

Aggies to Nip Hogs; UT Over Mustangs

By ED HOLDER
Sports Editor

Aggies to take Arkansas by 13. The Cadets have been looking trim during workouts this week, and the defense has improved a great deal. The services of Darrow Hooper will be missed by Coach Ray George, but this game shouldn't be so close as to depend on the "automatic toe" for a win or loss.

Arkansas has been in the dumps, and the Maroon and White should win their first conference game of the year by a considerable margin. Ray Graves will continue to spark the Aggies from quarterback, and little Don "Babe" Ellis can be counted on for another fine performance. The team is up for the game, and in this conference, that can mean the difference.

Coach George's Farmers should be commended heavily for their fine attitude toward the heart-breaking loss they took from Baylor last week. Down at workouts the "word" has been about beating Arkansas... and not a murmur about last week. If you're writing a score for tomorrow night, try 20-7.

TCU to Squeeze by Baylor's Speedsters

The speedy backs of Baylor will meet a little trouble when they run up against Ray McKown and Co. The Bears put on an outstanding show for the Aggies last week, but you can credit that to a few added seats being filled on what they so aptly named "Home-Coming Day."

Coach Dutch Meyer's Horned Frogs won't have a field day, but they should take the Bears by at least 21-14.

Rice Should Beat Wisconsin

The Owls could take this opportunity to start a ball rolling in their favor, but the Wisconsin squad would give a lot to beat a SWC ball club.

It's a mystery where all the power of last year's Owls went, but if they find it, and they might do it tomorrow, they are going to deal someone a great deal of misery before the conference race has ended this year. If they beat the invaders from the north, it won't be my too much... 13-7.

Longhorns Nearly Upset In Crucial One

The Texas Longhorns are liable to have trouble before the day is over down in Memorial Stadium in Austin. The little visitors from SMU are fast, are improving, and have been putting on quite a deceptive aerial show.

We pick the Orange and White, but it should be a close game, and a very crucial one for them. Count on a narrow one by about 20-17.

INTRAMURAL HIGHLIGHTS

Sq. 23 Shows Powerful Offensive Game

Four close intramural football games highlighted yesterday's intramural sports schedule.

In the closest game of the day Sq. 23 showed a potent offense with little scoring punch as they netted seven penetrations but only one touchdown in nudging Sq. 17, 7-6.

Tom McDade caught a pass for one touchdown in a 13-0 win by Sq. 18 over Sq. 24. R. H. Lawton also played a sparkling offensive game.

In the other two games Co. I blasted Fish Band, 13-2, and Vet Village outscored Puryear, 6-0.

Sq. 14 and Sq. 11 will meet in the finals of the B division horse-shoes competition. Both took 2-1 decisions from A Cml. and Sq. 5, respectively, in matches played yesterday.

Winning combinations for Sq. 14 were Hays and Fletcher and Rasberry and DuSang. J. DeWald and R. Holland and B. Goman Lee Chancellor were winners for Sq. 11.

Seven Tigers Warm Bench In Somerville Tilt

Facing the problem of seven first string players on the inactive list, Coach Chafin and his Consolidated High Tigers travel to Somerville tonight for a tussle with the Somerville Yequas in their fourth district game of the season.

Chafin, still undecided about his starting line-up, released the names of Tommy Barker and Bubba Engelbrecht to fill in for injured David Bonnen and William Arnold.

Other injured players are Rod Cook, Doug Norcross, John Manthei, Jimmy Bond and Pinky Cooner.

Manthei, Cooner, and Bond, if needed, may put in some play.

Somerville also has two first string backs, Robert McMinn and Joe Esparza, who are sidelined by injuries.

The Yequas haven't won a district game in three tries this season.

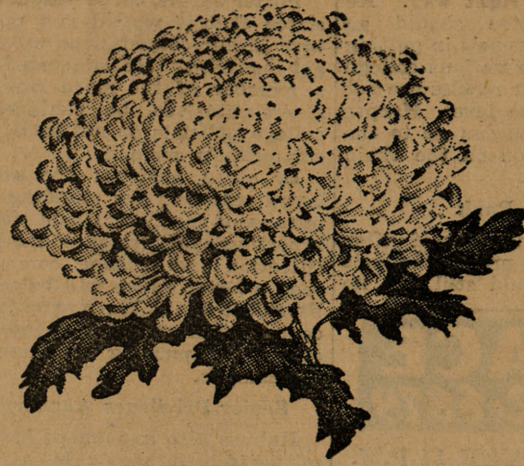

Chafin believes the Tigers shouldn't have too much trouble, even with several of his best boys out, since Somerville also has key players who are injured.

The Tigers will wind up the season with two more games. Next Friday is an open date.

Starting time for tonight's game has been moved up to 7:30.
