

Smith Still Great, To Play Bowl Game

By ED HOLDER
Battalion Sports Writer

The gridiron season is over for the Aggies as a team, but some of the Cadets have done well enough to rate positions on post season events.

Bob Smith, condemned this year by the more stupid football fans, has been asked to play in the Shrine tilt out in California for the West Team.

Condemned? Yes, several persons set themselves up as judges of the great game of football and, basing their opinions on Bob's 1950 record, claimed he stood as nothing but a "has been" this last year.

Let's back up a little and look over this record he set last season. Bob was a junior None of the SWC coaches knew much about him, and what's more, they weren't too worried about his racking up yardage. He didn't have the best of lines in front of him, so they figured they could hold him to a minimum of gains.

In other words, he hit them as a surprise, and when they woke up, he had rolled up enough yardage to set a record in the SWC for yards gained rushing in a single season. His total? A neat sum of 777 yards. It might also be noted that Kyle Rote, great SMU back in 1949 and 1950, made 777 yards in his best year, Lindy Berry of TCU rolled up 783 in his best season, and Byron Townsend of Texas covered 841 . . . Bob's closest contestant.

Bob scored a total of 84 points among his other feats, to place him among the top scorers of all times in the conference, he ran 75 yards from scrimmage against a powerful SMU team which placed him in the top eight of famous touchdown runs.

And it might be mentioned that in this SMU game of 1950, he played his way through a favored team, and led the Aggies to a 25-20 win. In doing so he chalked up 301 yards for an average per carry of . . . now get this . . . 13.4.

Now comes the 1951 season. Smith was great. Our coaches knew it, our students knew it, our fans knew it, and the coaches of the other SWC teams knew what this 188 pound terror meant.

If you were coaching a team against such an All-America, what would you do? If you were smart like the mentors of the teams whom we played this year, you would watch the films of last year, find his weaknesses if any, and put one of your best defensive stalwarts on the field, or maybe two, with one job the entire game . . . put the skids to that Smith boy.

All Bob had to do was appear in the game and run on the offense this year. Why? He could draw at least one of the opposing team's best defensive men out of play, and could keep the opposition on their toes and worried the whole game for fear he would break loose.

Yet did Bob do so bad as some people would have us think? Despite the odds, he rolled up 419 yards for a 4.4 yards per carry average. Now I ask you, is that bad?

Someone must think Bob is plenty good. Out of many of the fullbacks in the west, he has been chosen among the two or three to represent the west in the annual post-season classic in San Francisco, the East-West Game.

Then there is the case of Glenn Lippman, the gallopin' ghost. Glenn didn't make the Associated Press All-SWC, but he stood on the top rung of leading ball carriers in the conference. And it might be mentioned he made the All-Conference teams of most of the leading papers in Texas, and rated among the best with the International News Service and the United Press.

Glenn toted the ball 118 times and came out on top with 801 yards to his credit. His average was bettered by only one man, and this betterment was done by one who carried some 24 times less than the Ghost.

He will play beside Bob in the Shrine tilt for the West team, and we feel these two boys will do more than a good job at representing A&M and the SWC.

Lubbock Wins Over Baytown For State Title

BASED ON AP REPORT

Lubbock beat Baytown Saturday to win the state championship of AAAA high schools, and keep the title in the western part of the state.

Mistakes at the wrong times cost Baytown the game as the Westerners bolstered their first unbeaten and untied team since 1917. It also spelled doom for the Ganders who have been stopped three previous times only a step short of the title.

Quarterback Charles Brewer of the Westerners seemed to be the big gun of the day as he handled each situation with cool and cunning. His passing was exceptional and his ball handling looked like that of a college senior.

The little 155 pounder kept the Ganders on their toes throughout the tilt as he bootlegged the ball, ran with it, and then passed it time after time.

Top man for the Ganders, and leading ground gainer of the day was Kevin Lounsbury, powerful 190 pound fullback for Baytown.

Gymnastic Clinic Teaches New Routines and Pointers

By PEPE LeBLANC
Battalion Sports Writer

Members of the A&M and University of Texas Tumbling Teams performed in a gymnastic clinic which was held Saturday in the DeWare Field House.

The purpose of this clinic was to depict "helping pointers" by the coaches and the more experienced tumblers to the other members of the teams in order that they might improve for the approaching gymnastics tournaments. Bill Crenshaw, coach of the Texas squad, spoke on the promotion of interest of gymnastics in the Southwest Conference.

He told members of both teams what the judges of tournaments especially looked for in a tumbler's performance at the Southwest Meet in Dallas and in the National AAU Tourney held in the East.

"Gymnastics as a minor sport," was also mentioned by Crenshaw and by Nicholas Ponthieux, one of A&M's two gymnastics coaches.

It was announced that if more interest in gymnastics is excited by each of the SWC schools, the Athletic Council of each school would have to consider this gymnastics recreational sport as a minor sport.

Coach Norman Matthew, of the A&M squad, gave an exhibition to the clinic member of skilled gymnastics on the mat.

A&M's Conrad Webb and Harold Turner also displayed their agility in exhibitions.

Team president Harold Turner worked on the parallel bars while Conrad Webb showed his talent on both the parallel and high bars.

Texas' Darrell Williams, considered by many as an "all-round" tumbler, gave a talk on each gym apparatus.

Members of the A&M squad were Webb, Turner, Clyde Mahler, Olan Boyd, Bud Wilson, Craig Patton, Carl Johnson, N. Flores, and Charles Little.

The Aggie Tumbling Team took part in the Gymnastics clinic held here Saturday, and showed the folks some of the finer stunts of the game. They are shown here as they formed a "pyramid" while preparing for the clinic.

Ag Five Returns Home; Lose 3 Games On Tour

By BOB SELLECK
Battalion Sports Editor

A&M returned home Sunday from their eastern tour still victory-less, but the future looks brighter than when the Aggie five left College Station a week ago.

Leroy Miksch topped the Cadets scorers as the A&M quintet fell before unbeaten Tennessee 52-60. Miksch countered 14 points but it wasn't enough as the Aggies registered their fifth straight defeat.

The Cadets opened their eastern travel by losing 40-46 to Marshall College of West Va. The next stop took them into Madison Square Garden where they gave Manhattan College, one of the top basketball powers in the nation, a tough fight before fading 40-44.

Against Manhattan, the Aggies held a nine-point lead with 10 minutes left to play but were over- come by a final period Jasper rally.

The loss of two regulars early in the second half plus over cautiousness cost the Aggies another defeat.

Despite the benching of Walter Davis, the high-scoring center, and little Ray Walker, the playmaker, the Cadets managed to hold a 42-33 advantage until the final stanza.

At this point the defensive-minded Aggies made the mistake of waving the first of five free throws in order to maintain possession. The strategy backfired continually as Manhattan regained the ball each time to score.

Fast-Breaking Vols
Against A&M, the Tennessee Vols fast-breaking attack was clicking as it amassed the highest point total given up this season by the defense-wise Aggies.

The Vols extended their win streak to three straight as they were led by their 6-foot, 3-inch senior forward, Dick Bowers, who netted 14 points. Bowers was followed closely by Center Herbie Neff, the outstanding all-round player on the floor, with 13.
