World Series Film Makes Sure Hit

NEW YORK (AP)—The only movie producer in the world who is in the happy position of knowing he has a hit on his hands before he takes scene No. 1 is Lew Fonseca, the former Chicago White Sox infielder and manager, who for 20 years has recorded the imperishable moments of the annual World Series.

Not for Fonseca any worries about how each succeeding opus is going to do at the box office. Even before the house lights were lowered for the American premiere of his 1953 production here he was able to forecast with some accuracy that it will be shown 75,000 times in the coming year, always to packed houses.

It will make no money, for there is no charge for the use of the 700 prints of the 37-minute film, but the American and National League owners who underwrite the project feel that the eventual benefits in terms of good will and future patronage. Already 60 prints are overseas for showing to the armed forces.

In recording the most recent series, in which the Yankees again combed the Dodgers by 4 games to 2, Fonseca's camera crew ground out 23,000 feet of film. This has been snipped down to a handier 7,500 by Lew in odd moments during the football season, and something he said about this was interesting.

"All the cutting I've done," he said in his curtain talk, "was aimed at showing the high spots of the Series. I have not intentionally left out any controversial plays." The point is that some low skeptics have in the past suggested that certain controversial plays which might have reflected upon umpires or players were given a quick shuffle or cut out entirely. Lew must have heard of this, for he sees to it this time that there can be no such complaints.

For example, just about the biggest debate of the '53 Series revolved about a play at third base in the opening game. The Dodgers,

Undeclared Tigers Beat Hearne Twice

The Tigers of A&M Consolidated high school Monday night won their sixth straight basketball game, downing Hearne, 35-22.

Consolidated's B team also remained undefeated, taking a 24-15 decision, its third straight.

Guard Fred Anderson scored 11 points in the A game, followed by David Bonnen with 10.

Manuel Garcia and Norman Floeck each scored 8 in the B game.

Trailing 11-14 at the end of the first half, the varsity outscored the Eagles 12-2 in the third quarter and coasted in.

The B team built up a 13-4 lead at the half and was out of danger.

left in the initial period, but two gratis tosses by Morgan gave the Bears an edge they never relinquished again.

At the end of the first quarter, Baylor built up a 12-7 margin in a period which found both teams unable to hit the basket consistently.

The Bears increased their lead in the second period, leaving the court at halftime on the long end of a 28-16 score.

In the third stanza, A&M outscored Baylor 14-12 and by 15-7 in the final period, but with 19 seconds remaining, Addison tipped one in for the final Aggie points. Baylor was in possession of the ball as the game ended.

In winning their fourth straight without a loss, the Fish out-pointed the Cubs 18-8 in the third quarter and 21-14 in the fourth.

Forward George Mehaffey led all players with 22 points and 11 rebounds. Guard Ted Harrod scored 16 points.

The Fish took a 16-12 lead at the first quarter mark as Center Jeff Penfield dropped in 3 points and Mehaffey 6.

Harrod sinks 8. In the decisive third quarter, Harrod bucketed 5 points and the Cubs could sink only three field goals. The Fish held Baylor to just five field goals in the entire second half.

Well, the official film doesn't even show the action is stopped dead and it appears to show Hodges in there while McDougald still reaches for a ball not yet in sight. The viewers will be given a chance to argue the play all over again. National Leaguers will swear they were robbed and American Leaguers will smile their customary superior smile.

In justice to Umpire Gore, the film commentary might point out that the arbiter later explained that Hodges made a hook slide for no earthly reason inasmuch as it was a force play—and that the ball beat him while he was coming back. It's tough to lick an umpire, even with pictures.
