Clark Case Is Closed With White Christmas

Several years ago a songwriter with a name like the German capital jotted down a few notes, handed them to Bing Crosby and everyone started singing "White Christ-

The song was a hit. Irving Berlin got his income tax jacked up and Crosby could afford a new stable of race horses. Yet the song had one fault. In the South people could sing their lungs out but Christmas still came and went stark naked.

Last week A&M finally broke the tradition. It started celebrating a white Christ-And almost a month early, too. The festivities are still going on and everybody's happy. The John Clark case is closed. The press is happy. It latched on to a story that made front pages throughout the state. Even Time magazine, in its own sarcastic way, found space for John and his

John Clark is happy. He's gone to another college and received more publicity than Marilyn Monroe would get if she started going steady with Georgi Malenkov.

The students, who stopped by for a friendly chat with John, are happy. They can keep shining their rank or rumpling their blue jeans without being embarrased. They may have even revived another excuse for a tradition.

The administration is happy. Why? The students are happy.

Yes, everybody's happy.

Everybody's hanging up their stockings except those who still like to toy around with the fantasy that no one who tampers with a principle of democratic freedom can get away with it. They have decided to wait until Dec. 25 for their goodies.
