

Changes Present In Commentator

By BOB HENDRY
Battalion News Editor

The Commentator, at one time holding the reputation of being the sexiest student publication on the campus, will make its 1953 debut today.

But it has changed. The magazine's biggest change is the invasion of scientific business stories into its manuscript.

Enstrangled between The Commentator's 26 pages are "Mechanizing Red Tape," a scientific article dealing with business machines, and "Careers In Physics" which informs the reader of the physics field.

The sexiest articles in the new style Commentator are its display ads. The magazine is making an effort, which possibly one of the first of its kind, to make advertisements as interesting as the rest of the articles.

Fiction Stories Back

Fiction stories which have always dominated the magazine in the past, are back again this year. Helping Arvis Noak, The Commentator editor improve the loss of quantity in this department with quality are James Price, William Young, Richard Ewing.

Bert Weller, John Samuels, Terrell Hamilton, James Tillotson, and Louis Hampton. Directing the two artists, Connie Eckard and Louis Hampton, is Art Editor Bob Bynes. Other staff members are Bob Travis, business manager; Henry Cole, photographer; and Bob Godfrey, photo engraver.

The Commentator should be distributed throughout the campus today, and placed in the mails by tomorrow night.

Surpassing The Commentator in pages and number of editions, The

Profs Discuss Novel With English Club

R. W. Feragen and Dr. Arnold B. Sklare will give their views about the novel—what it is, what it should be, how to criticize and understand it at 7:30 p. m. Thursday in the MSC Social Room in a lecture to the English Club.

Engineer is entering the last stages of its second edition publication.

The Engineer is following the same paths as its predecessors except that this year it is making a profit, said James E. Richardson, editor.

The Engineer is a scientific magazine, and publishes stories of interest to people in engineering fields. The first edition of the magazine, containing 52 pages, could mean that this year's Engineers will be the largest ever published.

Under Richardson's direction are E. L. Walker Jr., assistant editor, C. S. LeBlanc, business manager; Bryan W. Grosjean and Don Aviles, technical editors; Bob Johnson and R. D. Mathis, joke editors; Gene Sparks, Wallace G. Schlather and George Sandoval, features.

Roland Balhman, layout design; Bill Scott, John Roberts and Jim Moffitt, staff typists; Thelton McCordle and Marvin Aly, staff artists; and Henry Cole, photographer.

1952-53 Staff Named

The editorial staff consists of Bob Brown, C. A. Wacker, John Park, Charles W. Cox, B. G. Touchstone, Francis Spreen, Pete Rozelle, John Clanton, Charles Collins, Jack Garrett, Gean Holden, Sam Gibbs, R. T. Miller, J. A. Spannagel, J. R. Henderson.

Range Grasses Die With Overgrazing

Overgrazing of Texas ranges has intensified the 1950-52 drouth, warned Vernon Young, head of the range and forestry department, at the Texas Academy of Science Meeting last week in Fort Worth.

"Our grasses will live through the drouth if the land is not overused," he said. To bring the grasses back, it will mean reseeding in many cases and taking some land out of production for five or six years, he said.

Napier Speaks To Ross Volunteers

The official Ross Volunteer uniform is white duck with gold ornaments.

Col. Napier graduated from West Point in 1929 with a commission in the Quartermaster

Corps. He received his wings about a year later and was transferred to the Air Corps.

During the war, he commanded a B-24 base in England.

Col. Napier came to A&M in August, 1950, when he replaced

Col. J. H. Kelly, after serving as vice-commander of the Twelfth Air Force at Brooke AFB in San Antonio.

He was Professor of Air Science and Tactics of the college until his departure in May, 1952.
