

Religious Emphasis Week Begins With Reception Sunday

Religious Emphasis Week will officially get underway Sunday at 4 p. m. with a reception to be held at the president's home.

Visiting religious leaders who will conduct RE Week activities on the campus will be guests of honor at the reception.

Supper With Corps

Supper Sunday with the Corps of Cadets has been arranged for the visiting religious leaders who will live in the dorms during the week. They will eat with the men from the dorms in which they will stay.

Each of the dorm discussion leaders will return to their respective areas after supper where unit CO's will arrange for them to meet the men with whom they will be associated for the week.

The first morning service will be Monday at 10, Dr. William E. Denham, Jr., pastor of the River Oaks Baptist Church in Houston, will be principal speaker for those services.

Topics which Dr. Denham has scheduled for the week are: "Can You Be Happy Without Money?" for the opening session, 10 to 11 a. m. on Monday; "Is Christianity Reasonable?" on Tuesday 10-11 a. m.; Wednesday from 11 to 12 noon, "What Girl Will You Marry?" "Is There a Christian Answer to Communism?" on Thursday from 11-12 noon; and "Is Your Faith Adequate for Life Today," the final service at 9 a. m. on Friday.

Student discussion groups will meet for the first time Monday afternoon at 4:30 in the respective dormitory lounges. Students present at the afternoon sessions will be able to pick any subject in which they are interested in for these discussions.

Arts and Sciences DS Cards Available

Students in the School of Arts and Sciences who earned Distinguished Student recognition in the fall semester but who have not yet come to the dean's office to receive their cards in person, are asked to do so as soon as possible, announced Dean J. P. Abbott.

New Business Area Planned by Realtor

A business district covering 23 acres in the Oak Terrace Addition is included in plans for a million dollar housing project to be developed by J. C. Culpepper, College Station and Bryan realtor.

Architects' plans for business houses to be constructed in the area include a super grocery, cafeteria, men shop, coffee shop, clinic, variety shop, cleaners, drug store, hardware, washateria, hobby shop, gift shop, filling station, beauty shop, and shoe repair.

At North Gate

The district will be located adjacent to Old Sulphur Springs Road in North College Station. Directly behind the business area Culpepper plans to erect 141 family units to include 25 houses and 58 duplexes.

Culpepper estimated that one and a quarter million dollars would be spent for the development of that portion of The Oak Terrace Addition which partly lies in the city limits of College Station. About half of the 109 acre area is within Bryan's city limits.

New Drive-In

First development to begin in the business district is an $80,000 drive-in theater being built by A. P. Boyett, owner of the Campus Theater. Boyett expected the drive-in to be completed sometime in April.

Being constructed by Andrews-Parker of Bryan, the drive-in will have two auditoriums capable of seating about 300 people, in addition to a car area designed to accommodate about 350 automobiles.

The auditoriums will be located approximately 430 feet from the screen in a building housing the Forums will be held immediately after supper each night on subjects picked earlier in the year by student preferences as shown on an interest locator distributed in the dorms.

These meetings are scheduled to end at 8:30 p. m. but the leaders will remain for further discussions if any of the students desire it.

Subjects selected by the students include: "Men and Women Relationships;" "What Should a Student Get Out of Four Years of College;" "Does College Strengthen or Weaken Religious Faith?" "What is a Successful Life?" and "What Qualities Should We Seek in Our Men and Women Friends."

The leader in each dorm will be available for individual counseling during the entire week. All students who desire this may make arrangements for these private meetings with the discussion leader in his dorm.

President Gives Class Schedule For RE Week

President M. T. Harrington has announced classes will be suspended for one hour each day during the Religious Emphasis Week Services. This is being done so that all students and faculty members may attend.

The same program will be followed as in previous years, with a religious meeting one hour each morning, and special forums and discussion groups in the afternoons and evenings.

In addition to these services, twelve religious counselors, one for each dormitory having a lounge, will be on the campus to direct student forums and discussions groups.

