

Ags Open Two-Game Series Today with Owls

The Aggies this afternoon will open a two-game baseball series with the Rice Owls in Houston, with the Cadet pitching staff well-rested and ready to go.

Resting in the league cellar with a record of one win, nine losses, and a tie with Texas, the Owls will be battling to climb into fifth place with a pair of wins.

SMU Leads Conference
SMU is leading the conference race with nine wins and two losses, while Texas is second with five wins, two losses, and the tie with Rice. In the third spot is Baylor with five victories and three defeats, while the Aggies are fourth with five wins and four losses. TCU is fifth with two victories and eight setbacks.

All the conference clubs start two game series today, with SMU and Baylor playing at Dallas, and TCU hosting the Longhorns in Fort Worth.

Two Horned Frog victories over Texas, coupled with two Aggie wins, would move the Cadets into third place. A double Mustang win over Baylor would boost the Aggies up into second place.

Regardless of the outcome of the Aggie-Rice series, A&M is certain to be no lower than fourth when Saturday's games are completed.

Official SWC baseball statistics show that the Aggies are in last place in both team hitting and fielding. The Cadets are hitting at a meager .151 clip in conference play, and their fielding average is .928, six points below fifth place TCU. Texas leads team hitting with a sparkling .321 average, but Baylor is the leading club in fielding with a .960 mark.

Golfers Play Rice In Final SWC Tilt

The Aggie golf team fifth place in conference standings, winds up league play today against the Rice Owls in Houston.

Only the individual conference competition remains when the linksmen of the seven conference schools will open May 14 their 72-hole grind in Fort Worth at the Colonial Country Club.

With 12 points won and 18 lost in league play, the Cadets can move up to the number four spot if Baylor loses to TCU, and if the Aggies defeat Rice, cellar club in golf standings.

Leading the conference is SMU with 22-8 record. Next is Texas with 21½ - 8½; third is Arkansas, which has completed its season with a final mark of 21½ - 14½; and fourth is Baylor with 13½ - 16½.

After A&M is TCU in sixth place with 11½ - 18½ and Rice, last with a 6-24 record.

The Aggies do not have a hitter listed in the first fifteen conference batters, which group Caruthers of SMU leads with a fine average of .447 in 11 league games. Roy Kelley of Texas, fifteenth on the list, is batting an even .300 in eight games.

Jerry Nelson of the Aggies leads the league in games won, with a 4-1 mark, but Tommy Bowers of SMU is the percentage leader with a 3-0 league record.

After the Owl games, the Cadets travel to Waco for two games with Baylor on Thursday and Friday.

Texas comes here for two games May 14 and 15 to wind up league play for both teams.

Swimming Meet Set for Tomorrow

Girls from Houston, Fort Worth, Dallas and Denton will compete tomorrow afternoon in the Women's Synchronized Swimming Meet.

The first round will be at 1:30 p.m. and the second performance at 7:30 p.m. in P. L. Downs Jr. Natatorium.

Synchronized swimming is the art of interpreting swimming to music, with the aid of colorful costumes, fancy bathing suits and brilliant-colored underwater lights. In order to do this, the girls must be in almost perfect physical condition.

Synchronized swimming was first introduced by Katherin Curtis in the 1920's. It started out as merely a combination of stunts and formations set to slow rhythmic tunes such as waltzes and marches.

Fast Growing Sport
Today this fast growing sport has developed until it is nearly an art in the swimming field.

Music, costume design and detailed motions by college girls are closely interwoven to create patterns and routines, set to the popular jazz tunes such as "Tango," "Chicken Reel," "Thunder Bird" and "The Waltzing Cat."

Synchronized swimming is being held at A&M for the first time tomorrow. Famed stars such as Marion Jobst and Lolly Anderson, last year's SAAU duet winners, and Jeannette Pfeiffer and Sandra McNulty from Dallas will perform.
