

A&M Greets Freshmen In Traditional Form

IT'S NOT THE MOST beautiful campus; the walls are not splashed with clinging ivy; the girls are few and usually married; but this is a college.

Most of the walls are red brick; the green grass will be found in front of the Memorial Student Center, the administration buildings, and Kyle Field; and you'll soon get the germ of waiting at the Postoffice for the letter from the girl. This is Texas A&M College.

We join the administration and faculty in welcoming you freshmen to a campus, long famous for its learned men and traditions. Here you will find a place.

Creds, religions, pasts are forgotten once you enter one of A&M's four gates. They are named, as you readily will learn, for the four directions—North, South, East, and West, all directions in which you can traverse and find an Aggie.

You'll be proud. First, we'll tell you, then you find out for yourself. Some of it's good, a little bad, but most of the good will stick.

Homesickness will be around a while, but it'll leave. New friends will be made with every handshake. As days pass, you'll blame the administration, sophomores, and faculty everytime something goes wrong, but later realize it was an error of your own.

But that's to come later. Now, we just want to say "Howdy." This will be your home. It's what you make it.

Welcome Professor

TWO SHOCKS will be experienced tomorrow.

First will be the freshmen trodding on a strange campus eager to make the right move.

Second will be the new faculty members also hoping to move in the right direction.

We might add a third. Returning faculty members, rested, refreshed, knowing once again that through the year's A&M freshmen are much alike.

A welcome to both faculty groups, and may the shocks of all groups lessen the unavoidable confusion.

National Politics On The Move

Ike, Adlai's Campaigns

By Associated Press

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, jubilant over his triumphant sweep through Dixie, formally opens his presidential campaign in Philadelphia tonight with an address outlining his views on foreign policy.

The Republican presidential nominee is expected to plunge headon into this major campaign issue by sharply criticizing the Truman administration's conduct of foreign affairs.

The general returned to New York last night from a two-day, six-speech drive through the Solid South—first ever made by a GOP presidential candidate—that drew about 300,000 persons in Atlanta, Jacksonville, Miami, Tampa, Birmingham and Little Rock.

Aides conceded publicly the enthusiastic Southern reaction exceeded their "fondest expectations." Privately, the Eisenhower camp was elated. One of the general's top advisers predicted a November split in the traditionally Democratic South.

Eisenhower himself gained confidence, and, some said, developed a brand-new fighting personality. From Philadelphia, the general will push on to Chicago tomorrow, and then on Saturday to Kassel, Minn., where his path will cross that of the Democratic presidential candidate, Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois.

Both will speak in Kassel Saturday.

Stevenson in Illinois

Stevenson today was in his Springfield, Ill. headquarters, putting the finishing touches on speeches he will deliver on a Western campaign beginning tomorrow in Denver.

Meanwhile, there were reports that Stevenson's supporters were trying to drive a wedge between Eisenhower and Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio in order to split GOP ranks.

Some said the Democrats may get a "major break" in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Iowa as a result of the advice by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the Chicago Tribune, to Republicans to ignore both party candidates and concentrate on a third party for 1956.

Nixon Speaks

Sen. Richard M. Nixon of California, GOP vice presidential nominee, speaks in Hartford, Conn., before a reception of women Republicans. He scheduled an afternoon news conference, to be followed by another speech before a special Republican convention tonight. He returns to Main tomorrow.

Nixon said in Sanford, Me., yesterday that there are 10 uncovered cases of government corruption for every one the public knows about.

Sen. John J. Sparkman of Alabama, the Democratic vice presidential candidate, heads for New Mexico on the second leg of his Western tour.

Sen. Joseph McCarthy, R-Wis., opened his own campaign for re-nomination last night in suburban Milwaukee with a scathing blast at Stevenson.

McCarthy Campaigns

McCarthy's major opponent in the Sept. 9 primary is Leonard Schmitt, an attorney. The incumbent senator said in his speech—broadcast over 31 radio stations—that "I need your votes next Tuesday—I need them badly."

In addition to attacking Stevenson, McCarthy blasted at communism in government and the State Department.

Republican Sen. William Langer of North Dakota, seeking re-election, told the AFL National Association of Letter Carriers in New York that Truman is a great statesman who "couldn't be bribed, couldn't be bought, and couldn't be bullied." Langer often votes with the Democrats in the Senate.

Texans Favor Ike 10 to 1, According To Shivers' Mail

Austin, Sept. 4—(AP)—Texans are telling Gov. Allan Shivers 10-to-one they approve his stand against Democratic Presidential Nominee Adlai Stevenson.

Shivers' office yesterday said he has received 6,065 letters and telegrams generally backing him, and 603 saying they are for the Democratic presidential nominee.

Tabulators in the governor's office said actually the simplified division represented those who say they are going to vote for Dwight D. Eisenhower, and those who say flatly they are going to vote for Stevenson, as anti-Shivers.

Shivers, however, has never flatly said he was going to vote for Eisenhower. He has said that he personally can not vote for Stevenson.

Mail Still Coming

As huge volumes of mail continued to roll into the governor's office in response to his pleas for Texans to express themselves, there were these political developments:

Harrison County Democrats held what was called a "special caucus" at Marshall and instructed their state delegates to vote for Eisenhower and his running mate, Richard Nixon, as the nominees of the Democratic Party of Texas.

The state convention which will decide what the official party in Texas will do about instructing its electors will be held in Amarillo Tuesday.

Demos Rally

Backers of the Stevenson-Sparkman national ticket were beating the drums for a rally tomorrow night at Corsicana, where former State Atty-Gen. William McCraw will be the principal speaker. One of the sponsors of the rally is John C. Calhoun, former chairman of the state Democratic Executive Committee.

Alvin Lane said if Texas Democrats propose a coalition set of presidential electors for Eisenhower, he was sure the Republicans would be glad to consider it.

The count of mail in the governor's office does not include around

1,000 letters that tabulators have not had time to get around to.

The letters represent dozens of shades of opinions. The governor himself has not yet analyzed them. He probably will on his return to his office tomorrow.

Shivers Ponders Drought Aid Delay

Austin, Sept. 4—(AP)—Gov. Allan Shivers yesterday wanted to know why the delay in Washington in granting Federal aid for drought-hit Texas.

He wired Raymond M. Foley, administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency: "Drought still going on in Texas. What is delay in making assistance available under Public Law 875? Request that this matter be expedited."

Horticulture Plant To Open This Fall

Students enrolling in horticulture courses this fall will be the first to attend class in the new $60,000 horticulture plant, said Fred R. Brison, professor of horticulture.

The plant includes a green house, a class room, and living quarters for student labor, he explained.

Facilities include a hot bed, a steam sterilizer, a cold storage vault, and a soil bin.

The new plant is located north of the old dairy farm, just across from the College Station railroad depot.
