 planning I hope that you eliminate any consideration of hazing, of consolidation or unification of the corps.
 "I would like to see you — the officers of the corps — during the coming year establish the objectives" . . . "the framework of the corps of cadets, and the responsibilities of the officers and of the individuals in the corps."
 Then Study Past Points
 "After you have the framework of the ideal corps constructed, the particular points which have bothered us in the past then be examined."
 "You are being asked then to forget all past traditions and to construct a modern corps of cadets for this college designed for the second half of the 20th century."
 He said traditions are somewhat like antiques: "Some — the true heirlooms — are priceless; others are old but valueless. Sometimes it takes an expert to differentiate."
 "After you have constructed the framework of the corps of cadets, I suggest that you then examine the traditions of the past for inclusion in the framework in terms of their contribution to the objectives. "It will be necessary for you to select the ones which will make the greatest contributions and to eliminate others that detract from your goals. It may even be desirable for you to establish some new traditions."

 Turns Study Over

He told the group he would like to see the recommendation from them come through the proper channels signed by every officer of the corps and by the college officials concerned.

This way it can go to the board of directors representing the unanimous approval of the officers of the corps and of the college, with a copy containing the original signatures placed on file in the Archives office, he said.

Following the voting Morgan said he didn't agree with the "two-uniform" system. This refers to the army wearing khaki and the air force wearing the blue uniform.

He said officials outside the college wanted the corps to wear two uniforms this year, but these men granted a postponement for the present time.

Morgan read from a letter which he had written to "his congressman," in which he said the corps is the "greatest lab I have seen for teaching leadership."

L'L ABNER Calling All Readers

STATE CHILD WELFARE DEPARTMENT

Dear Mr. Young: It has come to our attention that you are forcing your baby to wear a brassiere. This not only violates Planning Regulation 51, but also is contrary to the Child Welfare Law, which expressly outlaws such forms of torture as metal drawers. Our inspectors will call on you, in one week. If that baby is not out of that brassiere, he is supposed to take the baby away from you, irrevocably.

Yours truly,
 Child Welfare Dept.
