

Students to Get Scholarships

Eight A&M students will receive scholarships totaling $2,833 this spring, provided they meet requirements. The awards will be presented by the Faculty Committee.

Qualifications for students who receive one of the eight scholarships are scholastic work, evidence of leadership, and a need of financial assistance. Students are invited by the Faculty Committee to submit applications on their own behalf or in the interest of students who they feel deserve the award.

The Undergraduate scholarships to be awarded include: the Krueger Award, the Jesse H. Jones Reward for Achievement, the Albert D. Banta Senior Award, W. S. Mosher Memorial Scholarship, Lulie Hughey Lane Scholarship Award, Fort Worth A&M Mothers' Club Award, and the Brazos County A&M Mothers' Club Senior Award.

$500 Award
Valued at $500, the Krueger Award will be given to a present member of the Junior class who has made a high scholastic and personal record while at A&M. In addition, he must be a classified senior for the fall semester, 1952. The recipient of this award must be a student who, during his three previous years at A&M, has earned a substantial portion of his school expenses through student labor at the college.

College Receives $11,900 in Grants

New gifts and grants representing $11,900 in scholarships and awards, have been made to the college, E. E. McQuillen, executive director of the College Development Fund announced today.

The gifts and grants are from B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation, W. P. and Bulah Luse Foundation, Gifford-Hill company, Gifford-Hill Pipe Line company, H. Larsen and the Dick Price Motor company, Dallas; Herman F. Heep, Austin; Southern States Life Insurance Company, L. E. Cowling, (Houston Stock Show), Houston, and the Deep East Texas A&M club of Gregg County.

Only One Student Left in Hospital

The only student in the A&M Hospital is William E. Wright, junior in "B" Transportation, who was admitted Feb. 26.

Released from the hospital Tuesday morning were Robert Gates, junior in "D" Vets and James H. Menge, a freshman from Co. 6, Infantry.

A student deserving of recognition should be rewarded. This is the central idea behind the Jesse H. Jones Reward for Achievement. Value of the award is $333.33 and will be made available to the recipient at the beginning of the fall semester. To earn this award, a student must have earned a large percentage of his expenses during his three years in school. He must also be a present member of the Junior class and must be eligible for senior classification at the beginning of the fall semester next year.

Students Win Scholarships

Two A&M students have won awards in landscape architecture. The judgment was held at the University of California.

Ben F. McDonald, Houston, won one of the four Blue Seal Awards in a judgment of a Class A, No. 1, landscape exchange problem, "A Landscape Laboratory."

Don Austin, Corpus Christi won recognition as his problem will be in the traveling exhibit which will circulate to the major universities teaching landscape architecture.

McDonald and Austin are seniors in landscape architecture.

McDonald and Austin are seniors in landscape architecture. Schools competing were University of Illinois, Michigan State College, Ohio State University, University of Georgia and A&M.

The jury consisted of some of the country's leading landscape architects including Thomas D. Church, Theodore Osmundson, Edward A. Williams and R. Burton

LeRoy Miksch led the Aggies back to the lead in the opening seconds of the final period with a clean set shot from the head of the free throw area.

From then on the A&M charges traded OCU one field goal for two until, with three minutes still to go, Coach Floyd issued instructions to put the game on ice.

Arnold Short and Jim Thompson were the last men to add to the Chieftains score, Short on a field goal and Thompson with a free throw.

Plans Readied For Livestock Meeting Here

Plans were in readiness today second annual livestock marketing and grading conference to be held at A&M March 10 and 11 under auspices of the college's Animal Husbandry Department.

Dr. J. C. Miller, head of the department, advised livestock producers and agricultural workers who are interested in attempting to make their own reservations at Bryan and College Station tourist courts or hotels.

Dr. Miller announced that a registration fee of $3 will be charged to cover expenses of the short course.

He said the latest information on grades and market classes of livestock will be given producers, vocational agriculture teachers, county agents and others interested in livestock.

Those attending will be given an opportunity to grade both live animals and carcasses of cattle, hogs and sheep.

Live animals which are discussed at the conference will be slaughtered in the college meats laboratory, and the carcasses will be graded by the group.

In addition to staff members of the Animal Husbandry Department, top representatives of the livestock and meat industries will appear on the program, Dr. Miller said.

Koehler to Speak At WMF Meeting
The Rev. Alvin Koehler of San Juan, director of Mexican missions of the American Lutheran Church, will be the principal speaker at the Brenham Group Convention of the Women's Missionary Federation of the American Lutheran Church to be held at the MSC May 14.

The Women's Missionary Society of Our Saviour's Lutheran Church will be host to between 250 and 300 delegates, said Mrs. A. H. Karcher, Jr., local WMS president.

Artist Here
Ramon Froman, celebrated portrait painter of Dallas arrived here today at noon. He will remain here through Sunday to do charcoal portraits. Anyone interested should contact Mrs. Ralph Terry, art director in the MSC. Sitings for a portrait will take an hour and 15 minutes.

Oil paintings by Froman are on display in the promenade of the MSC, Mrs. Terry said.

Geology 647 New Different Course

Pleistocene Geology, Geology 647, a new and unusual advanced course is being presented for the first time at A&M by Dr. W. Armstrong Price, professor of geological oceanography. This course, currently being taught in the department of oceanography for the department of geology, treats chiefly the geology of coastal plains, interior high plains, river valleys, sand dunes, and former lakes. It does not confine itself to glacial geology as is the case in similar courses presented at many other academic institutions in the United States.

Present enrollment in Geology 647 emphasizes the importance and striking nature of the course material. Only professors and experienced consulting geological oceanographers seeking the PhD degree are currently enrolled.

Enrollment in Course
Enrollment includes three professors from the geology department, one professor from the department of civil engineering and two experienced geological oceanographers. In addition, three professors from petroleum engineering and one from geology are auditing the course.

Among these auditing professors are two heads of college departments. These ten students and the instructor are, to a considerable extent pioneering in the geology of the Pleistocene of the western Gulf of Mexico region in the study and presentation of this course. It is highly probable that this is the first time such material for advanced study and discussion has been presented in the state of Texas, Doctor Price said.

Doctor Price has specialized in Pleistocene Geology for more than 20 years. His activity in such research led him into geological oceanography, which is his current, dominant field of interest. Pleistocene geology and geological oceanography are closely associated and mutually supporting fields of scientific research and knowledge.

Pleistocene deposits cover most of the oceanic floor area. Although not thick, these deposits represent the most readily attainable oceanic deposits beneath the present sedimentary layer since they can be obtained by short length coring devices.
