

Bakery Chooses Rooms In MSC

The MSC bakery is in the process of moving to the lower level of the Center to the place formerly occupied by the receiving room. Miss Gladys Black, Center food director, gave the reason for the move as, "too cramped quarters in the main kitchen for both the bakery and other food departments."

The bakery should be ready for use by Monday, according to Miss Black.

Teague Sees More Drought Aid In Texas

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 — (AP)—Rep. Olin Teague of College Station predicted yesterday that drought-plagued counties in his state which have not already received aid would get early relief.

Teague said Raymond Foley, head of the Housing and Home Finance Agency and director of the emergency relief program, told him he has asked President Truman to make more money available to get hay delivered to livestock growers.

The federal government already has shipped 20,371 tons of drought aid hay into Texas, according to the State Agriculture Mobilization Committee.

The committee said 107 counties designated as disaster areas have ordered 90,488 bales of hay. Under the emergency program, the government buys hay in areas where its plentiful and sells it below cost to farmers and ranchers in drought areas.

Newcomers Hold Tea

Mrs. M. T. Harrington entertained the Newcomers Club of the College Women's Social Club with a tea at the president's home Monday afternoon.

In the receiving line with Mrs. Harrington were Mrs. Gibb Gilchrist, Mrs. Ray George, president of the Newcomers Club, and Mrs. H. W. Barlow, sponsor for the current year.

Mrs. Joe Davis and Mrs. M. M. Rotsch, out-going president, presided at the silver services at each end of the tea table. The centerpiece was maroon and white chrysanthemums and gladioli.

The same motif was repeated in floral arrangements in the living room and den where the following officers of the club served in the houseparty: Mesdames L. A. Gimbrede, Paul McMurtry, Dale Honoycutt, L. E. Davids, W. A. Kammlade, R. J. Vernon, James W. Griffith, W. H. Hedener, Roland Bing, W. L. Tidwell and W. J. Morris.

State Fair Has Guffaws Over Political Movement

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Big grins and slight chuckles took over usually serious Texas politics Tuesday, at a giggle-a-minute pace.

But it was still politics. . .

Take the scene at the State Fair of Texas. A pretty blonde in the Stevenson-Sparkman Democratic booth, busy sorting literature to hand out, had time to say a cheery "good morning" to passersby. She apparently didn't know what was about to happen across the boulevard.

When the fair opened Saturday, the Democrats had a fair-sized white booth with large placards and a neon sign telling Texans to vote for Adlai Stevenson and his running mate, John Sparkman.

GOP Turquoise

Across the wide street, the Republicans—or Democrats helping them—had a turquoise-painted Eisenhower-Nixon booth, a bit smaller.

That was too much for the GOP. Tuesday morning they finished work on a new booth with windows on all sides and painted red, white and blue. Big billboards went up, and Republicans launched a huge silver balloon with "Ike" printed on it. But still no blonde. . .

In Houston, Eisenhower-Supporter John Blaffer had let his enthusiasm for the Republican candidate get him in a slight jam.

Sixth game: Vic Raschi and Albie Reynolds, Yankees' two big siege guns, double team Dodgers, 3-2. . . Two more home runs by Duke Snider, bracketing him with Ruth and Gehring as only players to hit four home runs in one series. . . "Good, gosh, is that true?" asks the Duke, unbelieving.

Seventh game: Mickey Mantle's towering home run in the sixth and his single in the seventh, scoring another run. . . "Those Yankees didn't miss DiMaggio a bit—that Mantle killed us," says a morose Jackie Robinson in the Brooklyn Dressing room.

Blaffer, an oil man, ordered some confetti to throw on a parade planned for Eisenhower next Tuesday when he is in Houston for a speech. But because of a tight schedule, the parade has been cancelled.

Now Oilman Blaffer has his confetti—a whole truckload—and no place to throw it.

On a downtown Dallas street, a Stevenson backer was telling an "undecided" voter why he should "stay with the Democrats."

"Remember those 35-cent steaks you didn't have the money to buy?" asked the Stevenson man. "Look what the Democrats have done for you?"

Junior College Conference Ends

The Junior College Conference, which was held on the campus for two days, ended Tuesday. The ninth annual conference was attended by 52 administrators from junior colleges in Texas, Oklahoma, and Louisiana.

