What Price Loyalty?

IN THE LAST few years the people of the United States have aroused themselves to meet the challenge of communism, whether open or secret. Outraged by the attacks on their society, they have risen to repel the danger. The same alertness, the same moral courage, the same effctive counter-attack by publicity and legal process are now required to answer the arrogant challenge of the criminal underworld. If any doubt of this necessity existed, it has been removed by recent outrages designed to silence citizens who have dared aid the law.

The bomb slaying of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Wright in New Haven is only the latest of these attacks on citizens who express their loyalty in active, courageous support of the law. Mr. Wright had thwarted a holdup and was to be the chief witness. The accused had been released on bail, and had tried to suppress Mr. Wright's testimony by bribery. Then a bomb was planted in the Wright truck.
