Michalske, McArdle Appear on Top As Board of Directors, Council Meet

A&M Has Chance To Get Requests For Military Dept.

President David H. Morgan has said that five of the six requests he made at special meetings with officials in Washington recently concerning A&M's military situation have a good chance of being adopted.

Morgan and Col. Joe E. Davis, commandant, met the morning of Jan. 18 in the Pentagon with representatives of the armed services.

The chief representatives were John A. Hanna, under-secretary of defense, and Gen. Hugh M. Milton, assistant secretary of the army.

Morgan and Davis presented six recommendations for "Improving Status of MC Colleges." (A&M is an MC type college.)

The six recommendations were:
1. Open enrollment quota for contracts to those qualified.

2. Continued commissioning of all MC graduates.

3. Credit, for purpose of longevity pay, for the two years of the advanced course.

4. An increase in the subsistence pay to $1.50 per day.

5. An increase in the basic issue of woolen trousers.

6. An increase in the basic issue of shoes.

Morgan said the recommendations, with the exception of number three, were discussed, and the representatives at the meeting led him to believe there is a good possibility of their being accepted.

He said the officials told him A&M "probably wouldn't want" the credit for two years of advanced years courses, because this would place these students under military rule.

The second meeting of the trip was at 2 p.m. that afternoon when Morgan and Davis met with the House sub-committee on Armed Forces. Representatives from VPI and Clemson also were at the meeting.

Morgan said he felt this group also conveyed the idea that the recommendations have a good possibility of being adopted.

Davis said he "felt the response was very good" which he and Morgan received at the two meetings.

Teague Files Again For Sixth District

although there were "no promises made."

BULLETIN

Dean W. L. Penberthy, head of the Athletic council, announced early this afternoon that the council has reached a decision for head football coach and will make the recommendation to President David H. Morgan immediately.

The A&M board of directors, the athletic council, interested former students and financial backers of the college converge on the campus today for what could be the decisive round in the choosing of a new head football coach.

The ball started rolling at 10:10 a.m. today when the Athletic council met in the Memorial Student Center. Meanwhile, the Board of Directors was awaiting its meeting at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Any recommendation of the athletic council must be approved by the board of directors.

As the athletic council went into session, the two apparent top candidates were Line Coach Mike Michalske and Joe McArdle, assistant to Frank Leahy at Notre Dame.

Asked yesterday by The Battalion if he would stay on if he didn't get the head coaching job, Michalske said, "I have an open mind toward the situation."

Last night Charles Burton of The Dallas Morning News reported McArdle "loomed as the hottest prospect yet" since Ray George resigned Jan. 4. But Dean W. L. Penberthy, chairman of the Athletic Council, said "he is not being seriously considered right now."

"McArdle is believed en route here for an audience with the athletic council," wrote Burton. Penberthy said that McArdle had not been invited by the council. Burton said it is thought Terry Brennan, Leahy's successor at Notre Dame, does not plan to keep McArdle on as his line coach.

McArdle played under Leahy at Fordham and was one of his assistants at Boston College and Notre Dame. Both he and Michalske are line coaches.

Wednesday, rumors circulated in Dallas that Paul (Bear) Bryant, University of Kentucky head coach, would be the next Aggie coach under a five-year contract.

Bryant reportedly talked to W. T. Doherty and R. H. (Jack) Finney, jr. in a Dallas hotel over the weekend. Doherty and Finney are on the three-man sub-committee appointed by the board of directors to aid the athletic council in an "advisory capacity." The other member is A. E. Cudlipp.

Bryant still has nine years left on his 12-year contract at Kentucky.

The announcement of the board of directors meeting apparently clears the road for the selection of the new coach—a selection which reportedly has been delayed by a split between a majority of the athletic council and the three-man sub-committee appointed by the board of directors to aid the council in an "advisory capacity."

These three men and three or four members of the council are said to favor hiring a nationally-known, high-salaried coach. The council is said to have twice recommended Michalske to the board of directors but that Michalske failed to receive the board's approval.

Embezzlement Charges Filed Against Dudley

There still is no word as to the whereabouts of J. A. Dudley, missing since Jan. 5 after his resignation from the Military Property Custodian's office.

A complaint was filed recently against Dudley for embezzlement, and the sheriff has issued a warrant for his arrest.

Dudley's car was found Jan. 25 near the Sabine river by police officers from Orange.

The officers found in the car insurance papers indicating the car was from Bryan.

They called the Bryan police. Local officials learned the car belonged to Dudley.

Mrs. Dudley had reported Jan. 9 to the Brazos county sheriff's office that her husband was missing.

Mrs. Dudley said yesterday, "The only thing I know is that he just left. Police and the sheriff are doing everything they can do to find him."

A reliable source told The Battalion that Dudley left his job after "considerable pressure" had been put on him.

Dudley was a retired army sergeant who had served 30 years, 2 months 19 days up until the time of his disappearance.

Local officials said Dudley's record in the army "was one of the finest."

Dudley was treasurer of the All-Star Bowling League.

Marvin H. Butler, a professor in the economics department and coach of the Aggie bowling team, said the amount involved in the embezzlement complaint was $257.05.

Jailed Father Freed in Richmond

RICHMOND, Tex., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The Rosenberg father who went to jail here last week to serve a six-month sentence for the crimes of his delinquent son has been released.

County Judge George Roane set Fernando Rodriguez free and placed the custody of his two children temporarily in the hands of the Catholic Charities at Rosenberg.

The son, 8, and a daughter, 11, had been living with their blind grandmother. Neither the children nor the grandmother had anyone to support them. The mother is dead.

Repeated law violations of the boy caused Roane to send Rodriguez to jail. The young one had been accused of burglary, theft and arson.

The father was one of four given suspended six-month sentences Nov. 30 under a new state law making fathers responsible for their children's crimes.

For three noisy hours, the highway patrol, police, the movers and stalled motorists worked to turn them around. When they succeeded, blocks-long lines of cars finally began moving.

Martins Get Help On New Home

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(AP)—Sheriff's Lt. George Grantham vows this story is true:

Spring before last he built a birdhouse for martins in the yard of his suburban home. The martins prepared to move in—but found the doorways too small.

Much to the disgust of the martins and Grantham, sparrows found the entrances just right and moved in.

Last spring the martins came back—bringing a woodpecker with them.

"That woodpecker went to work," Grantham says, "and pecked away until he made the holes big enough for the martins to get into the house."

The job finished, the woodpecker moved on. The martins moved in.
