Local Patrolman Graduates From Texas Police School

Patrolman Morris Maddox, Campus security department, received his certificate of completion Friday upon graduation from the second Texas Municipal Police Training School.

The school is sponsored by the Texas Engineering Extension Service. The last session was held at College Station from March 30 to April 24. Its main purpose is to train Texas municipal officers in Texas laws and basic fundamentals of police work.

"It's mighty good schooling for any police officer," said Maddox, speaking of the training he received. "It covers just about anything that an officer needs to know."

Some of the phases of the school included instruction in arrests, handling of prisoners, accident reports and investigations, crime investigations and court room procedure, he said. One hour per day of public speaking also was given.

Included on the school's program was a field demonstration on auto theft and field trips to the Huntsville Prison System and the Department of Public Safety at Austin.

The school is the fifth of its type in the United States and is divided into four-week training periods. It operates six and one half hours a day, five days a week, and includes 120 hours of actual class instruction. Other schools are at Michigan State College, Louisville, Kentucky, Northwestern University and the FBI Academy at Washington, D. C.

Instructors are Bryan and College Station officials, out-of-town legal officials, law officers and A&M employees. Wallace Beasley is head of the school.

Men attending the school are selected by their own police departments. Each policeman must keep an academic average of at least 70 to stay in the school. The third school will begin June 1.

Howard W. Barlow, dean of the School of Engineering and director of the Engineering Experiment Station, presented 17 graduation certificates to the last class.

We Can SAVE - By Putting Them on the Same Grounds -

By putting all our schools on one campus, we can save money because -

- Janitor salaries are saved. eight men on one campus can do of nine or ten separately.
- Teachers salaries are saved. For example, if a school has a first grade enrollment of 40, it requires two teachers. If a school at another place has a first grade enrollment of 50, it also requires two teachers. Four teachers are needed for the 90 students. If the school is all together combined, three teachers can do the job since a class of 30 is not too large.
- Cost of maintenance will be our campus is centralized.
- Duplication is eliminated. To require two lunchrooms, two other such facilities. One can eliminate this duplication.

So vote yes May 9 and save money with duplication.
