Lucile Cummings Stars in Town Hall

Lucile Cummings, named by some music critics as "the foremost contralto in America" will star in the second Town Hall concert of the year, tonight at 8:15 in Guion Hall.

Her selections will include num-

Sniffles Ride Herd on Lots Of Cadets

Sniffles are here again! With the advent of cool weather at A&M, comes the traditional (or almost traditional) dripping nose and sore throat.

Cold epidemics are aggravated by the fact that so many students live in the close quarters of the dormitories.

Since school began in September, the College Hospital has distributed a total of 130,000 aspirin tablets, 23,000 cold tablets and 16 gallons of their luscious cough syrup.

In contrast to the physical condition of many Aggies, Dr. J. E. Marsh, college physician, commented that, "we have no more cases of colds than we do cases of men who cut their feet on broken bottles."

However, it seems that if one runs around in his bare feet during the fall months, he deserves to get a cold as well as cut his feet.

Students Express Opinions

Seating Problem Still Acute

By BOB HENDRY
Battalion News Editor

Student opinion of the new seating arrangement in Kyle Field could be summed up: "We have a wonderful seating arrangement; now all we need are seats."

Except for the shortage of seats and a few other details, the new seating arrangement set up by the Student Senate last week seems to have proved favorable to both corps and civilian students.

"I think the seating arrangement as a whole is pretty fair," said Johnny Walker, senior from McLeod. "It was a lot better than the system used at the Kentucky game.

Should Get In Right Section

"It seems that the main thing now," Walker continued, "is getting everyone a seat in the right section. It might help matters by painting each section different colors so that they would be easily recognizable."

"I like the new arrangement," commented Paco Coronado, senior from Laredo, "The senior section is actually not too big as some seem to think. Our section is continually infiltrated by former students and others who cannot be forced out and take up a great number of seats."

These opinions are not held by some of the other members of the senior class, however. Robert Stone, senior from Pampa, blasted the arrangement by saying, "I don't like it at all. There are not enough seats for the number of students and their dates."

"The situation might be improved by having the RDOs or KKS police the entrances better," Stone said. "Stricter checking of class cards and the roping off of sections would probably help also."

Doesn't Like It

"I don't like it," agreed Eugene Letsos, senior from Galveston. "I barely managed to get a seat on the 5 yard line. I believe closer regulation on who goes up the ramps should be conducted."

"I think the seating arrangement is fine," contradicted Jerry McFarland senior from Dallas. "However, there are a few changes

Needs $500

Rec Council Plans Appeal To Chest

The College Station Recreation Council will perfect plans for an appeal to the Community Chest to reconsider its allotment of $500 for recreation work next year.

The Council also surveyed the progress of its campaign to put the recreation program on a city tax-supported basis by amendment to the city charter.

"Unless the Community Chest increases our allotment, we will have to reduce our activities, even the swimming program, and probably eliminate some things," said Mrs. J. D. Lindsay, Recreation Council treasurer.

Donald D. Burchard, Council chairman, pointed out that even if the proposed amendment was passed, it wouldn't go into effect until next year.

"We will have to have funds to operate on this summer," he said.

The Council asked for $1,500 from the Community Chest this year, but the request was modified to $500 by the Chest committee. Last year the Council got $900 dollars from the Chest drive.

Other donations last year included $250 from the city, and $300 from the Chamber of Commerce. The rest of the Council's funds came from fees paid by participants and carry-overs from the year before.

"This year we will be able to carry over only $150 to $200," Mrs. Lindsay said.

Burchard added if more funds were not obtained, the only alternative would be to raise the fees.

"Since the recreation program is a charity operation, since fees do not begin to meet operational costs, and many of the participants are from poor homes, increased fees would work a real hardship," Burchard said.

U.N. Birthday Celebration Set In 'Y' Chapel

A United Nations birthday celebration will be held in the YMCA Chapel Friday night at 7:30 p. m., Charles Beagle, President of the YMCA Cabinet, said yesterday. Dr. David H. Morgan, Dean of the College will present a short speech on the history and accomplishments of the United Nations since its organization seven years ago.

The remainder of the program will be an informal get-together between foreign students, other Aggies, and local residents, Beagle said.

The main idea of the meeting is to celebrate the United Nations' seventh anniversary. In past years, there have been as many local residents present as foreign students, Beagle said, the main trouble is lack of response from Cadets.

Ags Travel Time Extended To Baylor With Cut Classes

A revised schedule for Saturday morning classes has been released by the office of the Dean of the College. Each class will meet for forty minutes instead of the usual fifty, Dean David Morgan said.

The purpose of the revised schedule is to allow all students interested in driving to Waco for the A&M-Baylor football game, to meet all their morning classes and still have plenty of time to get to the game, Morgan added.

Below is the revised schedule for Saturday classes:

- 1st period—8:00 to 8:40
- 2nd period—8:50 to 9:30
- 3rd period—9:40 to 10:20
- 4th period—10:30 to 11:10

Polliwog Travelogue

Frog Views A&M Via Tunnel Tour

(Editor's Note: This story was written by a TCU visitor down for the game.)

By HORN McFROG

Say, this Cow College is shore a big place. Why, the Administration Building is even bigger than Amon Carter's summer home. And that AH Pavilion just falls short of the Will Rogers Coliseum.

