

Eases Fight in East Germany

By Associated Press

German Red Government announced Wednesday night an end to the bitter fight on the German Communist Party and the Communist Party of Germany.

The announcement of the easing of church-state tensions was made after Bishop Dibelius and Grotewohl had conferred for three hours in East Berlin.

German Catholics, welcoming the Protestant-Government Agreement, noted that five Catholic clergymen had been imprisoned for alleged state activities in East Germany and that some church property had been confiscated.

The program announced by the East German Communist Politburo appeared to have wiped out a previously announced aim of Communizing the area between the Elbe and Oder Rivers.

The announcement in Vienna of the changed Soviet policy toward Austria disclosed that Ivan I. Ilyich, named new Soviet high commissioner to Austria only three days ago, also will be new Russian ambassador to Vienna.

Informed quarters in Berlin hinted that the East German Government was to change its attitude toward the church.

The over-all figures on the summer camp attendance indicate that nearly 1,700 cadets, representing 61 colleges and universities in the United States, will participate in the six-week training exercises.

The Ohio senator recently said this country might as well forget the United Nations so far as the Korean War is concerned.

In a later, clarifying statement, Taft said he had not proposed that the United States "go it alone."

As for those who ask, "What does the United Nations matter?" Mr. Eisenhower gave an answer that possibly applied as well to South Korean opposition to the impending truce.

Dr. W. C. Banks, veterinary bacteriology and hygiene, A&M, was chairman of the opening session Friday morning of the Texas Conference for Veterinarians, being held at A&M.

A football film was shown at 8 a. m. and at 9 a. m. a discussion on "Dairy Cattle Problems" was led by Dr. R. Leland West of Wesaca, Minn.

Dr. R. R. Bell, veterinary parasitology, A&M, chaired the afternoon session, with a film, "Infections Atrophic Rhinitis" being shown at 1:30 p. m.

Dr. Henry Van Roekel of the University of Minnesota, spoke on "Avian Respiratory Infections". Dr. Wayne Kirkham, veterinary medicine and surgery, A&M, was to be moderator of a panel, including all guest speakers, at the closing session.

The ladies of the conference had luncheon at The Oaks in Bryan at noon. Mrs. L. C. Grumbles was chairman of the committee on local arrangements for the ladies program.

Jimmy Murphy and Donald Patton of College Station will leave Sunday for the Salvation Army camp near Irving, where they will spend a week. They were selected from among students at A&M consolidated school by a Recreation Council committee under President Ralph Rogers.

He is chairman of the College Division of the ASAE and the program will be held at 2 p. m. June 17 in the ballroom of Hotel William Penn.

A&M Sends Thirty Cadets To QM Camp

A 126-man delegation from six Texas schools of higher learning will spark the Fourth Army areas representation at the annual Quartermaster Reserve Officers Training Corps summer camp, which will be held at Fort Lee, Va., this year from June 22 through July 30, headquarters of the Quartermaster Training Command at Fort Lee announced recently.

The largest group of Texas cadets will come from the University of Texas in Austin with 58 men scheduled to attend. This delegation is followed closely by A&M with 33 cadets and the University of Houston with 30 cadets.

Other Fourth Army schools who will be represented include Arkansas Polytechnic College, Russellville, Ark.; Arkansas State College, New Mexico A&M, State College, N. M.; New Mexico Military Institute, Roswell, N. M.; Oklahoma A&M, Stillwater, Okla.; and the University of Oklahoma, Norman, Okla.

Lieutenant Colonel Walter F. Diesan, a Regular Army instructor at the University of Texas, will accompany the 58 students from his school and serve in a staff position at the summer camp.

The over-all figures on the summer camp attendance indicate that nearly 1,700 cadets, representing 61 colleges and universities in the United States, will participate in the six-week training exercises.

They will also participate in functional tours of the Quartermaster Board, which is the chief field testing agency of the Quartermaster General, the Quartermaster School, Graves Registration units, and the Richmond Quartermaster Depot.

The course is sponsored by the Poultry Husbandry Department with an attendance of 18 expected.

Dr. Baker told the group that new measurements were needed now to go along with the new world in which we are living.

"Throw away your little measurements," he said. "Just fifty years ago horse power, the kind which came packaged in a horse's hide, was a chief measure of power. Today, that measure will hardly suffice for measuring the speed with which we move and the energy which has been developed by our leaders," he said.

"Each of you have a responsibility in shaping the future and in building the kind of world in which you'd like to live. You must concern yourselves with the problems not only of your home, community, state and nation but also with those of the world.

"Let's not get lost in the wilderness," he added, "and let's speak with faith for we are not afraid and above all don't go to sleep on

Doesn't Hit South Korea

MINNEAPOLIS—(P)—President Eisenhower declared Wednesday—as South Koreans continued to oppose the impending armistice—that "all free nations must stand together or they shall fall separately."

Again rejecting "go-it-alone" philosophy, the President said free world unity against Communist aggression "means compromise—always within a clearly defined, clearly understood framework of principle."

He did not refer specifically to South Korean opposition to the proposed Korean War truce, or to President Syngman Rhee's demands for political union of North and South Korea and for evacuation of the North by the Chinese Communists.

But Mr. Eisenhower, addressing the convention of the National Junior Chamber of Commerce, seemed to be directing his remarks—in part, at least—to the South Koreans.

Mr. Eisenhower flew here from Washington Wednesday on the first leg of a five-day trip which will take him also into North Dakota, South Dakota, New Hampshire and New York for a series of speeches before returning to the White House Sunday night.

