The West by aggression against Korea or Indochina.

Just before this warning note was sounded, the legion itself demanded full-scale action, including use of atomic and hydrogen bombs, to drive the Communists out of Korea if the peace negotiations there fail.

"There is the risk," Dulles said, "that, as in Korea, Red China might send its own army into Indochina. The Chinese should realize that such a second aggression could not occur without grave consequences which might not be confined to Indochina."

"I say this soberly in the interest of peace and in the hope of preventing another aggressor miscalculation."

Dulles sounded another warning note when he said the Communists could not count in "privileged sanctuary" in Manchuria if they renewed aggression against South Korea and when he said this country would not sit "indefinitely" at a peace conference with the Reds.

"We are always ready to negotiate in good faith but we expect the good faith to be mutual," he said.

Dulles upheld the United Nations

as the "town meeting of the world," which he said is the realization of an early American concept and a vital factor in keeping world peace.

The legion criticized the U. N. for what it called its "weakness and even impotence" but held that as long as World War III had been averted there was a "basis for hope" in it.

The legion suggested in a resolution that the world organization be strengthened by limited use of the veto against aggression, international control of scientific weapons and the creation of a formidable army of its own.

The convention recommended investigation of "infiltration of Communist elements and other Socialist hand-maidens" into religion, education, community affairs, labor, government and organizations such as the YMCA, YWCA and community settlement houses.

Eng. Extension Stages Meeting In Coordination

Members of the Texas Engineering Extension Service will meet the representatives of the State Health Department and the Texas Water and Sewage Works Association today and tomorrow to discuss plans for closer coordination of work between the three groups.

To be held in the Memorial Student Center, the conference will center around field training problems.

The Health Department is responsible for inspecting and approving water and sewage systems and the examining and licensing of operators. The Texas Water and Sewage Works Association is interested in seeing each plant and employ in the state meet the recommended standards; and the Engineering Extension Service offers field courses to meet the needs of these people, according to E. L. Williams, vice-director of the Service.

Service personnel who will meet with the Health Department and association representatives are Williams; Joe H. Sorrels of the College's Civil Engineering Department and the Engineering Experiment Station; I. N. Ronhovde, chief instructor for the Water and Sewage Training Service, and Leon R. Holbert, field instructor, Engineering Extension Service.
