the "partition" dividing living and dining areas, has an oriental flavor. Jet black drapes, splashed with ming trees and pagodas, add distinction. The long wall of the room is covered with textured wallpaper with dark green stripes. Dividing the room, without forfeiting a feeling of spaciousness, is the partition which Curley made of shelves and dwelling. Carefully mitered corners on the shelves create the illusion of solid birch slabs. Curley, doing graduate work in the sanitary engineering department, received his BS from A&M in 1950. The Harlins lived in B-18-Y when Curley was doing undergraduate work. He is a member of Tau Beta Phi and the ASCE.

The Last Word

Festive Home Decorations Reflect 1951 Yuletide Spirit

Even though thermometers are undecided whether to soar or to skid to the freezing mark, the City of College Station is definitely arranging for a festive Christmas. Prizes mounting daily for local winners of The Battalion Christmas Decorating Contest are keeping abreast of the snowballing enthusiasm of residents in making Christmas, 1951, a festive holiday.

Delicate snowflake patterns, crepe paper Christmas carolers, brightly lighted wreaths and trees, and "snow" whipped with egg-beaters are all being seen in more and more windows. We predict that driving through College Station will be a treat by next Wednesday, which is contest judging day.

Another treat offered residents is the blanket invitation extended by the Bryan Garden Club for everyone to attend the Christmas "Pilgrimage" Dec. 13 from 4 until 9 p.m.

Improving in St. Joseph Hospital of Bryan are patients Dr. Ide P. Trotter, Dean of the Graduate School, and Egbert W. Hooker, Chief Clerk of the School of Agriculture. Recent additions to the population of College Station are five boys born at St. Joseph's. Scott William is the Nov. 27 addition to the O. W. McCurdy Jr. household, C-15-X College View. Oscar, the proud father, is an IE major.

Those interested in attending the Pilgrimage Dec. 13 and 4 until 9 p. m. may call Mrs. Mike Barrow at 2-8529 to make reservations. Mrs. Allie Jeanne Glass, daughter of Mrs. C. J. Kosarek of Bryan, is a nominee for junior class beauty at TSCW. Allie, who will be presented formally at the annual Christmas dance Dec. 15, is a counselor for the junior dormitory, and a member of Sigma Tau Delta, the Home Economics Club, the Tessie Players, and the Bryan-College Station Club.

A baby boy was born to Mrs. Joseph G. Marek at St. Joseph's, also on Tuesday. Mr. Marek is the bookkeeper for the dining hall. A tea will be held in the home of Mrs. Seale, and Mrs. E. E. Yeager is in charge of the party arrangements. Mr. and Mrs. David D. Terry Jr. welcomed Gary Robert on his birthday, Dec. 4. David, an EE sophomore, brought his family home to 23-B Vet Village. A son, William Frazier, joined the Thomas R. Newton family Nov. 30 at 1306 Bennett. Bill's father is an assistant professor in the CE department.

Chemical Society Meets in Austin

The seventh southwest regional meeting of the American Chemical Society was held in Austin last week. Representing A&M at the meeting were Professor Jensen, Watson, Hancock, Potts, LeRoy, and LeBlanc of the chemistry department. Also attending from A&M were approximately 15 graduate and undergraduate chemistry students. Numerous major chemical companies had representatives at the meeting to present papers on progress in their fields of research. Chemistry professors from various colleges also gave papers on research being conducted at their respective schools. All fields of chemistry were represented at the meeting.