In his address Wednesday at Minneapolis Auditorium the President also:

1) Stoutly defended the administration's program for cutting military spending. Concentrating on the proposed Air Force cutback of about $5 billion, the President said the plan means "fewer planes in theory, more planes in fact—more swiftly and less expensively."

Without citing by name of the critics of the plan—such as Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, retiring Air Force chief of staff, Mr. Eisenhower declared in an obvious reference to atomic weapons:

"We are living in a time of revolution in military science. Today 25 aircraft equipped with modern weapons can—in a single attack—visit upon an enemy as much explosive violence as was hurled at Germany by our entire air effort throughout four years of World War II."

2) Snooked out again against critics of the United Nations—like Republican Sen. Robert A. Taft—who have contended the UN is ineffective as a world peace instrument.

The Ohio senator recently said this country might as well forget the United Nations so far as the Korean War is concerned. In a later, clarifying statement, Taft said he had not proposed that the United States "go it alone."

As for those who ask, "What does the United Nations matter?" Mr. Eisenhower gave an answer that possibly applied as well to South Korean opposition to the impending truce. He said:

"This nation and all nations defending freedom, everywhere in the world, are one in their common need and their common cause—and none can sanely seek security alone."

As for those who ask, "What does the United Nations matter?" Mr. Eisenhower gave an answer that possibly applied as well to South Korean opposition to the impending truce. He said:

The many points Dr. Baker listed became the basis for groups discussions among the 44-H members and their leaders. Tomorrow afternoon a panel will present the ideas of the boys and girls and the leaders on these points.

Last night the chuck wagon feed and the presentation of the Fandangle Sampler at Kyle Field was the featured entertainment. Local residents were extended a special invitation to attend the Fandangle Sampler show which began at 8:15 p. m.

The 4-H members attended a party Tuesday night at the Grove and the leaders and others attended a lawn party at the home of Chancellor and Mrs. Gibb Gilchrist.

Former Student Leads Searching

An Army Lieutenant, who served in the Navy during the war and grew up on the flat plains of East Texas, made international news last week when he led a search party down the precipitous face of Kleine Breitstein, a mountain 15 miles south of Salzburg, Germany.

First Lieutenant Sidney Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney H. Cook, 203 Riggs Circle, Marshall, was the officer in charge of bringing the body of famed British pilot, Tom Hayhow, down from the 5000 foot level where his plane crashed on April 10th.

The wrecked aircraft, which disappeared on a flight from Munich, Germany to Belgrade, Yugoslavia, was discovered by an Air Force plane on May 24th. Lt. Cook, Training Officer at the Mountain Training Center, operated by US FA's Tactical Command at Saalfelden, Austria, was one of a party of seven skilled Army climbers who set out on the 25th to attempt an ascent to the scene of the accident.

The group spent the night about a mile below the wreck, and arrived there on the morning of the 26th, after being directed to the spot by an aircraft hovering overhead. Without a "guide" ship, the search party could easily have bypassed the wrecked plane due to the ruggedness of the terrain.

Upon reaching the scene, it was found the body was not in the plane. A search of the area located Hayhow about 125 yards away, where the pilot, in attempting to get down the mountain alone, had fallen into a deep crevasse in the snow.

The search party divided, with one group the heavy climbing equipment down the mountain over one route, and Lt. Cook guiding the party carrying the body to the valley floor.

Lt. Cook, a graduate of Texas A&M, class of 1949, has been stationed with USFA since August 1950. His wife, Joan, daughter of Mr. F. L. Moore, 618 Canal St., New Smyrna Beach, Florida, and daughter, Cindy Ann, are with him in Austria.

Former Aggie Goes to Holland For Study

A former A&M student, Richard E. Odom, will go with his wife and small daughter to Holland to study as the recipient of a United States Educational Exchange award made possible by the Fulbright Act.

They will leave New York August 20 by steamer, and Odom will begin research in floriculture marketing at Wageningen Agricultural University about September 1, 1953.

Mr. Odom is particularly anticipating the world-famous Dutch flower markets where huge transactions are "carried on with the push of a button."

According to Odom, the American consumption of flowers per capita is small compared to that of most European countries.

He says, "I am definitely interested in promoting the European philosophy of everyday use of flowers in America."

Through study in Holland, a world famous flower marketing center, he hopes to import some of the Dutch ideas in floral use and distribution to the United States.

"Ed" Odom grew up in the nursery business in Jasper, Texas, where his father had a pecan nursery and orchard. He then attended A&M and was graduated with a degree in petroleum engineering in 1941.

F.R. Jones Presides Over Ag Engineers

F. R. Jones, head of the agricultural engineering department, will preside at the general program of the college division at the 46th annual meeting of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers to be held at Pittsburg, Pa., June 14-17.

He is chairman of the College Division of the ASAE and the program will be held at 2 p. m. June 17 in the ballroom of Hotel William Penn.

Outs To Begin Camping At Camp

College Station and Bryan Boy will start their annual weeks at Camp Arrowwood Sunday with activities getting under with the evening meal.

Preparations for camp have been way for the past three weeks, going to D. C. Jones, Jr., camp manager. The area, in Robertson between Bryan and Hearne, was sprayed from the air to exterminate mosquitoes and ticks.

Barlow has been reappointed part of his duties as the School of Engineering, of the Texas engineering experiment station and director of extension engineering until September 1 in order for him to serve during the three months as executive of the Texas A&M Re-Foundation, also it was announced today by Pres. M. T. Don.

Barlow was elected to the Re-Foundation post to fill the position created by the recent resignation of Dr. A. A. Jakkula at a meeting of the Foundation's executive committee.