An innovation this year, two discussions groups for faculty members will be held on the evenings of Tuesday and Thursday, respectively, at 8 p. m. in the Biological Sciences Lecture room.

President Harrington said he hopes there will be a large attendance of the faculty members at these meetings.

Piano Duo Adds Jazz to Classics

Gearharts Are Unusual Treat

By BERT WELLER
Battalion Staff Writer

Talent, beauty, and personality combined last night in Guion Hall to give Town Hall subscribers an unusual musical treat as Virginia Morley and Livingston Gearhart, duo-pianists, appeared in concert.

The sparkling beauty of Miss Morley and the commentary of Gearhart could only add to the virtuosity of the two artists. In the classic and in their popular encores each showed musicianship of the highest order in providing an evening of well-known classics and original pieces in a lighted vein.

Began With Bach

Last night's concert began with Bach's setting of the 15th century German hymn, "Jesus Joy of Man's Desiring." The pair next presented Camille Saint-Saens' "Variations on a Theme of Beethoven." From the more serious works, Morley and Gearhart turned to lighter pieces by Brahms, Offenbach, Ravel, and Gershwin. The 4 waltzes by Brahms were given at the same keyboard as the couple changed places and lead parts.

France and the gaiety of Paris received a two piano treatment as the duo-pianists presented the lilt of "Can-Can" from "Gaiety Parisien." Another dance rhythm, this time the slower and more sensuous "Habanera," formed the next selection on the program.

"American in Paris" Applauded

George Gershwin's tone poem, "An American in Paris," was the last of the pre-intermission numbers. In what was probably the audience's favorite of the evening, the clatter and bustle of the French capital received the duo-piano treatment of Miss Morley and Mr. Gearhart.

Following an intermission, the pair returned to play two numbers by Rachmaninoff. The mournful "Tears" and the bombastic "Prelude in G Minor" were the pieces selected.

The shorter numbers formed the concluding portion of the concert. An original arrangement by Gearhart of the waltzes from Richard Strauss' "der Rosenkavalier," Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Flight of the Bumble Bee," and Manuel de Falla's "Ritual Fire Dance" brought enthusiastic responses from the smaller-than-usual audience.

Original Jazz Numbers

After having paid their respect to the masters, the Mr. and Mrs. team revealed a real affection for jazz. As their first encore, they presented an original arrangement of the nursery rhyme, "Three Blind Mice."

An original composition by Gearhart was their response to the acclaim accorded the first of the jazz presentations. This number, called "Baby Boogie," combined several more nursery rhymes into a boogie number that certainly would have failed to put a baby to sleep but completely captivated their older brothers and sisters. Such tunes as "Jack and Jill," and "Mary Had A Little Lamb," received the two-keyboard treatment.

"Nola"

The perennial piano favorite, "Nola," was the third encore given by the gifted pair. Following this old stand-by, the pianists again returned to the masters for their concluding number.

Although linked in most Aggie's minds with Lava soap and the FBI, Prokofiev's "March" from the ballet, "The Love of Three Oranges," appeared in a new and different form in its two piano arrangement as played by Morley and Gearhart.

Camp Canceled For AF Seniors; Juniors to Go

By BILL STREICH
Battalion Managing Editor

Air Force ROTC cadets who will graduate before April 30, 1953 will be commissioned upon graduation without attending summer camp, Col. E. W. Napier, PAS&T, announced Thursday. The announcement was made at a meeting of Air Force seniors.

A directive from Headquarters, 14th Air Force, said all graduating Air Force seniors would be commissioned without Summer Camp attendance; however, Air Force juniors and Cadets who will be graduated after April 30, 1953 will be required to attend the camp this summer, Colonel Napier said.

Originally the Air Force had planned to send to camp all seniors and as many juniors as possible up to a total of 13,000, Colonel Napier added. The change was made because of the expanded Air Force training program which is rapidly filling all existing Air Force training facilities.

