Military Adds New AF Guest

Maj. Gen. Norris B. Harbold, director of training for the Air Force, was added to the list of distinguished visitors for Military Day Saturday. Gen. Harbold will arrive by plane from Washington along with other guests from that area.

Final plans were completed yesterday for the big weekend which spotlights A&M's military strength.

Something new has been added to the program this year. A luncheon will be given for the guests by Corps Commander Weldon Kruger. Scheduled in Sbis Hall Banquet Room, the luncheon will be attended by division and regimental commanders and a few cadets from the Corps Staff. Dates and wives of the students also will attend.

A corps review is scheduled at 1:50 p. m. on the main parade ground.

Tickets for the Military Ball, Saturday from 9-12 p. m., are being sold by unit and staff supply sergeant's and at the office of Student Activities in Goodwin Hall.

The dance will be in Sbis Hall and will feature the music of Ralph Flanagan and his orchestra. Tickets are $2.50.

A concert in Guion Hall will precede the Ball at 7:30 p. m. The Office of Student Activities has concert tickets at 75 cents each.

Council Answers Honor Questions

If the Honor Code works, it will be because the students want it to work, said the Intercouncil Committee recently in discussing the merits of the newly approved plan.

The Intercouncil presented this point when answering the question "Might not the required reporting of the offense eventually lead to the reporting of the offender?"

"We should not worry too much over unpleasant things that might happen in the future," the committee said. "If this Honor Code does work, it will be because the Aggies want it to work and because it is to their overall advantage for it to work."

One can be assured, the committee continued, if anything is imposed upon the students contrary to their conception of fair play and sportsmanship, it will be observed more in the breach than in the performance.

Other questions answered by the committee included:

Q: Will students in a class under the Honor Code be required to sit in alternate seats and alternate rows?

A: This is a subject the instructor may want to discuss with his class. Ordinary common sense indicates that a man can do better mental work when he has room to work. Also when students sit in adjacent seats there is less likelihood of inadvertently looking on his neighbor's paper and perhaps be accused of cheating every time he turned his head.

It would seem that the matter of using alternate seats should be discussed between students and instructor so that common grounds for procedure could be established with a feeling of mutual confidence.

Q: Would some students be reluctant to report the offense?

A: Possibly they would. It has been suggested that some sections might want to elect a small "Honor Committee" of three or four students to whom offenses would be reported. This committee would in turn be honor-bound to report to the instructor.

Q: If cheating is reported on a quiz, shall the instructor throw it out and give another?

A: This would not seem to be realistic and would punch the man for the transgression of a few. The instructor should tell the class when cheating had been reported on a quiz so all might know that someone had taken unfair advantage of his classmates.

Other questions and answers will be published in subsequent issues of The Battalion.

NEWS BRIEFS

Cadets to See Fire Power

ALL DORMITORIES will remain open during the spring recess, said Allan Madeley of the Housing Office.

E. E. STOKES, MEMBER of the Community Concert committee, has announced plans for a new series of Community Concert programs. Definite information on the programs will be announced in a few days, said Stokes, a member of the English department.

A PICTORIAL BOOKLET showing the MSC student activities, will be published in June, said John Samuels, vice president of the MSC Council.

The new brochure is the first of its kind he said. James H. Bagaley is chairman of the brochure committee.

W. T. WILLIAMS, associated with department of oceanography, has returned to active duty with the U. S. Air Force. Williams has been employed on A&M Research Foundation Project 34, a study of the inshore water and sediments of the Gulf of Mexico, sponsored by the American Petroleum Institute as a part of their Project 51.

SENIOR WILDLIFE MANAGEMENT students are making study of the large mourning dove population on the campus.

Easter Seal Sale to Begin On Saturday

The Brazos County Easter Seal campaign starts Saturday with the mailing of letters to residents of the county.

About 60,000 seals will be sent out in the letters. All residents who are listed in the phone directory will get seals.

"We expect to get about $1,200," said Dr. Luther G. Jones, publicity director for the drive.

One third of the money will be used to help the annual Crippled Children's Clinic here. The rest of the money will be used elsewhere in the state.

Other officers of the drive are Mrs. J. E. Marsh, chairman; Dr. Daniel Russell, vice - chairman; Herman Krauser, treasurer; Mrs. D. W. Andres, Mrs. Joseph, Mrs. J. S. Perry, Mrs. S. C. Richardson and Mrs. T. T. Walton.