Most of the work done in the conference was handled by discussion groups, who reported on such topics as academic, vocational and personal counseling, and problems in agriculture, engineering and semi-professional engineering programs.

Today's work started at 9 a. m. with a symposium on "How Can the Junior College Help the Industries of Our State." Dr. Ralph R. Fields, consultant to the conference presided. The symposium consisted of Lee E. Cook, vice president of Texas Power and Light Company; E. J. Fox, superintendent of industrial relations, South Texas Division, Texas Company; G. T. Orgelman, supervisor, engineering personnel, Chance Vought Aircraft; and H. F. Dodge, assistant supervisor of technical services, Texas Employment Commission.

During the afternoon the conference heard reports of record-riance and Jocco Roberts.

"Yeah," said the wavering Democrat, "but they ain't done nothing for me this year!"

"The Dallas Morning News, supporting Eisenhower in the present campaign, joyfully announced that Adlai Stevenson was backing Ike. Of course it was another man—not the Democratic Party's candidate.

Adlai For Ike

The News quoted Caddo Mills Druggist Adlai Stevenson, 59, as saying "it was my name long before the Democratic nominee was born."

Both men were named for the same man—the nominee's grandfather—but are not kinsmen.

About the only serious news of the day, politically speaking, came from State Democratic Headquarters.

The Democrats announced Senator Tom Connally would introduce the presidential nominee when he speaks in Houston, Oct. 18. And Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, the Democrats said, would introduce Stevenson, Oct. 17, when he's in Dallas.

Speaker Rayburn also announced that in case of rain Stevenson would speak at the Sportatorium, a wrestling arena, instead of at the State Fair grounds. . .

Which led a wag to remark that any candidate that could get the "blame" for a rain in Texas would surely carry the state.

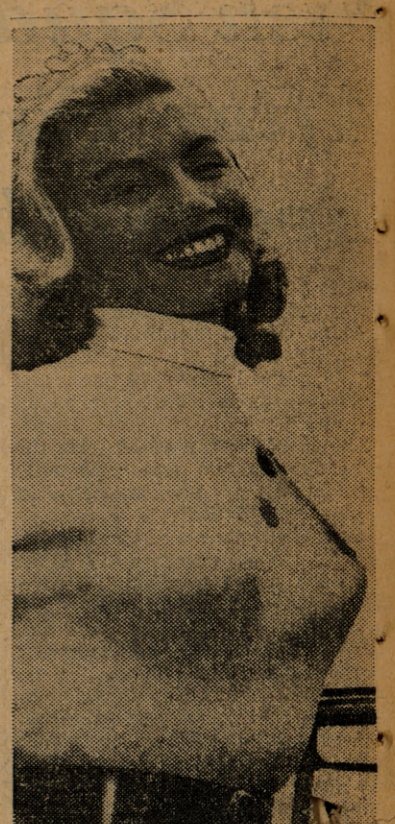

Wives Bridge Club Meets Thursday

The Aggie Wives Bridge Club will meet Thursday night in the MSC Assembly Room at 7:30 p. m., said Mrs. Anne Crosson, reporter.

Last Week 89 Aggie wives played bridge. Mrs. Gwen Collins and Mrs. Evelyn Hearn won high score and second high respectively for the regulars. Mrs. Pat Morley won high score in the intermediate group.

Teachers for the beginners were Mesdames E. L. Angell, G. W. Adriance and Jocco Roberts.

Mrs. Crosson and Mrs. Jeanne Cline were the hostesses.

WINNER IN WOOL—Jeanne Davis, 22-year-old hazel-eyed blonde from Opp, Ala., is the "proud" winner of the title "Miss Sweater Girl 1952." The judges said "the soft, all-wool turtle-neck sweater caught our eyes."

Canterbury Club Holds Barbecue

The Canterbury Club of St. Thomas Episcopal Church will have a hot dog barbecue in Hensel Park tonight at six.

All members of the club are asked to come and bring their friends, according to the Rev. R. L. Darwal, minister at St. Thomas.

Upperclassmen will meet at the church for rides to the park and freshmen will meet at the Campus Theatre.

Also on the Canterbury Club's program for the future is a talk by Bishop Kennedy of Honolulu at a dinner in the MSC Friday, Oct. 17.
