

SWC Leader

Buddy Davis
Center

The top scorer in the conference, Davis poses as the greatest threat to the visiting Longhorns Saturday night in the final meeting of these two teams for this year.

Ags Clash with Longhorns For 93rd Time Saturday Nite

A&M and the University of Texas will continue their long extending athletic rivalry on the basketball court in DeWare Field House Saturday night.

Although the outcome of the game will have little effect on the final standings in the conference, a capacity crowd is expected to witness the battle.

The Cadets have been up and down all year as far as winning games is concerned but never have let down in hustle and effort.

After losing five straight games, four of them in the conference, the Aggies bounced back to lash SMU 61-47 for their most lopsided win of the season.

Tuesday night the Cadet five fell before the league leading TCU Frogs. Saturday's night clash should catch the Aggies on the "up" of their unsteady path.

Texas, rated as one of the best balanced clubs in the conference, lost its last chance to figure in the conference picture when TCU set them back 54-47 in Austin last week.

James Dowies, Texas' leading scorer, ranks fourth in the conference with 124 points. He has tossed in 44 field goals and 36 free throws.

Dowies is followed closely by the University's scrappy little guard, George Sealing who has contributed 112 points to the scoring column.

A comparatively newcomer to the TU quintet was Leon Black who entered the TCU game in the second quarter to replace Sealing and play the rest of the game.

Center Don Klein played well for Longhorns until forced to retire because of too many fouls. His absence robbed the TU team of most of their floor strength.

The Cadets are expected to be at full strength with Buddy Davis, the leading scorer in the conference, Don Binford, Woody Walker, Don Heft, LeRoy Miksch and Eddie Houser all slated to see plenty of action.

In a preliminary gain the Aggie fish will play host to the Texas Shorthorns. The Cadet freshmen put up a good fight before fading in the final seconds of the game against Wharton Junior College last week.

Davis Nears End Of Athletic Career

More than 2,200 points ago A&M's talented center Buddy Davis started his brilliant basketball career.

Now the lanky center is perched on top of the SWC scoring ladder. Davis added 12 points last night against TCU to bring his conference total to 155 points.

Just last week, Davis added to his many honors by putting on a sensational show of marksmanship and defense in scoring 25 points against SMU and dominating the rebound control.

This is the final semester of college basketball for the giant center, who stands just less than 6 ft. 9 in. And for a cager who also had to fight polio as a child, he has established himself firmly as one of the top players in the southwest.

High School Record

When Walter entered A&M in September, 1948, he brought an enviable high school record. In his senior year he tallied 648 points in 21 contests to bring his four-year total to more than 1200 counters.

He didn't adhere strictly to basketball either in his high school career. He was an outstanding track, baseball and football star, but most of the hometown folks remember him for his performances on the hardwood.

Davis' greatest attribute is his height, and he uses it to good advantage on tip-ins. Probably his next greatest talent is his ability to pivot and hit the basket as he fades toward either corner of the court.

For his showing in the 1950-51 season, Davis was named a unanimous all-SWC center and to the third team, all-American by the Helms Athletic Foundation. This season, as he has already started to do, should add merits to his basketball and high jumping records.

As a college freshman, "Buddy" led the Aggie Fish with 162 points in 12 games. As a sophomore he netted 93 field goals and 51 free throws for 237 points and had the dubious honors of leading the nation in number of fouls, collecting 101 in 24 games.

All-Around Player

Thought of mostly as an offensive star, Buddy also is a quite capable defensive standout. Last year he held the individual high scorer of the conference to a mere two field goals and two free throws while Davis, himself, tallied 11 points.

So far this year, Davis has a season total of 316 points. His conference total is 155, and with three games left on the Aggie schedule Davis may be able to break his own record of 352 points scored last year.

Ping Pong, Bowling Starts Intramurals

Squadrons 1, 2, 5 and Battery 7 got off to a flying start in intramural ping pong Tuesday as the Freshmen intramural sports program for the semester started. Co. 12 and Squadron 15 marked down winning starts in the bowling competition.

Air Force lads in 5 and 2 scored clean sweeps in their ping pong duels with Squadron 3 and Co. 14, winning five out of five matches. Battery 7 and Squadron 1 scored four wins in their series.

D. R. Edward's score of 238, the highest of the day, paced Co. 12's bowling victory over the Fish Band by a count of 609 - 571 Squadron 15 outpointed Co. 11, 580-541.