These local doctors' wives are addressing the letters: Mesdames L. O. Wilkerson R. B. Grant Jr., Joe Cox, J. W. Geppert, J. S. Perry, A. G. McGill, R. M. Searey, R. H. Harrison, R. H. Benbow, C. M. Cole.

E. E. Holt, D. W. Andres, T. O. Walton, Jr., L. D. Stuart, T. T. Walton, S. C. Richardson, J. E. Marsh and Jack Marsh.

Dairy Curriculum Changed Slightly

One change each in dairy manufacturing and dairy production has been made in the curriculum for the coming school year.

Agricultural engineering 424, formerly required of production majors, has been withdrawn. This was a two hour course in terracing.

Agricultural engineering 333 will be added to the curriculum in the fall semester to replace the terracing course. It will consist of both surveying and water utilization.

A reduction has been made in the number of elective hours required from seven to six.

Dr. Ruppel, head of the dairy department, said that the reduction was made to offset the 19 hour semester during the students' senior year.

Modernization Plans Proposed for Colleges

Senior Favors Orders Close On March 31

Senior favors must be ordered by March 31 in order to receive them in time for the Ring Dance, the Office of Student Activities announced.

Orders for the favors are taken in the Student Activities Office in Goodwin Hall. With chain and class numerals the favors are $4.25. Without the chain, $3.00.

Graduation invitations must be ordered from Student Activities before April 15. French-fold invitations are two for 25c. Card-board invitation are 45c each, the leather invitations are 95c each.

Pictures for senior favorites must be entered before April 7. The engravers have requested that they be 5x7 or 3x5 glossy prints. The cost for entering pictures in senior favorites is $1.50.

Swine Breeders To Attend Meeting

The Texas Swine Breeders' Association will discuss production, scientific, selling and packing progress at their next meeting.

The meeting is scheduled here March 30-31.

Experts in swine production and related sciences will give speeches.

Speakers include Dr. H. E. Redmond, professor of veterinary medicine at A&M; who will speak on "Swine Diseases" and H. W. Tidwell, manager of the Houston Packing Company, who will speak on the packing industry.

George L. Lewis, vice-president of the American Meat Institute in Chicago, will discuss "The Outlook for the Swine Industry"; and Ace Poleson, nutritionist of the Consolidated Products Co. in Des Moines, Iowa, will speak on pig hatchery problems.

Other speakers are Dr. Carl Lyman, head of the biochemistry and nutrition department; Dr. George L. Robertson, J. H. Bridges, Dr. W. M. Warren, and Fred Hale, A&M scientists.

Groneman Gives Talks At Arkansas A&M Meet

Chris H. Groneman, head of the industrial education department, spoke on "Industrial Education in the South" at the annual conference of the Arkansas Industrial Education Program which met March 20-21 at Arkansas A&M College.

AUSTIN, March 26—(AP)—An intensive, two-year, professional study has been recommended to tell the next Legislature whether Texas is getting full value for money spent by state colleges.

The plan came from a committee appointed by Gov. Shivers to investigate the need for a coordinated system of state-supported colleges.

A resolution by the Legislature had called on the committee to make the study, but the committee said an undertaking of such magnitude could not be attempted in 30 days.

Instead, it suggested the Legislature create a 41-member commission to make a long-range survey like the one that led to passage of the Gilmer-Aikin laws for improvement of the public school system in 1949.

Pres. Harrington A Member A&M's President M. T. Harrington was a member of the 16-man committee which made initial recommendations to the governor.

The group was composed of seven state college presidents and nine representatives from state college boards.

The committee was disbanded recently.

This study would cover ways of coordinating the college to avoid duplication of work. Degrees and areas of specialization for each school would be outlined.

The proposed law calls attention to complaints that Texas' system of higher education is uncoordinated and overlapping. Enrollment in the colleges is expected to increase one-third by 1960.

Composed of Appointees The commission would be composed of college board members, outstanding citizens appointed by the governor, legislators, college presidents, the state education commissioner, and one member from the state board of education.

It would serve without pay but hire professional, paid help to make the study. It would report by Nov. 1, 1954.

Engineers Hear Talk by Chevalier

Col. Willard Chevalier, executive vice president of McGraw-Hill Publishing Company, spoke at noon today at an engineers' luncheon in the MSC.

The luncheon was held at 12:15 p. m. in the Ballroom, following dedication of the new Engineering Building and the Texas Engineers Library.

Tyree Bell and A. J. Mitchell also spoke, said H. W. Barlow, dean of engineering. Bell is a former member of the A&M board of directors. Mitchell was formerly a member of the state board of registration for professional engineers.