Last summer the Air Force postponed camp for juniors who would have normally taken the training at that time because of crowded conditions at existing Air Force training bases. At that time, Colonel Napier explained, the Air Force announced these cadets would be sent to camp following graduation this year.

Eliminate Training
"Because the camp was not held last year, the Air Force has decided to eliminate the six weeks summer training for seniors and commission them upon graduation," he said.

The registrar's office will be the last to move from its old quarters in what is now the System Administration Building. They will move Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

"We will be open during the moving, after a fashion," said R. C. Perryman, of the registrar's office. "For a while, part of our equipment and records will be in the new building and part in the old, but we will do the best we can."

Little At a Time
All the material that goes to make up the registrar's office will be moved a little at a time during the three days. The office has records and class cards dating back 35 years, and some records go as far back as the beginning of the school, in 1876.

The Fiscal Office is in the midst of moving now. They started yesterday and will be finished by Monday. They, too, will be open for business during the process of moving.

New Draft Test
The Selective Service College Qualification Test will be given here April 24. Exact place has not been announced by the local draft board.

Men eligible to take the test may obtain an application and a bulletin of information from the local Selective Service Board. Applications should be filled out immediately and mailed in the special envelope provided, postmarked not later than March 10. Early filing will be greatly to the student's advantage, according to the Selective Service National Headquarters.

Results will be reported to the student's Selective Service local board of jurisdiction for use in considering his deferment as a student, announced the Educational Testing Service, which prepares and administers the College Qualification Test.

Corps Sergeant-Major Will Be Named Monday

A sergeant-major for the corps of cadets will be announced by Monday, cadet colonel of the corps Eric Carlson indicated today.

The selection will determine the top junior cadet in A&M's corps. Announcement of the selection will come after months of consultation between Carlson, top corps officers, and members of the Military Department.

Panel Interviews Juniors
A special panel composed of ranking corps officers and representatives from offices of the Commandant, PMS&T, and PAS&T, interviewed juniors recommended for the position yesterday.

Carlson said the panel should arrive at a decision by Monday, if not sooner.

Much Speculation
A great deal of speculation by students in the corps has preceded the panel's final actions, although no word of the likely recipient of the office has been indicated by any member of the panel.

In the past, A&M's sergeant-major has usually moved into the position of cadet colonel of the corps in his senior year.

The panel, headed by Lt. Col. Taylor Wilkins, assistant commandant, was in session all afternoon yesterday and will probably meet again today to make their final selection.

Eliminate Training
"Because the camp was not held last year, the Air Force has decided to eliminate the six weeks summer training for seniors and commission them upon graduation," he said.

Mobile Blood Unit Slates A&M Visits

A Red Cross Blood Mobile Unit will make three visits to the College Station this spring, today announced W. L. Penberthy, chairman of the Brazos County Red Cross Chapter.

The visits have been scheduled for March 11, April 1, and May 6. Goal for each of the visits has been set at 250 pints.

Age Limit

Individuals desiring to donate blood must be at least 18 years of age, said Penberthy. Persons under 21 and over 18 will be required to have written consent of their parents or guardians, he added.

Forms to be filled out for parental permission may be obtained from top sergeants or house masters, the chairman said.

Forms Filled Out

"These forms will serve as pledges and donors will be scheduled from this group. Members of the college staff and citizens of College Station and vicinity may register by calling the Dean of Men's Office at A&M," Penberthy said.

"We would like to have a minimum of 1,000 pledges from which to draw donors for the three visits as it will require the scheduling of about 300 donors per visit in order to draw 250 pints," he added.

Visited in November
With headquarters in Beaumont, the mobile blood unit first came to A&M Nov. 13 at which time 66 student donors gave blood for men fighting in Korea. The Red Cross company of nurses returned Nov. 27 and 107 volunteers donated blood.

Defense blood centers have been established at various spots in the United States.