I arrived in College Station's version of Times Square, the North Gate, this morning and, after admiring the skyline of the lovely city, I asked the first person I saw how to get to the football stadium. His name was Pinky something-or-another. He made some remark about "stick 'em Aggies" and then told me to walk in the direction of P. L. Downs Jr. Natatorium.

Felt At Home

As I strolled down a street on which cadets are not allowed to run (the sign said "Military Walk"), I felt as if I were still in friendly old Fort Worth. Everyone that passed me smiled and said "Howdy." I am sure this is done before the TCU game only to make us feel at home.

Suddenly I realized I didn't have the slightest idea where that swimming pool was and besides, I didn't want to go swimming. So I stopped a young looking "kaydet" and once more asked my question. This man's name was Trout or Bass or Carp or maybe it was Fish—I forget—anyway his last name was Jones.

"I'm sorta down and out," says I, "how do you get to—"

Down to Drown

A wild light came into Flounder Jones' eyes. "Drown out? Why sure, sure, Just go down into that manhole there and follow the steam tunnel."

I did as I was directed and picked my way through a hall underground, obviously used by the Aggies for going to class on cold days. Why don't we get something like that at TCU?

Anyway—I came out in what I think was a dormitory resembling some I'd seen before in Huntsville. The group living there—I believe they were in the quarter-masters as they all had a little pair of tailor's scissors on their left collar—really was glad to see me. They blew a call on a bugle and the whole dormitory fell out to greet me.

Signs of Esquire

In the dormitory area, I noticed several signs hanging from the buildings. I suppose they were part of an advertising campaign for Esquire Magazine. I copied (See FROGS, Page 6)

The Student Life Committee (SLC) voted yesterday to change the selection date of Who's Who and consider means of raising funds for the now broke Student Aid Fund.

Under the new amendment passed by the SLC, Who's Who now can be selected anytime in the year. This is being done to allow A&M to join the National Collegiate Who's Who organization which has a deadline early in December. Requirements were not changed.

The now defunct Student Aid Fund was explained by Committeeman Daniel Russell. He explained the fund's birth from money left over from the Slidham Fund in about 1934. After receipts from two football games were used to increase the fund, it had a value of about $2,000. Last attempts to raise money for the fund was in 1939 and 1940.

Investigation Planned

A committee will be appointed in the near future by SLC Chairman Joe Sorrels to investigate methods for raising funds. Football games between Air Force and Army units or between underclassmen and upperclassmen were discussed as possible methods of raising money.

Joe Mattei, senior class president, was elected parliamentarian. John Samuels, vice president of the MSC Council, created a stir when he introduced a proposal to increase the activity points of the MSC Council President.

Changes approved by the SLC in the activity points were to increase the Council President's position from six to 10 points; vice president from four to six; and give council and directorate members four points.

C. G. (Spike) White, secretary of the SLC, explained the funds controlled by the committee and set before the group the plan to continue the awarding of Aggie Activity Appreciation Tickets. They voted to continue the practice of awarding tickets.

The SLC will meet again Nov. 17th.

Ag Group Asks Establishment Of Honor Plan

An honor system for the School of Agriculture was the main topic discussed by the Texas Alpha Chapter of Alpha Zeta last night.

Alpha Zeta members discussed the possibility of establishing an honor system this year, or as soon as possible. The members decided Alpha Zeta would work actively for, and back an honor system to be initiated with this year's freshman class.

The fraternity plans to work with the School of Veterinary Medicine in creating the honor system for the School of Agriculture. However, many details need to be worked out concerning operation of such a system.

Gene Sted, chancellor of the Texas Alpha Chapter, gave a report of his trip to the National Biennial Conclave of the Fraternity of Alpha Zeta, held this summer in New York City. He gave a full report of business sessions and accomplishments of the conclave, as well as a report on other activities of the delegates.

Albert Blankenship was appointed head of the program committee to work out meeting plans for the remainder of this school year.

Bobby Henderson gave a report on the progress of the initiations committee working on selection of new Alpha Zeta members. Henderson reported their work would be completed in time to make final selection of new members at the next regular meeting on Nov. 3.

Baylor Tickets Go Off Sale Tomorrow

Student and date tickets for the Baylor game will be on sale until 5 p. m. Wednesday, said Pat Dial, assistant business manager of the athletic department. The price of student tickets is $1.20, and date tickets are $3.60.

Student and date tickets will not be available to A&M students in Waco.

Reserve seat tickets will be on sale until Friday at 5 p. m., and at the game Saturday if the supply holds out.

Weather Today

CONTINUED COOL

WEATHER TODAY: High scattered clouds with 12 to 15 miles per hour winds. The high yesterday was 84 and the low 47.

Aggies Consult With Rice YMCA

Dean of Men W. L. Penberthy and five members of the YMCA consulted with students and staff members of Rice Institute in Houston Monday night about plans for the establishment of a YMCA there.

The group from A&M was met by Guy McBride, Dean of students at Rice, and Bill Lee, temporary chairman of the YMCA group there. The A&M students discussed the program carried on here and answered questions from the hosts about their proposed organization.

A group from Sam Houston State Teachers College in Huntsville was also at the meeting. Students representing A & M were Charles Beagle, Jules Vieaux, Ronnie Hudson, Bubba Heath, and Red Cashion.
